FATAL TUG SINKING BRINGS JAIL TERM

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Clifford John Rudland, captain of a tugboat that sank with the loss of five lives, was sentenced to six months in jail today for operating a vessel in a manner dangerous to navigation, life and limb.

A Supreme Court jury acquitted him on a further charge of criminal negligence in causing the death of Leslie Ryan, one of the five killed in the sinking August 28.

"I cannot in the public interest avoid consideration of the terrible tragedy which was caused by your navigation on that day," said Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

Detective Says RCMP Involved in 'Bugging'

Political Intrigue Hinted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Private detective Weldin Brock (Bud) Graham hinted today at political facets in the case of the bugged labor convention.

The former RCMP officer said in a radio interview he was aware of political connections in the case, but declined to amplify.

Assistant Commissioner F. S. Spalding, B.C.'s top RCMP officer, ordered a full investigation into Mr. Graham's claims that members of the RCMP were involved in the bugging of a union leader's hotel room.

Mr. Graham said in an interview Tuesday night that Cpl. Harry Reid of the RCMP's security and intelligence division arranged a meeting with him and Pat O'Neal, organizer of the Internationatl Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Graham said the result of the meeting was that Mr. O'Neal paid him $250 to install electronic listening equipment in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Assistant Commissioner Spalding said in Victoria he heard the radio broadcast and decided the situation warranted an investigation.

He hoped it would be completed later today.

He declined comment when asked if the results of the investigation will be made public.

"The investigation is under way and I want to get the reports first and give them scrutiny," he said.

Vancouver police transport department officials Monday seized $700 worth of electronic equipment from three rooms in the Ritz Hotel, where the Canadian Pulp and Paper Workers Union is holding its convention.

UNION LEADER DIES

One of the three rooms was occupied by Lloyd Craig, president of the Canadian union who died there Saturday of a heart attack.

John Fisk, deputy Vancouver police chief, said "as far as we are concerned it was a natural death."

O'Neal denied earlier he had anything to do with bugging the rooms and could not be located today to comment on the allegation he paid Graham $250 as a retainer.

Graham, who said he was a member of the RCMP's security and intelligence division from 1955 to 1962, said he would have refused the job except he believed he was acting for the police.

Graham said he placed microphones in Craig's room, in Room 206 and an adjacent committee room. A receiving set was put in Room 309 on the floor above.

"I have never done any bugging before and would have refused this case had I not thought it was a RCMP request," he said.

"I was surprised and flattered when Cpl. Reid came to me. It appeared the RCMP was assisting one union to spy on another."

FIND MIKE

Canadian union officials said the first microphone was found Saturday when it fell from a portable cupboard that was being moved to make more room in the committee room.

The union then hired a private detective agency which found the microphones in Room 206 and in Craig's room.

Angus MacPhee, vice-president of the Canadian union, said officials became suspicious of Room 309 — where the receiving set was located — because the blinds were shut all the time.

MacPhee said the room was kept under surveillnce and

Johnson Control of House Hit by GOP Victories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans came back strong in Tuesday's elections, wresting at least seven governorships from the Democrats and winning enough House seats to hamstring President Johnson's great society legislative program.

The off-year elections also gave the GOP a greatly expanded array of proven vote-getters who doubtless will play a part as candidates or king-makers in the 1968 presidential contest.

Among the Republican candidates who won big were Govs. George Romney of Michigan, Nelson Rockefeller of New York and James Rhodes of Ohio, Gov.-Elect Ronald Reagan of California, and Sens. - Elect Charles Percy of Illnois. Negro Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

Former vice-president Richard Nixon, who carried the campaign bod for the GOP, also emerged with revitalized political lustre.

Southern Democrats Hold Control

Democrats retained numerical control of both chambers of Congress but with reduced margins that will transfer real control to a conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

President Johnson, who received the returns at his Texas ranch, withheld direct comment on the Republican gains. But acting White House press secretary, George Christian, said: "He the President), obviously wishes that every man that he wanted elected had been elected. But on the other hand, the Senate Democratic majority will be in the neighborhood of 64 to 36, which is a pretty good majority in anyone's estimation. And the House majority will be in the neighborhood of 250 to 185."

Nearly complete returns showed that the Republicans had elected 182 House members and were ahead in 5 other races for a total of 187, compared to 140 they held in the last congress. The Democrats had nailed down 247 seats and led in one contest for an indicated total of 248, compared to their previous 295.

This would mean a net gain of 47 House seats for the GOP.

In the Senate, where 35 of the 100 seats were at issue, the GOP won 18 races, the Democrats 17. The new Senate lineup of 64 to 36 represents a gain of 3 seats for the GOP.

In the 35 gubernatorial races, Republicans won 22 and were leading in two others. Democrats won 11. If the Republicans

REAGAN OVERPOWERS BROWN

Conservatives Find Heir to Goldwater

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Political newcomer Ronald Reagan today won California's governorship in a landslide that made him a national GOP political force. But he promptly denied even "favorite son" presidential hopes in 1968.

In his first bid for political office, Reagan swept into the helm of the nation's most popular state by overpowering two-term Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The victory made him the newly crowned leader of GOP conservatives but Reagan said he did not think his victory signalled a swing to conservatism in California. He scorned the use of "labels".

However, conservative backers made it plain they saw him as inheriting the mantle of former U.S. senator Barry Goldwater, overwhelmed as GOP presidential standard bearer in 1964.

With 25,191 of the state's 28,573 precincts reporting, Reagan had 3,089,208 votes to 2,229,696 for Brown. His vic-

Easing of East-West Relations Martin Hope

MOSCOW (CP)—Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin said today productive discussions between East and West seem more likely and are more desirable than in the past.

The minister said talks between himself and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are not going to solve any of the world's major problems.

"But I am convinced that each of us can in these talks derive a better understanding of each country's point of view and, I hope, move at least some of the problems forward a little closer to solution."

Martin was speaking at a luncheon given in his honor by Gromyko on the first day of a three-day Moscow visit by a Canadian group headed by the external affairs minister.

Martin earlier held what were described as friendly talks with Gromyko, who gave the Canadian the spotlight during airport interviews after his arrival this morning.

Martin flew here from Warsaw and may also see Premier Alexei Kosygin.

With Canada a member of the International Control Commission that, in theory, supervises peace in Viet Nam, the Vietnamese war was expected to be a major item in Martin's talks here.

Poland also is an ICC member but Martin said in Warsaw Tuesday that the time is not ripe for ICC action on peace negotiations. Talks here will explore when the time might become ripe.

Among those at the airport were First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, the director-general of Tass, Dmitri Goryunov, and the ambassadors of Canada, Britain, India and Poland.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were to attend a ballet performance tonight.

SNOW MAKES DEBUT ON LOWER MAINLAND

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Greater Vancouver area said welcome to winter Tuesday night as the first snow of the season hit the area.

But the flakes in most regions—except in the higher levels of the North Shore mountains—were mixed with rain and melted as they hit the ground.

The mountains had a four-inch blanket and ski enthusiasts were crossing their fingers for a continued fall and an early start to the skiing season.

HELLYER CHARGES 'BLACKMAIL'

It's a Game of Chicken Diefenbaker Wants to Win

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is playing Russian roulette. The right combination in the chamber could blow it up. (See also Page 6.)

Here is how this kind of brinkmanship works:

The government needs about $340,000,000 to pay its November bills. It has to ask Parliament for it.

This opens up a debate called "interim supply" and MPs can talk on any subject they choose for as long as they wish.

The Conservatives, or most of them, decided to go after Defence Minister Hellyer on one specific matter.

Send the armed forces unification bill to the defence committee before Commons second reading — approval in principle — they said. Mr. Hellyer said no. After second reading the bill goes to committee.

The Conservatives have kept talking for eight sitting days, including today. No committee study, no money.

"Blackmail," said Mr. Hellyer.

Friday, Nov. 11, is a Commons holiday. Main pay day for the civil service and a lot of contractors is next Tuesday. But some cheques are due earlier — on Thursday and next Monday.

The Conservatives run the risk of getting civil servants and contractors angry with them.

However, there's a much greater risk than people not getting paid. The government could pull the plug and call an election, even though it's only a year since the last one.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker would dearly like to take another Liberal "retreat" before his party's convention here next week.

But he might be accused by some Conservatives of trying to force an election before his party was ready for one and just so he could try again for the prime ministership.

The question on Parliament Hill today was not "who will win?" but, rather, "who will chicken out first?"

Some sort of compromise seems to be shaping up.

The Liberals won't give in on the unification bill.

But they will throw a very large bone to the Conservatives: Immediate introduction of the legislation to increase old-age pensions for the needy.

The Conservatives have been hammering away at this, too, and they would be able to tell next week's party convention they had forced the government to act.

The government has already compromised to some extent. Last week it said it would bring on the unification bill after interim supply was passed. But it dropped this plan this week.

And Mr. Hellyer has taken a much softer line in the last couple of days — to the point of agreeing with some opposition arguments.

The expectation is that interim supply will be passed Thursday night. But great expectations have gone awry here before.

GOP Happy With Gains

Six Governorship Victories Add Fuel to Hopes in 1968

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans wrested six governorships from the Democrats today in their off-year election comeback. They also threatened to oust Democrats from two other state houses in a national show of power.

Rep. Howard H. Callaway held a growing lead over segregationist Democrat Lester G. Maddox in Georgia in a come-from-behind surge.

In Minnesota, Harold L. Levander jumped into the lead over Democratic Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag whose candidacy had the support of Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

If the leads held, the Republicans would end the 1966 election dividing control of the nation's 50 statehouses equally with the Democrats. Going into the election the Democrats held 33, the Republicans 17.

In Alabama, Mrs. Lurleen Wallace, wife of Gov. George Wallace, won an easy victory for the Democrats, giving her husband the base he may use to start a third party movement for the presidency in 1968.

FUEL FOR 1968

In terms of presidential politics, GOP victories in California, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and Michigan gave the party access to the patronage that could fuel their 1968 presidential drive.

The victories also gave the party two presidential possibilities as Gov. George Romney swept to re-election in Michigan and actor Ronald Reagan, who ousted Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown in California.

Reagan spoke to Romney after his win and proposed that they work together to translate their state victories into a national win in 1968.

Romney for president stickers were appearing in Detroit. Reagan's supporters unfurled a Reagan for president banner after his win.

In Ohio, Republicans took heart from the re-election of Gov. James A. Rhodes who coattailed a host of other candidates to victory with him. He was immediately touted as a possible vice-presidential candidate in 1968.

HEALTHY MARGIN

Romney, re-elected for a two-year term, was ahead from the start in his race against political unknown Zolton A. Ferency. Both Romney and Reagan garnered near 60 per cent of the votes cast in their states.

The only bright spot for the Democrats on the state level was the win of Robert B. Docking, who beat incumbent Republican William H. Avery in Kansas, and Kenneth M. Curtis, Democrat, who beat GOP incumbent John H. Reed in traditionally Republican Maine.

Avery's support of a high sales tax in a state whose entire legislature and congressional delegation was Republican apparently was the deciding factor in his loss.

With the exception of the deep south, where anit-Negro feeling ran high in statewide races, the gubernatorial races were decided for the most part on local issues.

WHITE BACKLASH

California's southern sector gave Reagan his margin of victory, and area which most sharply reflected the so-called white backlash against Negroes. However, Brown did not run as well as expected in the state's northern half.

The Rockefeller name, brothers Winthrop and Nelson, led the GOP to victory in Arkansas and New York respectively. Winthrop Rockefeller's win in Arkansas gave that state its first Republican governor since 1874.

Nelson Rockefeller ran well ahead in a New York Race that could signal the end of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.'s political career. Roosevelt, running on the Liberal Party ticket, came in a poor fourth. Democrat Frank O'Connor ran well behind Rockefeller.

Maryland voters repudiated Democrat George Mahoney for governor to elect Republican Spiro T. Agnew, who accused Mahoney of bigotry in running his campaign entirely on anti-open housing plank. Agnew supported a modified open housing stand.

Free-spending Milton Shapp, Pennsylvania's Democratic gubernatorial nominee, found that his television blitz campaigning was ineffective in his race against GOP Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer.

Shafer defeated Shapp handily to keep the state in Republican hands. Outgoing Gov. William W. Scranton could not succeed himself.

Computers Score Hits But Also Some Boobs

NEW YORK (AP)—The three major U.S. television networks put their computers to work in picking the winners of Tuesday elections and in most cases scored direct hits. But there were some misses.

In the Minnesota governorship race, all three networks—CBS, NBC and ABC—deadlocked in indecision.

At 10:10 p.m., ABC said incumbent Democrat Karl Rolvaag had won. At 11:20, CBS said Republican Harold Levander had won. NBC never did make a prediction, saying the race was too close.

The avowed purpose of the computer analysis—called Electronic Vote Analysis by NBC and Research Selected Vote Profile by ABC—was to get results out fast.

In two races, contestants felt ABC got them out too fast.

LODGE COMPLAINT

The Republicans lodged a complaint that ABC's call at 6:54 p.m. for Democrat Robert Docking in the Kansas governor's race came while polls were still open in that state and was unfair. ABC replied that it had found such predictions did not influence voters.

ABC had predicted Robert Taft Jr. a winner in Ohio's 1st congressional district and incumbent Democrat John J. Gilligan went before network cameras to complain that the race was called too soon and, actually was still open.

Artist Jailed 2 Years For Drug Possession

CALGARY (CP) — Donald Wilton Braun, 24, Vancouver artist, Tuesday was sentenced to two years after he was convicted of possession of narcotics.

An RCMP constable said in Alberta Supreme Court he saw Braun throw a "white object" over a ridge at Banff, Alta. He said he found a marijuana cigarette below the ridge half an hour later.

after two men checked out of the hotel from 309 police were called and found electronic equipment packed in luggage cases there. A man who was about to leave with the cases was picked up.

Hotel owner Sam Soloway said the two men who checked into the hotel last Wednesday registered as William J. Dawson and W. B. Graham. Soloway said the men made about 30 telephone calls from the room.

MacPhee said the telephone calls went regularly to an unlisted number which the Canadian union knows to be that of E. P. O'Neal.

The union officials said five pages of notes were found in 309 which proved the equipment was being used to spy on the Canadian union.

MacPhee said: "We believe our legal responsibility is that we make this statement, knowing all the facts. I am not concerned with O'Neal's denials. We have O'Neal's unlisted phone number and the management of the hotel was very co-operative.

"Legal action is under consideration by the union. All the evidence points to the fact the international is involved in this. From all indications, the notes pertain to the tapes he had taken. They were in regard to long distance phone calls I had made in connection with the death of our president and phone calls to relatives in Victoria and Castlegar."

MacPhee said he presumes it would be to the international's advantage to know in advance what plans were made by the Canadian union. The two unions are involved in a jurisdictional dispute.

One of the 30 outgoing calls from Room 309 went to Ace Investigators Ltd. Angus MacDonal, operator of Ace agency, said the call he received was placed Thursday.

"They were trying to borrow equipment from us," he said. "They said they were bugging, but I said no."

. . . HEIR

tory margin was pushing toward the million-vote mark.

Reagan, 55-year-old former movie and television actor, has disclaimed presidential ambitions, and his victory established a GOP power base in the west that assured him a decisive voice in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Brown, 61, ending a political career that spanned a quarter century, conceded about two hours after the polls closed.

Shortly afterward, Reagan appeared at his campaign headquarters and said his showing was "not any narrow partisan victory." "Partisanship ends as of today," he pledged.

"Now the big job begins," he said. "If we are going to make the creative society work we're going to need the help of every one of you."

Reagan said he had spoken to Republican Gov. George Romney of Michigan, another big winner, and said Romney told him: "Maybe now the importan thing is that we can put together throughout the country what you have put together in California."

TOUGH CAMPAIGN

Brown, in what he conceded was his "toughest" campaign, lost his attempt to become the first Democrat in history elected to three terms as California governor.

Brown's campaign manager, Don Bradley, blamed "white backlash" for the Democratic loss. Racial strife had rocked the state in the August, 1965, Watts riots and again earlier this year in San Francisco and Oakland.

Minutes after Brown conceded, Democratic Lt.-Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, 53, acknowledged he had lost his try for a third term. He was defeated by Republican Robert H. Finch, a 40-year-old Pasadena attorney who managed former vice-president Richard Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign.

LURLEEN
. . . her job over

George Still 'Governor'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Mrs. George Wallace was elected Tuesday as governor of Alabama, succeeding her husband who could not under law succeed himself.

The Wallaces made no secret of the fact that if Lurleen Wallace, 40, defeated Republican James D. Martin, 48, her husband would in fact be governor in all but name.

The victory was seen as a boost to Walace's plans to run as a segregationist third party candidate in the 1968 presidential election.

SON BEATS HIS FATHER

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Democrat Robert Madden defeated his father, Bruce Madden, a Republican, in a race for a Kansas House of Representatives seat.

Robert, 22, received an unofficial 2,321 votes Tuesday in the 85th District race to 1,679 for his 53-year-old father.

The Maddens had maintained family congeniality despite political differences. It was young Madden's first race for public office.

RE-ELECTED to his 12th term as member of the U.S. House of Representatives for New York's Harlem area, Adam Clayton Powell, Democrat, was not around to celebrate his victory. Powell, who is out of the U.S., is tied up in court entanglements and did not even campaign in his district.

BIG MARGIN

Voters Repeal Washington Blue Law

SEATTLE (AP)—Washingtonians voted to repeal the state's 1909 Blue Law Tuesday, but rejected a proposal that would have given cities 10 per cent of the state sales tax.

Rejection of the hotly contested cities' measure, Initiative 226, was a bitter blow to the state's mayors, who contended they needed the money to help solve financial crises brought on by population growth.

The initiative was the only one of the 14 statewide measures on the ballot to go down to defeat.

Multi-million dollar bond issues for schools and state institutions passed with big margins as did the proposal to repeal the state's 1911 law which required at least six men to operate a freight train of 25 or more cars in Washington.

CLOSE RACES

There were several close races in addition to Initiative 226.

SJR 20, which removes restrictions on land ownership, won a narrow victory after having been twice rejected.

Another senate joint resolution, No. 25, which would permit port authorities to spend money for promotion, passed after trailing in the early returns.

Referendum 16, designed to realign the state's congressional districts, also won by a slim margin.

The voters gave overwhelming approval to HJR 4, relaxing voter requirements in presidential elections; HJR 7, permitting the legislature to grant relief from property taxes to retired persons; and SJR 6, letting unopposed superior court judges be declared elected without having to be voted upon.

Repeal of the blue law removes restrictions which prohibited many Sunday commercial activities, including the sale of liquor. The state liquor board still has a regulation forbidding Sunday liquor sales and now will have to decide whether it should be kept in force.

Seattle Mayor Dorm Braman, one of the strongest proponents of the cities' initiative, said he was "too discouraged and disheartened" to talk about its defeat.

Officials estimated the proposal would have given the cities about $65 million during the 1967-69 biennium.

EMBRACED by a jubilant wife is the United States' first elected Negro senator, Repqublican Edward W. Brooke, of Massachusetts. Once describing himself as a Protestant in a Catholic state, a Republican in a Democratic state, and a Negro in a Caucasian state, he easily defeated Endicott Peabody, former governor of Massachusetts.

MONEY FOR SCHOOLS

N.Y. Voters Back Lottery

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York will have a statewide lottery, the second in the United States, if the state legislature acts on a constituional amendment approved by voters.

The lottery was one of 374 state and local issues on the ballots Tuesday in 40 states.

With nearly 7,000 of 12,170 districts reporting, the amendment authorizing creation of a state-operated lottery was 1,230,044 yes, 730,881 no.

Proceeds would raise money for schools. Establishment and form of the lottery would be up to the legislature.

In nearby New Hampshire, citizens voted better than 4 to 1 in favor of retaining that state's sweepstakes approved in 1964.

Although Viet Nam was on many voters' minds, the only community in which it was on the ballot was the Detroit suburb of Dearborn, population 112,000. Citizens there disapproved of a U.S. pullout by nearly 3 to 2.

In answer to the question:

"Are you in favor of a cease-fire and withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam so the Vietnamese people can settle their own problems?" Dearborn voters said no, 20,667 to 14,124.

Dearborn mayor Orville L. Hubbard, 63, a Republican who opposes use of U.S. troops, suggested placing the question on the ballot.

REJECT REVIEW BOARD

New York City voters threw out a controversial civilian-dominated board to review complaints of police misconduct.

Major backing came from Harlem and other predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican areas of the city. Republican Mayor John V. Lindsay said the board was defeated by "emotion, misunderstanding and fear."

Louisiana voters endorsed Democratic Governor John J. McKeithen, even though he was not up for election, by approaching a constitutional amendment permitting him and succeeding governors to serve two successive four-year terms. West Virginia voters rejected a similar measure.

A proposal to tighten California's anti-pornography laws was rejected.

NO LIQUOR CHANGE

In South Carolina an advisory referendum to allow the legislature to set rules for liquor sales was defeated almost 2 to 1. Liquor can be sold there only between sunrise and sunset.

Massachusetts voters favored 4 to 1 retention of the state's three-per-cent sales tax. Idaho citizens retained their three-per-cent sales tax by a 3-to-2 vote. In Nebraska an income tax bill passed by the 1965 legislature, to take effect Jan. 1, was overwhelmingly defeated.

Michigan voters rejected 2 to 1 a proposal to lower the voting age from 21 to 18

NEGROES SUPPORT MODERATES

White Backlash Felt in Vote

NEW YORK (AP)—The white backlash and a counter to it—a marked shift of Negro voters to moderates on the racial question—figured heavily in Tuesday's elections in seven states and possibly two others.

In the races in California, Illinois, Florida and Alabama the white backlash — the vote of whites opposed to further Negro gains—appeared to have been a major factor. Three of these were won by Republicans and the other by a Democrat, segregationist Lurleen Wallace, wife of Governor George C. Wallace.

The backlash was thought to be an element in the overwhelming vote in New York City to abolish the civilian-domiated police complaint review board. Civil rights leaders and the major candidates had supported the review board.

But the "counter-lash" was clearly apparent in Maryland where Republican Spiro T. Agnew won the governorship over Democrat George P. Mahoney, who had campaigned on the slogan, "Your home is your castle —protect it."

In Georgia, segregationist Lester G. Maddox fell behind Republican Howard (Bo) Calloway, who had moved toward moderation.

MODERATE WINS

The racial question was not an open issue in Arkansas but Democrat Jim Johnson lost to Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, a moderate on the question, in the election for governor.

In Texas, Republican Senator John Tower received 12 per cent more white votes in winning re-election than he had in 1962. His Democratic opponent, Waggoner Carr, got 93 per cent of the Negro vote, a gain of 26 points over the Democrats' figure in 1962.

These statistical analyses across the United States were provided by NBC's electronic vote analysis. EVA compared Tuesday's polling in selected districts to the votes there in previous elections.

CALIFORNIA

In defeating Democrat Edmund C. (Pat) Brown for governor, former actor Ronald Reagan won 64 per cent of the white vote compared with the 52 per cent that went to Richard M. Nixon in 1962 when he lost to Brown.

Brown's share of the votes in the Los Angeles area dropped from 52.5 in 1962 to 36.6 Tuesday. Watts, a section of Los Angeles experienced serious Negro riots two years ago.

Brown also lost ground among Latin-American voters, many of whom are resentful of Negro civil rights gains. He received eight per cent fewer votes from them.

Conversely, Negroes gave Brown 96 per cent of their votes, three points more than in 1962.

The issue was clearly drawn between Brown and Regan. The governor had supported a so-called fair housing bill; Reagan said he would work to have it repealed or amended.

ILLINOIS

EVA figures showed Republican Charles H. Percy, victor over Senator Paul H. Douglas, receiving increased support compared with Republican figures for 1960 in selected socio-economic groups of voters.

Percy took 73 per cent of the high-income group, a gain of two points. In the middle-income group, he won 57 per cent, a gain of 16 points. Slavic voters gave him 46 per cent, 18 more than the Republican total in 1960. He showed smaller gains among Italian and Jewish voters and his labor vote was 11 per cent above the Republican figure for 1960.

Polish and Czech voters, queried before the election, voiced strong objection to open housing legislation.

FLORIDA

Civil rights demonstrations and disorders involving Negroes in a number of Florida cities probably helped Republican Claude Kirk over Democrat Robert King High in the Florida governor's election.

Across the state, High received only 38 per cent of the white vote compared with the 54 per cent won by retiring Democratic Governor Haydon Burns in 1962. Kirk, the first Republican to win the governorship since 1872—the era of reconstruction after the Civil War upped the Republican share of the white vote from 46 per cent four years ago to 62 per cent.

Negroes gave High, mayor of Miami, 93 per cent of their vote, eight per cent more than Burns had received.

The swing to the Republicans was particularly marked in Jacksonville, scene of several racial disorders. EVA showed a 26.1 Republican gain compared with 1962.

ROCKEFELLERS MAKE HISTORY WITH WINS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two millionaire Rockefeller brothers set what was believed to be a new "first" in American history Tuesday night by winning the governorships of two widely separated states for the Republican Party.

The older, Nelson A. Rockefeller, 58, surged to re-election in New York over Democratic challenger Frank O'Connor.

In Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller, 54, was elected to his first term in a race against Democrat Jim Johnson.

A Republican Growl

WHILE THE REPUBLICAN party made larger gains in yesterday's mid-term United States elections than had been expected, it is not likely that the overall political picture has been altered to a degree that will change our neighbor's foreign policy — or in particular its attitude toward Canada.

The Republicans' gains of three seats in the Senate and another 48 in the House of Representatives will not directly affect the Democratic control of Congress, although the new House standing, even with a commanding Democratic majority, is seen by some American observers as offering difficulties for President Johnson in his domestic policies, if not in his Viet Nam war program.

It is traditional for the party in power to lose seats in the off-year, non-presidential elections, but yesterday's Republican gains are held to be larger than average. The gain of six state governorships is also given significant interpretation, particularly in view of the victories of Mr. Reagan in California, Mr. Romney in Michigan, Mr. Percy in Illinois and Mr. Rockefeller in New York. The outstanding majorities established by these four Republicans and the importance of their states, makes them possible presidential material for 1968.

From this standpoint they could have significance for Canada and other global neighbors of the United States. But the broader election picture carries no clear pattern in this regard. It was not to be expected that great changes in the political picture would be made by a country so divided in its opinion on various major issues.

The results, for instance, can hardly be seen as emphatic support for President Johnson's Viet Nam war policy, nor on the other hand as a condemnation of it. The so-called white backlash — the lately emerging reaction against further civil rights measures — likewise achieved no great stature as a national trend although it no doubt was a factor in such gubernatorial contests as that won by Mr. Reagan in California.

The national message to Mr. Johnson, from a political standpoint at least, seems to be: proceed with caution. From a military standpoint there can be little doubt that the Viet Nam problem will have to be suitably wrapped up before 1968. By then it should be too great a liability to carry into the presidential contest.

A Hard One To Explain

A REPORT THAT THE INTERnational Monetary Fund is planning to develop a 282-acre private club for its Washington headquarters staff seems a little strange at first glance. The IMF, after all, is in business to borrow from and lend to its 105 member countries as part of the stabilization of international monetary affairs and the growth of underdeveloped nations, and not to provide high-class recreation facilities.

Cost of the land alone for the club is $1,128,000 while development — to include an 18-hole golf course, playing field, stocked fishing lake, swimming pool complex and other sport facilities along with club houses and other amenities — will run into many millions of dollars more. What is the reason given by IMF for spending such sums?

The answer is a microcosm of the social tragedy of the United States today. IMF's Washington headquarters has 775 employees and about 75 per cent of them are foreigners from 69 countries — many of them Africans, Indians and Asians. For the most part they are highly-educated experts in international finance, earning good salaries. But unless they are white they have no access to the sports and recreation clubs in the Washington area because of the color bar.

The American racial problem is rapidly becoming the single greatest, and most tragic, barrier in the way of United States credibility as leader of the free world. As a domestic situation it is bad enough. But when intelligent, often scholarly and cultivated, foreigners working in the nation's capital are forced into the black-or-white mold the situation is made that much worse. A better method of "giving aid and comfort to the enemy" can hardly be imagined than this admission that some of the world's peoples are not good enough to associate with the "elite" of Washington.

The Water Battle

CANADIANS, PARTICULARLY in this province so richly endowed with clean rivers, will be interested in a domestic water issue which has arisen in the Pacific Northwest states.

For some time the dry American southwest has cast envious eyes at Northwest water supplies. The Northwesters have been careful about committing themselves to any diversion to populations in the south.

Now, however, it appears possible that some diversion may be made—but not until adequate precautions have been taken to determine Northwest needs—not just of the present, but also of the future.

And as further assurance that no unjustifiable demands will be made, the Northwest states look forward to a bill in the next Congressional session seeking the establishment of a national water commission to measure impartially water needs and possible surpluses. The attitude of the Northwest states will be widely appreciated in Canada, now subject to American pressure to consider fresh water as a continental asset.

If there are grave doubts between the states as to the desirability of diverting water resources from one part of the nation to another, how much more caution there should be toward any proposal to commit Canadian resources to foreign export. The flat statement of Mr. Arthur Laing, Canada's minister of natural resources at the time, that "our water is not negotiable," should be this country's firm policy until, at some future date, we have determined exactly the extent of our assets and our possible needs for many generations to come.

Controlling Population

THE SO-CALLED "MANLY ART of self defence" in Canada has sustained one of the hardest blows delivered to the sport since the days of the racketeers and "the fix" in United States prize-fighting.

The National Fitness Council in this country has decided to recommend that amateur boxing here be excluded from athletics receiving federal grants.

The action is explained by remarks of Dr. John Merriman, of the University of Saskatchewan. Noting that the basic aim of boxing is "to knock your opponent out," he added that knockouts involve temporary brain damage, "but there is evidence that this temporary damage is not so temporary."

Arguments will be raised by boxing buffs who point to the value of physical condition stimulated by preparation for boxing bouts, the development of quick reflexes and general skill — as well as the encouragement of fortitude.

As long, however, as the main principle involves the infliction of punishment or injury—with possible brain damage — it seems wise to withhold taxpayers' money from its promotion.

"... Stop beefing about the fit ... you'll grow into it ...!"

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Tory Rebels Reject Olive Branches

ALTHOUGH Mr. Paul Hellyer is a tempting target, the sound and fury of the Conservative attack upon him may not have been inspired entirely by defence considerations. It is at least an interesting coincidence that Mr. Diefenbaker only last Monday exhorted distracted Ontario Conservatives to "start fighting Grits" and that Mr. Hellyer happens this week to be the Grit most immediately available for parliamentary pounding.

Western

None of this has helped very much to distract public attention from the quarrel now racking the Conservative party. This is a matter of much greater importance than most squabbles in the House because the actions of the mid-November convention will directly affect the role and influence of the only national opposition party and, indirectly, the fortunes of other parties.

There is much confusion about recent events, partly because a great deal is obviously happening behind the scenes and partly because the official version of contemporary party history is often curiously at variance with the reports of dispassionate observers.

It would appear, however, that the issue is much more uncertain than Mr. Diefenbaker's supporters were ready to admit a fortnight ago. When Mr. Erik Nielsen was unleashed by the establishment late in October, few could have imagined that the rebels would be in danger from flying olive branches a week before the convention.

Contradictions

Even the official version is not free of contradictions. Mr. Nielsen, for example, had depicted Mr. Camp as the personification of dark forces threatening the party although Mr. Diefenbaker, prior to his disappointing reception in Toronto, managed to dismiss the party president as an "imaginary" target. But there seems to be a view at headquarters that Mr. Nielson, with his well-known preference for stark colors, dipped rather too deeply into the paint pot.

Leaving aside these minor discrepancies, however, the official line is roughly as follows. The rebels are a small group of malcontents who cannot amount to much because 71 members of the Conservative Caucus are for Mr. Maloney and the status quo. The rebellion is Toronto-centred and inspired by the same old reactionary bunch who opposed Mr. Diefenbaker in 1956. Mr. Camp, whether guilty or not of the offences alleged by Mr. Nielsen, has permitted himself to be diverted from his presidential duties of building the party and strengthening its unity.

There is abundant evidence that Mr. Diefenbaker is unpopular in Toronto and it is a fact that some of his present critics are persons who opposed him in 1956. But the generalizations from these facts are anything but convincing.

In advance of the convention, one can only speculate about the alignment in the country. But something is known about the parliamentary group. None of them are from Toronto, which lacks Conservative representation, but some did back Mr. Flemming or Mr. Fulton in 1956. However, they are a mixed bag, opposed to the present leadership for varying reasons but united on the proposition that there must be a meaningful reappraisal.

Outside Ontario

According to my count, at least half are from outside Ontario; indeed their constituencies are scattered all the way from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia.

Their spokesman last week was Mr. Baldwin of Peace River, who issued a dignified (but nevertheless biting) protest against the pre-convention manoeuvres of the Diefenbaker forces and particularly against the "divine right" theory of leadership.

Far from being a reactionary, Mr. Baldwin is regarded on all sides as one of the most enlightened members of the Conservative party. He is not an enemy of 1956 but a man disappointed in his original hopes of the Diefenbaker movement and particularly repelled by the Diefenbaker tactics of recent years.

Nor can he be regarded as an isolated figure caught in the snares of Toronto schemers. His closest ally is Mr. Fairweather of New Brunswick, a New Frontiersman who turns up with suspicious regularity at gatherings of intellectuals. It may also be significant that most of the bright young newcomers of 1965 (none of whom can have been involved in the sordid doings of 1956), seem to have yielded to the seditious attentions of the rebel group.

There is a persuasive theory in Ottawa that Mr. Diefenbaker after his showing in the November election, could easily have won reindorsement if he had not rebuffed but instead had welcomed at the outset a review of his leadership. Any clash could then have been interpreted as a mere affair of personalities. The course actually followed has given his opponents an issue. It seems supremely ironical that the cause of Mr. Diefenbaker, who seldom misses an opportunity to dwell on the historic struggles for parliamentary freedom, should now have to be defined by arguments which do so strongly suggest a party leadership theory of divine right.

It may be significant that the Ontario provincial convention, which gave Mr. Diefenbaker a lukewarm reception, has been followed by successive peace feelers. There was, first, an indication that Senator Grossart might undertake the role of conciliator and then the suggestion that Mr. Maloney, the Diefenbaker candidate, and Mr. Camp, the candidate of the anti-Diefenbaker forces, should both withdraw in favor of a new entry who could bind the wounds and restore party unity.

There was not the slightest indication on Thursday that either of these olive branches was acceptable to the rebels.

Mr. Diefenbaker is a resourceful, tooth-and-nail fighter who may well defeat a group of rebels not greatly renowned for their organizational ability. But his problem is not simply to win but to win so decisively as, in effect, to destroy the opposition. It is difficult to see how the Conservatives can hope to make headway, if he remains the leader of a party at war with itself and largely prevented by its own deep divisions from functioning as an effective team in this Parliament and in the country.

FROM WASHINGTON — By JOSEPH ALSOP

Civil War Possible in China Soon

EVEN the most cautious China-watchers are now convinced that civil war may perhaps break out in Communist China before very long. The strange and breath-taking power struggle that has been going on for many months has finally begun to engender open civil conflict in Peking itself. And from civil conflict to civil war is not, after all, a very long step.

Alsop

This latest development would be all but unbelievable if it had not been reported by reliable eye-witnesses. In brief, the present power struggle started with a grim drumfire of attacks on the Peking party committee. After months of denunciation of his leading subordinates, the first secretary and boss of Peking, Peng Chen, one of the most powerful of all Chinese Communist leaders, was abruptly purged and later, reportedly, sent to jail.

Logically, Peng Chen's replacement, Li Hsueh-feng, another powerful figure in the party apparatus, should then have cleaned house in Peking, in accordance with the wishes of Peng Chen's enemies. Yet some weeks ago, a new drumfire of attacks on Li Hsueh-feng began to be heard.

This culminated, a few days ago, in a physical attack on Li's headquarters, the Communist party offices for Peking, by a vociferously angry mob of young Red Guards. After howling slogans against Li all day, the Red Guards rushed the big office building, sacked it and occupied it.

On the same day, and apparently in reprisal, an attack was evidently threatened on the offices of Tao Chu, the former Canton boss who has been abruptly elevated to fourth place in the party hierarchy. While Li Hsueh-feng's headquarters were being sacked, Tao Chu's propaganda ministry was suddenly blacked out, and was surrounded by trucks full of troops. One thinks, indeed, of medieval Rome, with the Colonnas and Orsinis raiding and counter-raiding one another's urban strongholds.

These astonishing developments have already been reported elsewhere, albeit in an overly muted manner in the opinion of the wisest China-watchers. Also deserving notice, though unreported, were two horrendously bloodthirsty leading editorials in the main official newspaper, the "People's Daily." The theme of both was the danger of showing the slightest mercy to internal enemies: and both smelled of a coming blood-purge.

Altogether, the kind of thing is now happening in Communist China that has often presaged civil war in other countries. The struggle is clearly between the group headed by Mao Tse-tung, and including his new heir, Lin Piao, as well as Tao Chu, and the old line bosses of the party apparatus, with whom Li Hsueh-feng has evidently thrown in his lot.

Since last August, when the Mao-Lin Piao group unleashed the Red Guards all over China, there have been numerous episodes in a whole series of provincial centres comparable to the Red Guards' sack and occupation of the Peking party offices. But as far as is known, only one of the provincial party chieftains, the first secretary of Heilunkiang province, has as yet surrendered and accepted replacement.

Struggle Expanding

Until now, moreover, nothing has happened in Peking itself that even remotely compares with the Red Guard attack on the party offices or the apparent threat to Tao Chu's offices. This threat, it should also be noted, was combined with a rash of wall posters denouncing Tao Chu by name. In sum, the internal struggle, instead of subsiding, is growing more open and more embittered.

One has the impression that the resistance to the Mao-Lin Piao group was at first strictly local and sporadic, but it is now beginning, so to say, to coagulate. Since August, when the drama opened, the highly placed prospective victims of the "great proletarian cultural revolution" seem to have begun to communicate with one another, to organize their resistance and thus to gain strength.

The real question mark, of course, is the army. The former army chief of staff, General Lo Jui-Ching, was purged and disgraced even before Peng Chen. Official publications have spoken of a crisis of dissidence, a dire spasm of military doubt about the sacred thought of Mao, that shook the army before General Lo Jui-ching's removal.

The question is whether the army can now be relied on by Mao and Lin Piao, after experiencing this crisis. Maybe the army is truly reliable, in which case Lin and Mao will win this round. But if the army is reliable, one wonders why on earth the internal struggle has been permitted to continue and grow worse, month after angry month. And if the army is not reliable, the fell time of "The Passing of the Mandate of Heaven" may conceivably be at hand.

After lying under seal at Esquimalt for nearly three weeks, during which time heavy fines were imposed on her, the Japanese schooner Suian Maru will today obtain her release and clearance and will leave as soon as possible.

She had been held and fined $3,075 for allowing Japanese emigrants to land at Becher Bay without inspection by immigration and customs officials. The men were captured and will return to Japan.

Seeking Volunteers

Are there kindhearted people who would volunteer to supervise the lunch time activities of four to six active youngsters on a regular basis?

The Victoria Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children has a small classroom in the Mental Health Centre and the teacher has to care for these children from 9 to 2:30 daily without respite. If there were someone who could come during the lunch hour once a week and take the children out to a park or playground to play, it would be a tremendous help to the teacher and consequently to the children.

Although these are children with behavior problems, a responsible person with patience and understanding will not find them difficult to handle. Anyone interested please contact Mrs. Stewart Maikle at 477-1929 after 3 p.m.—Mrs. R. Skelton, Mrs. T. Leason and Mrs. D. Shaw, Publicity Committee, Victoria Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children.

"With Utter Disgust"

It was with utter disgust that I read the teachers' ad, in your paper. The ad suggests that all tradesmen receive $7,900 and teachers can never go beyond $10,000.

I am a highly skilled pattern maker with 38 years in the trade. Last year I worked a full year and my gross wages were $6,529. I am in the highest scale possible. The principal at the junior high where my son teaches is paid $14,500. My son is just over 30, and has his B.A. degree. He personally told me he receives over $10,500 for the 10 working months. — R.A.R.

Convalescent Homes

The demand for more hospital accommodation is real and serious.

Many of our beloved sick fellow citizens often wait several weeks for very necessary treatment or an operation.

The answer probably is for the provincial government to construct throughout the province, preferably by the seashore or in the country, health-giving convalescent homes where the patients could take part—when advisable—in enjoyable light exercise and games with continued treatment after an operation, etc.

With a smaller staff it could be less expensive than regular hospitals, and leave more ward beds for urgent cases. —C. L. Clarke, 337 Simcoe.

Slanted

The heading "Caption Slanted" over a news item in the Oct. 22 issue was surely apt.

One might almost say that your newspaper excels in the use of the inaccurate, slanted headline. This is obvious in several areas of news coverage with particular emphasis on the anti-American line.—A Reader.

Canadian Social Revolt Is Broadening

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—A common strain with deep political implications runs through the strikes of postal workers and airline machinists currently threatening to tie up the Canadian economy, and the labor disputes earlier this year on the railways, at the Steel Company in Hamilton and the International Nickel Company in Sudbury.

In each case, the union executives seem to have lost control of their rank and file. Instead of having to whip their members into a mood militant enough to justify their call for a walkout, the union executives have given the impression of running behind the membership to join the picket lines.

Newman

This has made the settlement of the disputes very much more difficult, because the enormous wage hikes that have been granted can serve only to shunt the basic discontent into a temporary reprieve for the economy without even touching the basic problems. This new mood of union members is only the most noticeable expression of a general ferment that is gathering momentum in almost every sector of Canadian life.

So far, it's more a search for a meaningful political framework than an organized revolt against established institutions, but all the same it represents a marked change of direction from the instinct for order which has historically been so strong in Canadian society.

These forces of change are becoming evident in some apparently disconnected recent trends and events. The housewives' boycott of the supermarkets is one example. Canadian housewives are hardly a group that has any militant tradition yet they are now embarked on a search for identifiable villains in the high cost of food spiral.

Tractor Parade

Last summer's tractor protest parades, led by farmers from some of Ontario's richest counties, was part of the same phenomenon.

The astonishing success of the "open line" radio shows, such as those run by Larry Solway in Toronto, Pat Burns in Montreal and Jack Thompson in Ottawa, also reflects this growing trend, by providing public expression to the pent-up resentment of authority which now seems to burn across the country.

In the same category is the overnight success of the CBC's new drama series, "Wojeck," which is about a big-city coroner who crusades every week against the large, faceless institutions, intrinsic to the metropolitan life most Canadians lead.

The sect which has grown up around Richard Needham's brilliant but nihilistic column in the Toronto Globe and Mail is yet another example.

All these portents indicate the widening of social revolt from youth (where it is expected) to Canadians well into middle age and from the economically oppressed to citizens in nearly every income category.

The American social critic, Paul Goodman, writing recently in the New York Times Review of Books, has analyzed what he calls "the psychology of being powerless"; that is the reactions people have to the terrible frustration of feeling that history is out of control and that our society no longer works.

"To expect disaster," he writes, "and desert the sinking ship is not a political act but it is often a profoundly creative one, both personally and socially. Going it alone may allow for new development. For instance, the youth of the beat movement cut loose, invented a morals and a culture ... and had on the whole a good influence. More generally ... the decision to go it alone is characteristic of waves of populism such as we are now surprisingly witnessing in the U.S., on the streets, on campuses, at meetings of city councils."

In Canada, this very nearly spontaneous questioning of authority has yet to find any political expression, but if it ever does, it could become an irresistible force.

"There can be little doubt that the general chagrin with politics among people of vitality flows from the long-term leadership vacuum in our federal government. The failure of either John Diefenbaker or Lester Pearson to identify any worthwhile national purpose has led individuals to search for their own sense of direction.

Can't Stand Still

A great vibrant nation like Canada cannot stand still; it must either march forward or slip into near chaos. Our political leaders, by standing still and relying on expediency rather than principle, have lost contact with the mood of their electorate.

This loss of contact has brought about an "end of ideology" which has drained Canada's democratic process of the vitality that stems from the controversy over great issues.

The prime concern of the next generation of Canadian politicians will be to make people once again feel at home with their institutions.

Quebec's Federal Liberals Are Moving to the Attack

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — A spate of speeches by Quebec Liberal ministers and MPs to Quebec audiences during the last two weeks is a further sign, atop the hard line at the recent federal-provincial conference, that Ottawa has reversed its strategy in dealing with Quebec.

Waring

Ottawa's strategy during the Lesage Liberal regime was one of softness and retreat. Premier Lesage systematically set about aggrandizing Quebec's authority at Ottawa's expense, and federal Liberals from Quebec kept discreet silence. But now that a Union Nationale government has taken power in Quebec, the federal Liberals from that province have finally found their tongues in defence of confederation and a strong federal government. The strategy is attack.

Those expounding the new line include Manpower Minister Marchand, Forestry Minister Sauve, Jean Chretien, parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Sharp, and Bryce Mackasey, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Nicholson.

* * *

Mr. Chretien appropriately took the hard dollars-and-cents line in his Nov. 1 speech at Cap de la Madeleine. He produced arresting statistics to show that despite the economic advances of six years of "quiet revolution," the fact is that "all other economic regions in our country are moving ahead at a much faster pace."

His thesis is that Quebec cannot afford independence or any other political arrangement that would separate it from the rest of Canada. "The realities of economics" require Quebec to take "full advantage of our participation in the nation that is known as Canada," he said.

But it was when he detailed the financial benefits that Quebec receives from Ottawa that the economic cost of separatism was made most clear. In 1964, he said, Ottawa disbursed $861 millions in family allowances, unemployment assistance and equalization payments. Quebec taxpayers contributed 25 per cent of the total, and Quebec residents received 35 per cent of the money disbursed. And under the new fiscal arrangements Quebec will receive more.

"Does Quebec really think it can afford to do without this major financial assistance?" he asked.

* * *

Forestry Minister Sauve too emphasized the great financial advantage accruing to Quebec under Prime Minister Pearson's "new federalism," and then went on to extoll his idea of "equal partnership" between French-Canadians and other Canadians. He has visibly watered down this idea, from equality of political muscle a year ago, to a new and practical concept that is essentially one of equality of opportunity.

Manpower Minister Marchand's comments in a recent TV appearance showed him a staunch advocate of strong federal government, and in favor of making "a real try of the Canadian constitution as it is," without amendments. The BNA Act, he said, is not the cause of Canada's social and economic ills.

Mr. Mackasey attacked the idea that Quebec should become an "associate state," a concept of quasi-independence that Rene Levesque, a member of the former Lesage government, advocated three years ago. It is, Mr. Mackasey said, "simply separatism in disguise."

But what these Liberals are saying was equally true when Lesage was premier — only then it was not politic to say so.

To Sell an Indian House Or to Hold It for Decay

By ART STOTT

The other evening I heard a lady, who is sincerely concerned about such matters, express distress over the sale of the historic Indian house of the late Chief William Scow, the elder, to a Seattle logger of means, who intends to remove it to Washington State and restore the building.

Stott

It was a shame, the lady thought, that the British Columbia authorities allowed the structure to be taken out of the country.

At the time she was talking to Dr. Clifford Carl, to whose opinion on such questions I give complete respect. Cliff presented the other side of the story, which happens to coincide with my layman's idea on how such matters should be handled.

His museum department didn't have the money to acquire the building—which he explained later was no longer a complete house. It now consists of four inside carved house posts, which some people call totems, and a beam overhead. But if money had been available for the purchase, Victoria hadn't anywhere to site the house, once restored.

* * *

He might also have drawn attention to the attitude of the present Chief Scow, who said: "This man (from Seattle) flew to Gilford Island to look at the structure. He said it was a masterpiece and he would reconstruct and preserve it. I sold under these conditions."

These are circumstances which appear to assure a home for the house. The planking which had been removed by its owners for other construction on Gilford Island will be replaced and the edifice will regain the appearance and dimensions it once had. The arrangement seems highly satisfactory to me. As a child, on a brief visit to the Queen Charlottes, I saw a one-time fine long house, with a magnificent outdoor pole, reduced to a heap of decay—one huge hewn timber resting on moss-covered foundations making their return to the soil and the base of the totem shaved down by some transient who had apparently wanted dry cedar to kindle his fire. The Scow house should escape that.

I doubt if there is anyone in this part of the world who appreciates more fully than Cliff Carl the desirability of retaining for display and for study the artifacts of our Indian peoples. He is not given to careless disregard for such physical examples of an earlier culture. But he feels that if British Columbia cannot use some of the material for its own purposes, it is desirable to permit someone else to acquire it for preservation and display.

He makes the point that all collections from Africa, for instance, aren't kept in Africa —that it is valuable to permit peoples of distant lands to see samples of art and works of peoples remote from them.

* * *

I'm probably no better informed because I've seen one of Cleopatra's Needles on the Thames Embankment, instead of Alexandria, where I've never been, or in Heliopolis, where they were first stood on end. But I have enjoyed a glow of self-importance from dragging fellow passengers from a rubber-neck bus to see the totem pole in front of the Palais de Chaillot when good luck and wifely determination landed us in Paris last summer.

I'm not really a totem pole man, but the West Coast Indian carving gave me a small contact with home and a brief instant of attention among fellow-travellers (non-Communist).

It makes pretty good sense to me to spread these things around—so long as we're not depriving ourselves or future local generations. Better, with such objects, to preserve them than to allow them to disintegrate and sink back into their native soil. If they give pleasure to foreigners, that's an added bonus.

And with a little ingenuity, the local tourist promoters might finance a trip to the new site of the Scow home by Dr. Carl, with a suitable presentation plaque for the restored building. Its wording could say: "For a more complete collection, visit Victoria's museum and Thunderbird Park."

YOUTHFUL SUICIDE RATE HIGH

By BERNARD GAVZER

Suicide is the No. 2 cause of death among American college students. Among those aged 15 to 19 it is the No. 3 cause of death.

There are nearly three known adolescent suicides a day and some experts say the true figure may be 5,000 a year.

"The most onerous suicide is the suicide of the adolescent," says Dr. Edwin S. Shneidman of Los Angeles, special consultant to the U.S. National Institute of Mental Health.

"In such a suicide we are troubled with the assault upon our accepted values. We are tormented because we say, 'Here is a person who is about to enter the external potential of life and yet because of internal conflict takes his own life'."

Why should such young people kill themselves, or try to?

"There are five categories of problems most troubling to adolescents," says Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, institute director.

"These are problems the young people do not readily discuss with people who are in the position to solve them. They are: Parents, poverty, peers, broken romances and pregnancy."

In the college atmosphere, there is intolerable pressure for some young people. Often it is indirectly applied.

Failure Feared

"My parents have not said a thing to me about maintaining a high average," says a Cleveland girl. "But ... I don't think I could face them if I failed."

A student attending the University of Connecticut says: "I was always bothered when final exams came, but now it's too much. If I don't really score high, then it means that I could end up being drafted and going to Viet Nam. When I think about that, I think sometimes I'd rather kill myself."

School problems make students a high-risk group. The New Jersey education department said a three-year study showed 41 students killed themselves and 738 tried but failed. Thousands made suicide threats

The most common reason is the pressure to achieve high grades. The danger period is just before examinations. A recent study indicates that by the time 1966 ends, as many as 90,000 U.S. college students will have threatened suicide and 1,000 will have succeeded.

"I am not one who believes that suicide is related to humidity or the phases of the moon," Dr. Shneidman says. "I believe it has to do with a damp and drizzly November in the soul."

In defining suicidal people the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Centre concluded: "They are no longer able to sweep their feelings under the rug of indifference and denial. They must face their feelings of hoplessness, helplessness and dependency."

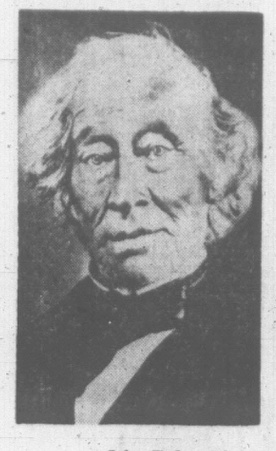
Founders Of B.C.



John Tod

Armed only with a surgical knife, fur trader John Tod was credited with saving Fort Kamloops from Indian attack in 1847.

Riding out to meet a war party, Tod told the Indians there was smallpox in the fort. Then with his lancet (some writers called it a tobacco knife) and lymph, he began to vaccinate the warriors and told them to carry their right arms in slings. The ruse took the steam out of the raid.

This is one of the best known tales of Tod. He was one of the early Hudson's Bay Company traders west of the Rockies and in 1826 had charge of Fort McLeod.

Joined in Teens

Tod was born in Scotland in 1794 and joined the company while still in his teens. He served in isolated Hudson's Bay Company eastern forts before being sent west.

Made a chief trader in 1834 he returned briefly to England and married the same year.

He left the service in 1852 after a leave of absence during which he settled in Victoria. Soon after, he was appointed to the Legislative Council of Vancouver Island.

He served on a committee which saw the first school built and became a justice of the peace.

He died in Victoria in 1882.

Smith Rebellion Threat To Zambian Copperbelt

LUSAKA — If the Zambian Copperbelt should explode into racial violence it will be a direct result of the failure to bring the Smith rebellion in neighboring Rhodesia visibly closer to defeat — after almost a year of British efforts to do so.

The link between the Copperbelt and the Rhodesian situation is direct. Over 60 per cent of the 6,000 white miners and technicians in Zambia come from Rhodesia and South Africa.

Not only are their sympathies overwhelmingly with the Smith rebels and with the Vorster regime in South Africa, but they make little effort to disguise their sympathies in a country which is dedicated to destroying the remnants of white supremacy on its borders.

Little Help

Only a minority of the white mining community, and rather more of the white commercial community in the large towns, show any signs of wishing actively to cooperate with President Kaunda's policy for creating a non-racial society in Zambia.

The only reason they stay in Zambia is that it offers them better pay than they can hope to get elsewhere. And the only reason they are allowed to stay as temporary migrants is because the training of Zambians was so long delayed under British colonial rule that the country is unable to provide the trained technicians and artisans to operate Zambia's copper mines now or in the near future.

At Zambia's Independence in October 1964, both sides accepted their relationship as a temporary expedient. The racial situation was bad enough on the Copperbelt before independence but it became rapidly more tense after the start of the Rhodesian rebellion in November 1965.

President Kaunda found himself in an almost hopeless dilemma. On the one hand he was faced with an actual or potential Fifth Column sitting astride the wealth of his country; but he was powerless to remove them because there was no easy replacement for the experienced miners of the Copperbelt.

On the other hand, he was faced with increasing discontent among black Zambians over their ambitions for better-paid jobs in the mining industry and over their resentment of white racialist attitudes. These attitudes, moreover, were exploited by political opponents of President Kaunda's policies.

With this delicately balanced situation he avoided as long as possible taking action that was likely to upset the white miners — and thus start an exodus by them to the south — while trying his best to damp down the feelings of black Zambians. Despite half-a-dozen sabotage attempts President Kaunda still held back.

When, six months ago, he found that some of the white expatriate officers in his Security Services were actively engaged in helping the Smith regime, he acted with firmness in terminating the contract of a number of officers who, for one reason of another, had made themselves persona non grata. Subsequently when he found white miners defying the government in promoting strikes he restricted a few of their ringleaders. This action was salutary.

PRESIDENT KAUNDA
... in the hot seat

But despite President Kaunda's almost weekly pronouncements, reaffirming his pledge to establish a non-racial society and denouncing white and black racialism alike, the situation on the Copperbelt has continued to deteriorate.

Having delayed serious action for almost a year, the president finally felt that the risks of acting against a score or so of South African, Rhodesian and British miners and technicians carried less risks than having his policies of restraint appear as weakness.

Two of the risks implicit in his action were clearly foreseen. First, the extremists among the whites would take reprisals by way of sabotage and, secondly, black militants would seek to force wider action than the president favors.

In any event the immediate situation following the expulsion of a number of whites recently was likely to be tense — and when a huge petrol storage tank exploded it was natural enough that the immediate suspicion would be of sabotage. This gave the black militants the excuse to act on their own. But President Kaunda has been quick to show that he will no more tolerate the law being taken into the hands of black mobs than of white gangs.

Mobody can tell what lies ahead of the Copperbelt so long as the Rhodesian rebellion continues: it is in every sense the frontline of white-dominated southern Africa, but lying wholly within an independent African State its situation is both precarious and threatening.

Undermined

The tragedy is that the insecurity over the Copperbelt is undermining President Kaunda's deep commitment to building up an exemplary non-racial society along the frontiers of the south. So long as he acts with tolerance his leadership is respected abroad but appears like weakness at home. And the moment he acts firmly, though in a strictly limited way and against a small number of people (blacks as well as whites), he is in danger of being regarded abroad as the man responsible for a flare-up of racial troubles, although he gains more respect at home.

President Kaunda is today the man in the hottest seat in Africa. And he will remain in this unenviable position until the Smith regime is brought down.

Money Bill Again Stalled As Tories Lash Unification

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives again got nowhere Tuesday with repeated Commons demands to have the government change its mind and send the controversial unification bill to the defence committee prior to second reading.

Even a window-shaking shout from Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) failed to ruffle Defence Minister Hellyer, who said he could see no reason for changing normal procedure.

As a result, the Commons is scheduled today to start the eighth day of debate on a money bill that most believe must be approved to meet a pending civil service payroll and other November expenses.

About 60,000 civil servants are supposed to receive mid-month pay cheques Thursday.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette read a telegram from the Public Service Alliance — the civil service organization—protesting the Commons delay in approving the interim supply bill.

Mr. Caouette said the government could issue necessary orders to issue the cheques. He felt they would be honored because the supply bill has to be passed some time.

SETS CONDITION

In a blunt exchange with Mr. Hellyer, Conservative MPs made it clear interim supply could be approved in 10, 15 or 45 minutes — depending on which speaker made the offer—if the unification bill was sent to the defence committee prior to second reading.

Mr. Hellyer was adamant. The government had supplied sufficient information on unification and had been doing so since the white paper on defence in 1963.

The views of opponents to unification are well-publicized and well-known, he said. The time had come to make a decision with a vote on second reading—approval in principle.

Taking the floor late in the sitting, Mr. Hellyer termed the anti-unification arguments advanced during the seven days of debate both irrelevant and substantially fictitious.

Eric Winkler (PC — Grey Bruce), the Conservative whip, said the government will carry the responsibility if it runs out of money because of the prolonged unification argument.

He claimed Mr. Hellyer brought in the unification bill during the money supply debate in an attempt to "ram this through and shut us up."

STARTLED HOUSE

When Mr. Hellyer had the floor, Mr. Horner, a major heckler, startled the Commons with a piercing shout of "no" following an exchange between Mr. Hellyer and Gordon Churchill, a former Conservative defence minister.

The anguished cry came after Mr. Hellyer, who kept cool during the heckling storm, rejected a Churchill claim about the relevancy of a charge that Mr. Hellyer had misled the house.

As in previous interim supply debates, the opposition is holding up the bill in the hope of pressing the government into a concession.

The opposition claimed victories last March and in November, 1964, when it successfully pressed the Liberals to set up judicial inquiries into the George Spencer security case and the Lucien Rivard attempted bribery case.

The minister insists that the normal procedure be followed in debating the unification bill—committee hearings only after a Commons vote on the principle of the measure.

The debate continues today and the crunch is expected Thursday.

Enthusiastic Welcome Given Brain-Damaged Child Centre

Residents of Prospect Lake district gave an enthusiastic welcome to Dr. Charles Gregory's home for brain-damaged children at a meeting Tuesday.

After questioning Dr. Gregory on the scope and nature of plans for his "Island Centre" home in the area, members of the Prospect Lake District Asspciation warmly applauded.

Dr. Gregory resigned as head of the provincial mental health centre in Victoria last week.

The doctor told an audience of about 40 at the Prospect Lake Community Hall that the centre at 5575 West Saanich Road is already in operation and treating four children.

He said he soon hoped to be treating 12 young brain-damaged children. Their care would require from 15 to 20 professional staff members.

"There is no such residential treatment in Canada," said Dr. Gregory after pointing out that the centre would "cater to" brain-damaged children with coincident emotional disturbances.

Besides the eight-room house on the 25-acre property, he said he hoped to build three or four cottages for the young people.

"We are also planning an assessment centre and day school in Victoria, although we are not yet quite sure where."

Residents of the centre, controlled and administered by himself, would come from all over B.C., referred to his care by government and private agencies.

Agencies would pay for care on a per diem basis.

He said he would have no objection to a community group taking over the centre if it were well established in two or three years.

Brain-damaged children are one of three major categories of children for which special mental care is commonly needed, he said.

Others were mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed children.

He said that emotional disturbances are frequently associated with brain damage, his primary interest at the centre.

In answer to question from the floor, Dr. Gregory said the children at the centre should be no more trouble to the community than other children.

He said experience at the Sevenoaks treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children, also in Saanich, showed neighbors had no great cause for complaint "except for a little damage to fences."

Dr. Gregory said he opened the centre not only because he wanted "to help these children," but because more would be learned through studying them

ASSAULT CASE ADJOURNED ONE WEEK

Police Deny Hitting Youth in Jaw or Stomach

A youth charged with assaulting a policeman in the city lockup claimed in court Tuesday he was held by officers while he was punched in the stomach and jaw.

"I tink I'm being framed," said James Erdman of 1156 May St. But he said he could not identify the officers he claims either held or hit him.

Magistrate Ostler adjourned the assault case against Erdman a week for judgment.

Constable Murray McArthur told the court he was hit on the shoulder and kicked in the groin by the accused in a melee beside the jail's booking desk on the afternoon of Oct. 11.

Erdman was brought to the lockup to be booked for intoxication. He lunged forward to assist a friend, Bob McRae, also being booked for being drunk and being held on the floor while Constable McArthur tried to remove handcuffs holding him.

It was while Constable McArthur was warding Erdman off that he was struck and kicked, the officer said.

Both Erdman and McRae claimed the accused was ordered to remove his jacket. When his jacket was partially off and confining his arms, Erdman said both his arms were grabbed and he was struck half a dozen times.

He also claimed his head was smashed against a counter.

Asked why he had not sought medical attention when released the next day on bail, he said his only injury had been a bruise on the jaw.

Both Constable McArthur and Constable Kenneth Horsman denied Erdman was struck at any time.

Church Unity 'Can't Fail'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the 19th session of the Anglican Synod of B.C., were told Tuesday to press towards unity with the United Church because failure would adversely affect both churches.

Bishop Godfrey Gower of New Westminster said: "We can't turn back—if we do neither the Anglican Church nor the United Church will be the same."

Bishop Gower said further meetings between the Anglican and United churches of Canada will be held next week to discuss the next course of action towards unity.

"There is still a lot of education to be done," he said. "I don't think either church will split up on things that count."

BURIAL-AT-SEA FOR MEMORIAL

HALIFAX (CP — A navy bugler sounded Last Post and four granite blocks from the demolished National Seamen's Memorial here were given burial-at-sea in nearby Bedford Basin Monday.

The blocks were slipped over the side of a floating navy crane into the deepest part of the basin, a large extension of Halifax harbor where hundreds of merchant ships lay at anchor in the Second World War awaiting convoy sailing orders.

The burial, conducted by two navy chaplains of the Protestant and Roman Catholic faiths was arranged by the navy at the request of the parks and historic sites branch of the department of northern affairs and national resources.

Two 10-to-15-pound blocks bore the names of seamen who lost their lives at sea in Canadian naval and merchant marine service in the First and Second World Wars.

Two smaller stones, weighing about 200-250 pounds apiece, were inscribed with the dates the two wars.

BASE BEING ERODED

The seamen's memorial on Citadel Hill overlooding downtown Halifax and the waterfront was torn down recently because engineers working on restoration of the old fortress discovered that water seepage around the monument was eroding its base and citadel ramparts.

The northern affairs department, in consultation with the Commission, decided the monument was beyond repair and that a "more appropriate setting stressing the true significance of the memorial was more desirable."

A new memorial is to be built by the War Graves Commission and the federal government in Point Pleasant Park in this city's south end, at a site facing the sea.

The granite tablets, bearing the names of more than 3 000 seamen, were buried in Bedford basin because the department said it felt they should be retained on Canadian soil

CANADIAN 'RED GUARDS' PROPOSED

TORONTO (CP) — W. A. Scott of Victoria, in Toronto on a self-styled crusade to solve problems of bilingualism and biculturalism, suggested Tuesday that Canada establish a Maple Leaf Guards similar to the militant Red Guards of China.

In an interview, he said some of the more violent Red Guard action could be excused by the fact that China is still in the throes of a revolution.

The Chinese guards have cemented together the generations of their country in the present cultural revolution, he said. Canada's Maple Leaf Guards could travel from coast to coast performing the same task.

Denmark Election November 22

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — The Danish government has called an election for Nov. 22 following a cool reaction from Parliament to proposals for a pay-as-you-earn income tax plan.

Announcing his government's intention to resign, Premier Jens Otto Krang told Parliament last week. "The people cannot be faced with another inconclusive session."

Princess Margrethe, as regent, later provided the signature necessary before Parliament could be dissolved.

The princess is regent in the absence of her parents. King Frederick is in Italy and Queen Ingrid is in the south of France.

The tax proposals were intended to end a long-standing practice of taxing income one year after it has been earned.

Earlier this year Krag said he considered parliamentary backing was vital for tax reform.

The ruling Social Democratic party has governed without a majority but received the backing, from bill to bill, of the smaller Radical Social—Liberal party.

PEARSON URGES

Use Prosperity To Bolster Mind

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson urged Canadians Tuesday night to use their material prosperity more effectively to cultivate the Canadian identity and achieve the spiritual rewards of the Good Society.

As the country approaches the beginning of its second century of nationhood, a new appreciation of the non-material aspects of a multi-cultural Canadianism is emerging.

The prime minister, addressing the anniversary dinner of the Canadian Italian Business and Professional Men's Association of Toronto, said this new Canadianism has been strengthened and enlivened by immigrant peoples.

GOOD SOCIETY

Then he spoke of the Good Society for Canada, as opposed to the Great Society that President Johnson has mapped out for the United States.

"All this . . . convinces me that in Canada we can achieve, not so much the Great Society, but something more important, build a nation not dedicated primarily to bigness and power, but to the most enduring values; a nation devoted to excellence in all things: Excellence in our workmanship and our craftsmanship; excellence in our industry and our arts; excellence in our public institutions, in our teaching, in all our human relations."

Canadians had begun to understand that it is just as essential to direct their national energies and public policies to developing the resources of the mind and spirit as it was to develop material resources.

"We must now learn to use material prosperity more effectively to sustain the needs of the Canadian spirit and for the cultivation of the Canadian identity.

ONE OF LARGEST B.C. SPREADS

Chilco Ranch Will Be Sold

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—The Chilco Ranch, one of the largest cattle spreads in British Columbia, will go on the auction block in a three-day sale starting Thursday.

The ranch, 50 miles west of this northern Cariboo country community, embraces 50,000 acres of freehold and 1,000,000 acres of grazing leases. It has some 1,500 head of cattle, 75 breeding bulls, a complete machinery shop and a light aircraft for cattle spotting.

The ranch was last sold in 1961 for $2,000,000 to a syndicate headed by John Minor of Abbey, Sask. The following year Minor was killed in Surrey when his light plane crashed on a flight to Vancouver.

At that time the ranch carried 5,000 head of cattle.

Bryce Stringham of Lethbridge, one of the directors, said the directors had decided to sell the huge spread because they were not able to run it without Minor.

Buses will be run from as far north as McLeod Lake to bring cattlemen to the sale. Provisions will be made to truck the auctioned cattle to railhead.

The Chilco ranch was originally homesteaded by Pete Bergault in 1860 and has since had numerous owners, most of whom extended its boundaries. The home ranch now is on the south bank of the Chilcotin River at Hanceville and grazing land extends to Chilco Lake, 75 miles to the west.

HELEN BAKER

Memory Takes In 81 Years Of People and Things in City

By ELIZABETH FORBES

One of the things that makes Helen Baker an interesting person to know is a memory that goes back 90 years (she celebrated that milestone last Saturday) and with 81 of them lived in this city.

Forbes

Born in Surrey, England, she came to Victoria with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Marrion, when she was nine.

"Everything was so new and strange," she reminiscences now.

When Indian women came to the door with baskets of clams Mrs. Marrion rushed to lock her children in the bedroom. Chinese "with pigtails" created much the same situation.

It wasn't long, however, until the family settled into "a happy life."

Mr. Marrion was accepted as an engineer at Esquimalt dockyard and they lived in a house with five acres of land on the north side of Hillside Avenue, not far from Douglas Street.

★ ★ ★

"It was nearly all trees and meadows then," Helen Baker tells you.

When the first streetcar was routed up Douglas Street, Mr. Marrion took his daughters and a son on the inaugural ride.

School days started in a tiny wooden building on Kings Road at the corner of what is now Wark Street. One of the pupils was Simon Fraser Tolmie, later to be premier of British Columbia.

"He was older than we were and he was our champion," Mrs. Baker remembers. "When other children teased us about our English accents and our English clothes, he stood up for us."

There was Sunday school, too, in the old St. John's iron church (where the Hudson's Bay store now stands).

★ ★ ★

Finally the Marrion girls were grown-up and beaux began to appear at the Hillside Avenue home.

Today, Helen looks back and laughs as she tells you — "I think my father's only disappointment was in the fact that none of us would marry the good English lads he brought to our home from Royal Navy ships anchored off Esquimalt."

She went to work as bookkeeper for the Victoria Ice Company, then situated on Discovery Street "at the back of the brewery." The owner, James Baker, was also head of Baker Brick and Tile Company "out on Douglas."

They fell in love, were married and started housekeeping in a cottage on Pembroke Street "close to big barns where horses and delivery vans were kept."

Mrs. Baker speaks proudly of the fact that her husband cut his first ice "when he was a young lad" from the centre of Swan Lake. He sold it the next summer from a basket on his arm and his first customer was Mrs. Duncan McTavish, a daughter of Sir James Douglas.

★ ★ ★

Later the ice was made in 240-foot blocks in the basement of the brewery.

In 1910 James Baker turned over the ice business to a nephew, Stan, built himself a solid brick home on Discovery Street behind the cottage, furnished it "from top to bottom" from the pioneer Weiler's store and, on his wife's birthday in that same year, gave it to her for a present.

"All we moved after we had breakfast that morning, was the food we had in the cottage and our Chinese cook who was with us for 28 years."

From then on the Bakers "travelled a bit" in the British Isles and in Europe, until his death in the mid-'30s. After that, Mrs. Baker lived on quietly in the big brick house until 1940.

Always active in community work, her proudest boast is that as a member of Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE, (she joined it 52 years ago), she was a leader in collecting funds for a sunroom that bears the chapter name and is still in use at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Special Lighting Planned

Special lighting will illuminate beauty spots in the 700-acre Rithet housing estate at Royal Oak, Saanich public works committee was told Tuesday night.

Developer Gordon Rolston said 110 large lamps, more powerful than ordinary home floodlights, will be required.

The committee suggested a petition be drawn up so street and special lighting can be installed on a local improvement basis.

In another matter, engineer Neville Life said he is trying to solve the problem of the smell from the sewage treatment plant at the municipal yard at McKenzie and Quadra.

The solution may involve installation of a burner in the stack to eliminate odors, he said.

A resident wrote Saanich saying "only an up-coast logger could find the words to describe this smell."

Court of Appeal Quashes Betting Case Conviction

A Victoria man convicted in city magistrate's court last December of unlawfully recording bets has had his conviction quashed by the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver.

Richard Flood, 636 Johnson, was charged Sept. 11, and paid a $750 fine Dec. 3.

City lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood conducted the appeal of Magistrate William Ostler's ruling.

The higher court did not give detailed reasoning for the reversal.

JEREMY

MARK

Family Combination Sweeps Prize Lists

Winning prizes comes easily to the Butler brothers, one a violinist, the other an engineer with a navy commission.

Sons of Rev. and Mrs. Canon Hilary Butler of 2684 Sea View, the talented young men seem to have a corner on the scholarship market.

Violinist Mark is now studying at the Royal College of Music in London, England, on three sought-after bursaries—the $500 Vancouver Foundation Bursary, the $400 Koerner Foundation Bursary and $160 IODE municipal bursary.

Son Jeremy found expression for a more practical bent at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., from which he graduated this year at the top of his class with a $1,000 National Defence scholarship as the outstanding naval cadet. Now a commissioned sub-lieutenant, Jeremy is taking his master of engineering degree at UBC.

Unemployment Shows Decline

OTTAWA (CP)—New industrial jobs more than offset farm layoffs in October and reduced unemployment in Canada to 195,000 from 205,000 in September. The level compared with 171,000 in October last year.

The level of unemployment at mid-October was 2.6 per cent of the labor force, compared with 2.7 per cent a month earlier and 2.4 per cent a year earlier.

A joint report by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said total employment increased slightly between September and October, a period when it usually declines.

An estimated 7,324,000 persons held jobs, which compared with 7,311,000 in September and represented a 4.5-per-cent increased over the level of 7,008,000 in October, 1965.

SHOWS SEASONAL DROP

Farm employment took its usual seasonal drop, shrinking 42,000 during the month to 561,000, which was 71,000 lower than a year earlier.

Non-farm employment grew by 55,000, with largest gains in manufacturing, trade and service industries at the community, business and personal levels. The growth in this area has averaged 20,000 during the last five years.

The job picture in brief (estimates in thousands):

	Oct. 1966	Sept. 1966	Oct. 1965
Labor force	7,519	7,516	7,179
Employed	7,234	7,311	7,008
Unemployed	195	205	171

Employment levels were strongly higher in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. The gains were smaller in the Atlantic and Prairie regions, which both showed an over-all drop in total employment because of the farm layoffs.

The Atlantic unemployment rate was 4.4 per cent, Quebec's 3.4 per cent, Ontario 1.8 per and British Columbia 3.9 per cent, the Prairies 1.3 per cent cent.

The drop of 10,000 in total unemployment compares with September - to - October changes in the past five years varying from an increase of 40,000 to a decrease of 5,000.

Adjusted to eliminate seasonal factors, the unemployment rate was 3.5 per cent at mid-October, compared with four per cent a month earlier and 3.3 per cent in October, 1965.

All but 27,000 of the unemployed had been out of work for six months or less.

SAVINGS BOND SALES SHOW HEALTHY GAIN

OTTAWT (CP) — Sales of the centennial series of Canada Savings Bonds to Nov. 4 totalled $711,000,000, it was announced Tuesday.

Sales to the general public of $483,000,000 were up 130 per cent over the same period in 1965. Payroll sales of $228,000,000 were an increase of 7.2 per cent.

Banks Urge Removal Of Ceiling

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Bankers' Association said Tuesday that interest rates continue to rise around the world, with no downturn in sight.

For this reason, the banks said in a brief to the Commons finance committee, Parliament should remove the 6 per cent ceiling on bank interest rates immediately and without qualification.

Assocition president S. T. Paton of Toronto said the new Bank Act is an improvement over existing legislation, but he called for more flexibility in government bank controls.

The new legislation sets out a flexible formula to limit bank interest rates. Government experts have testified that the ceiling would rise to 7 per cent under present tight money conditions.

The ceiling would disappear once interest on government bonds fell appreciably.

CLOSE QUESTIONING

Association officials were questioned closely by committee members and critical questioning was expected to continue during several sessions.

Gaston Clermont (L—Labelle) asked whether banks do not in fact evade the 6 per cent ceiling.

Leo Lavoie, vice-president of La Banque Provinicale du Canada, replied that insurance and service charges are added to the interest on personal loans. These were agreed to by borrowers. Mr. Paton said these service charges are discussed between banks but are not set by the association.

Mr. Paton, chief general manager and vice-president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said interlocking directorships between banks and trust and investment companies serve a usrful purpose and are not inimical to the public interest.

He said his association does not oppose the founding of new banks. Parliament granted a charter to the Bank of Western Canada last summer and a similar bill relating to the Bank of British Columbia is in the final stages of debate in the Commons.

Australia Sells Wheat To Chinese

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Australia has contracted to sell China 1,500,000 long tons 56,000,000 bushels of wheat at what could be the record price of $90,000,000 Australian about $108,900,000 Canadian, Chairman Allan Callaghan of the Australian wheat board said last week.

China has the option of buying up to 10 per cent more under the terms of the contract, signed in Hong Kong, Callaghan said.

The wheat will be shipped between next month and June, 1967. It is the largest single contract entered into by the Australian wheat board for shipment in such a limited period.

China is Australia's biggest wheat customer and signed contracts in June for a further sale of 600,000 tons of Australian wheat. The latest purchase would bring the total value of Australian wheat sales to China since June, 1960, to $640,000,000 Australian.

FOREIGN CAR MAKERS BLAST SAFETY PLANS

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The United States government, faced with heavy criticism from abroad, is likely to recast some of its impending auto-safety requirements for foreign cars sold in the United States, informed sources said Tuesday.

This action now is under serious study because foreign car manufacteurers almost without exception have complained that the proposed safety requirements for all cars were designed basically with bigger American cars in mind.

Petroleum Group Views Drill Rig

Members of the Canadian Petroleum Association Tuesday were given a first-hand look at "the biggest floating drill rig in the world," and came away impressed.

Accompanied by Harold Husband of Victoria Machinery Depot the group toured the giant oil rig at Ogden Point.

"It is a wonderful thing that a job of this size and complexity should be tackled by a local company," said G. B. McGillivray, manager of the B.C. division of the association.

The next stage in construction of the $9,000,000 rig is when the world's largest floating crane will be towed from San Francisco to place the rig's drilling deck at a level 200 feet above the water.

The rig is due for completion early next year.

A public service announcement to Air Canada customers

STRIKE ACTION BY MACHINIST'S UNION MAY FORCE SHUT-DOWN OF AIR CANADA FLIGHT OPERATIONS

Air Canada announces with regret that if the strike called by the International Association of Machinists for November 14 should occur, the airline would be forced to suspend all flight operations. This possibility has developed following almost three months of wage negotiations and conciliation activity.

Air Canada is hopeful that further discussions with the union representing more than 5,000 employees, including such classifications as mechanics, storemen and station attendants, will be successful. However, the airline is developing the necessary plans to suspend all flights if it is obliged to do so.

UNION ASKING FOR 42 PER CENT INCREASE AND A ONE-YEAR CONTRACT

Negotiations with the International Association of Machinists began last August 16. Discussions and subsequent hearings before a Federal conciliation board have failed to achieve a settlement.

The I.A.M. demand, on behalf of its membership, amounts to a total package increase of 42 per cent for a twelve month period. Union representatives are asking for a 20 per cent wage increase, applicable over a one-year contract. To this is added a further 22 per cent increase in fringe benefits. The total impact on Air Canada's wage bill for I.A.M. members in 1967 would be about an additional $15,000,000. Under the previous contract, top hourly rate for mechanics was $3.17.

AIR CANADA'S OFFER

The Company has offered an increase in wages of 40¢ an hour, representing an average increase to the hourly rates of about 15 per cent spread over the life of a new agreement. Air Canada has suggested a three-year term, but has indicated a willingness to consider a shorter period. Also proposed are special adjustments and fringe benefits amounting to an average additional 3½ per cent to be paid in the first year.

NEGOTIATIONS TO BE RESUMED

Despite the difference between union demands and its own offer, Air Canada will, during resumed negotiations, explore all avenues that could lead to a settlement and avert a strike, which would force the first shut-down of the airline in its more than 29 years of operation.

CONTINUED PUBLIC SERVICE

Air Canada ticket offices on a selected basis will remain open and make every effort to assist airline customers if a strike should occur. In addition, reservation services will be available to accept future travel planning requirements. Air Canada suppliers will be given individual advice on the handling of outstanding orders.

CANADIAN PRO LEAGUE FRANCHISE . . .

. . . 'POSSIBILITY' IN FUTURE

Senator Speaks . . . and Message Reaches Victoria

By HAL MALONE

Delight and doubt.

That was the reaction of sports and civic personalities today to a statement that Victoria had a future in an expanded Canadian Football League.

Victoria was one of the areas cited in an expansion suggestion Tuesday by Senator Keith Davey.

Speaking to the Advertising and Sales Club in Toronto, Davey said, "If football is going to fulfill itself as a truly national institution, this means expansion and we have to play football in all parts of Canada."

Davey is scheduled to take over as CFL commissioner from Winnipeg's Sydney Halter on Jan. 1, 1967, when league headquarters will be moved to Toronto.

"I would like to see 12 teams rather than the present nine," Davey said.

There were "possibilities in London, Northern Ontario, and places out west . . . notably Victoria and Saskatoon."

"Tremendous!" was the immediate reaction of Ken Hole, president of the fledgling Victoria Steelers of the minor professional Pacific Football League.

"It's a possibility within two to three years. I think Victorians would support it.

"People here haven't been exposed to the game. Once they get knowledge and the fever . . ."

Hole qualified his enthusiasm with "we (the Steelers) are in a good league now. I wouldn't want to say we would consider jumping to the CFL.

"Our plans are to build the PFL and expand it."

Two other Victorians expressed interest in Davey's speech. Like Hole, they felt a suitable stadium, customer support and financial backing were the key factors if the dream was to become a reality.

Alderman Mike Griffin: "I'm delighted. But my initial concern is—how can we support it?"

The alderman agreed that Victoria is about the same size as Regina, whose Roughriders have not only stayed alive but have also shown a modest financial profit on their operation.

"Centennial Stadium is designed to ultimately seat 20,000," Ald. Griffin said.

Steelers' general manager Pat Frumento: "Much would hinge on development of Centennial Stadium. Initially it will seat 3,500 but the long-range plan is to enlarge it.

"The population factor might not be a major problem. There are 300,000 people on Vancouver Island, most of them in the southern corner."

But Frumento candidly professed a preference for American football (which Steelers play) over the Canadian game.

"I like the four downs in U.S. ball. It opens the game and people like to see scoring."

The "doubts" came from Victoria Sports Council president Doug Fletcher.

"I have never heard of anything more stupid. The population isn't enough to warrant it. It takes an average of 15,000 to 18,000 per game to support a professional franchise. Maybe in 10 to 15 years . . ."

Fletcher agreed that Centennial Stadium could be expanded. "But where would the money come from?"

PAUL HENDERSON

Born To Stir Storm

DETROIT (CP)—It was only natural for Paul Henderson, a blossoming hockey star with Detroit Red Wings, to take up a winter sport.

He was born in a sleigh during a raging blizzard.

It happened at 6 a.m. Jan 28, 1943, at Kincardine, Ont., a Lake Huron community 100 miles northwest of London, Ont.

Henderson and his family actually come from Lucknow, about 15 miles southeast of Kincardine. Paul arrived several weeks ahead of schedule and the day before he was born his mother visited relatives at nearby Amberley. Mrs. Henderson began having birth pains around 5 o'clock the following morning.

A SLEIGH RIDE

Paul's father, Garnet Henderson, was overseas with the Canadian Provost Corps at the time so his grandfather, William Henderson, hitched a team of horses to the family sleigh.

They made an 11-mile trip over snow-plugged roads to the hospital at Kincardine but Paul scored a close victory, arriving when the sleigh was within sight of its destination.

A look at National Hockey League records indicates Paul still has the winning touch. In 2½ seasons with Detroit he has scored 46 goals and 13 of them, better than 25 per cent, have been game winners.

STILL HAS KNACK

During regular season play Henderson has scored 41 goals, including 11 winners, and in the playoffs has brought victories with two of five goals.

Two weeks ago, when he went on a four-goal binge, Detroit won its first game of the season, 5-3 over New York Rangers.

Last season was Henderson's best for winning markers. He scored nine winners and 22 goals in the schedule, then kept it up in the playoffs with two winners as Detroit made it to the Stanley Cup final against Montreal Canadiens before losing.

He also counted tying goals on five occasions and one of them, last Feb. 12 in Toronto, came in the last second of the game to give Detroit a 3-3 tie with the Maple Leafs.

ROUGH ON LEAFS

Henderson bagged two winners each against Montreal, New York and Boston Bruins last season but was roughest on the Leafs. Against Toronto he had three winners.

This must have been on the mind of Toronto coach George (Punch) Imlach last summer when he tried to make a deal for the talented left winger.

Detroit coach Sid Abel was in the market for defencemen, having lost Bill Gadsby through retirement and Doug Barkley because of an eye injury.

Imlach offered defenceman Carl Brewer but Abel wasn't interested for two reasons—Brewer walked out on the Leafs during training the previous autumn and would have to be lured out of retirement, and Imlach wanted Bruce MacGregor thrown in with Henderson in the deal.

And anyway, Abel had already said that he regarded Henderson as Detroit's next Gordie Howe, good enough to succeed the Wings's star right winger.

Now it looks as though Abel might be right.

THEY'LL RAMBLE FOR RENFREW

Mainstays of Renfrew Trojans' juvenile football team are quarterback Chris McMurdo (left) and halfback Ken Roed. Both are playing in their fourth season with team that Friday challenges Oak Bay Farmer Construction for British Columbia championship. Sudden-death final will be played at Macdonald Park at 1 p.m. Trojans have lost only one game in Mainland league play this season.

SPORTS FIGURES SCORE IN ARENA OF POLITICS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two names more famous in sports than in politics—Tunney and Mathias—Tuesday were sent to Congress by Californians.

Bob Mathias, two-time gold medal winner in the decathlon at the Olympic Games, ran as a Republican and upset seven-term veteran Democratic Representative Harlan Hagen.

John V. Tunney, son of former world heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, successfully won re-election as a Democrat.

Chinooks Had Best Be Fully Prepared

VANCOUVER — Judging from a Vancouver YMCA display Tuesday night, Victoria Chinooks had better be prepared to grab a tiger by the tail when they step over to the mainland for a pair of Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League chores at the weekend.

Chinooks play YMCA Saturday night and follow it up with a Sunday afternoon match against North Shore.

YMCA, opening with a blazing rush that staked them to a 40-29 lead at the half, defeated North Shore 71-62 in the second half of a Tuesday doubleheader.

CYO drubbed Killarney 82-60 in the opener.

Don Gately paced YMCA with 16 points but North Shore produced the night's high scorer, Warren Kline, with 22.

Tony Herbert (18), Brent McLean (13) and Dennis Kelley (12) shouldered the brunt of CYO's attack. Ron Olynyk and Jack Beauditt were standouts in a losing cause, scoring 18 and 17 points, respectively.

Minor Hockey Failing To Better Blueliners

TORONTO (CP) — There is a serious shortage of young defence prospects for the National Hockey League, says Bob Davidson, chief scout for Toronto Maple Leafs.

Davidson, an efficient defensive forward in his playing days, lays the blame on organized minor hockey which puts boys on teams as early as age six.

"Put a boy on a team and the emphasis is on winning. There is no way those little guys can control a puck so the coach tells the defencemen to get rid of it, throw it ahead, get it out of their zone before they make a costly mistake."

The result, Davidson says, is that the youngsters don't learn how to carry a puck in the style of some of the good rushing defencemen of the past.

He prefers old-style shinny in which "you got the puck and tried to keep it away from the other guy."

"Those kids learned to stickhandle, to control a puck. Nobody taught them."

What worries Davidson even more is that there's no solution in sight.

"Some coaches are moving defensively-inclined forwards back to defence. I've talked to some people running the kids' leagues, trying to persuade them to de-emphasize winning and concentrate more on teaching fundamentals; forget about minor infractions and just let the kids play. But I'm not getting too far."

RIDERS HEALTHY

Surprise Factor Ignored by Eagle

REGINA (CP)—Coach Eagle Keys, of Saskatchewan Roughriders, doesn't expect Winnipeg Blue Bombers to try anything new Sunday in the first game of the best-of-three Western Football Conference final.

"They have pretty good success with the stuff they normally run," he said in an interview. "There isn't much point in changing."

Blue Bombers reported no disabling injuries after their 16-8 triumph over Edmonton Eskimos in a sudden - death semi-final, so physical condition isn't expected to be a decisive factor in the first game.

"We're in good shape," Keys said of the Roughriders, regular-season champions who embarked on an 18-day layoff after the end of the regular season.

"We'll be without centre Galen Wahlmeier, who had a knee operation," said Keys. "We'll be all right there because Ted Urness can do the job." Urness, an all-star last season, normally gives way to Wahlmeier on kicks.

Without the layoff, Saskatchewan might have been hampered by injuries, Keys conceded. Defensive halfback Larry Dumelie and guard Jack Abendschan shook off ailments after the regular season ended and speedy Dale West had time to rest a cranky shoulder.

Keys professed great respect for Winnipeg quarterback Kenny Ploen, whose final-quarter magic eased the pressure in the semi-final.

PLOEN NOT TYPED

"We know he will throw the ball when he's in trouble and he will try to set up a balance between passing and running until he's in trouble," said Keys.

"Some quarterbacks can be typed—you can predict mostly what they're doing. But that doesn't apply to Ploen."

Saskatchewan blasted Winnipeg 38-14 Aug. 7 in the first meeting of the season between the two clubs but the next two tests were closer.

On Sept. 11, the Roughriders squeezed out a 27-24 decision in Winnipeg and the clubs played an 11-11 tie in Regina Oct. 2 with second-string quarterbacks at the helm.

The game will begin at 1 p.m. PST and will be televised on the CBC national network.

Clay, Cleve Take Day Off From Training

HOUSTON (AP)—Cassius Clay took a day off Tuesday as his handlers feared too much training for Monday's heavyweight title fight with Cleveland Williams.

"My main concern is his training too much," said Angelo Dundee, Clay's trainer.

There were similar reports from the Yoakum, Tex., farm where Williams will train until Friday.

Williams took Monday off after being knocked down Sunday by sparring partner Ben Black.

Trainer Perry Payne expressed no concern about Williams being knocked down but said the challenger was sluggish and needed rest.

BELTED TURNBOW

Dundee ordered Clay to rest after the champion knocked down Ben Turnbow late in the second of two sparring rounds Monday.

Dundee said he was amazed because it was the first knockdown for Clay during sparring rounds as a professional.

Clay said he plans to rest at least three months after the Williams fight.

Canuck Fans Flip Over an 'Old' Leaf

Young Brit Selby's an old Leaf, but because of him, Vancouver Canucks seem to be turning towards bigger and better days in the Western Hockey League.

Last year's rookie-of-the-year in the National League, Selby was assigned to Vancouver this week by Toronto Maple Leafs.

He produced handsomely Tuesday, scoring one goal and setting up another as Canucks made a move from the WHL depths with a 5-2 victory over Seattle Totems.

Selby's assignment to Vancouver completed a Toronto obligation created when centre Billy McNeill joined the Maple Leafs on a look-see basis this fall. McNeill has since been returned to Canucks, but last week decided to retire from hockey.

ABSENCE HASN'T HURT

But McNeill's absence hasn't seemed to hurt Vancouver too much. Tuesday night's victory, before a turnout of 2,641 fans, was Canucks' second in three games since McNeill walked out.

In addition to Selby's fine performance, coach Bert Olmstead of Vancouver also received yeoman support from Brian Hextall and goaltender Don Simmons.

Hextall, moving up to McNeill's former place on the first line, scored two goals.

Simmons was brilliant in goal, turning aside 31 shots. He was at his best in the opening period when Totems out-shot Vancouver 8-1.

NEW ARENA OPENS

Larry Popein and Ron Boehm scored Vancouver's other goals. Defenceman Bob Lemieux and winger Bill Dineen replied for Seattle.

Two games are on tap tonight. Victoria Maple Leafs, with a chance to step from fourth to second place in the standings, play the Blades in Los Angeles while San Diego Gulls move in to help the Seals open their elaborate new arena at Oakland.

Don Leo Got A Kick Out Of Decision

The stars were supposed to square off with boxing gloves but old habits prevailed in the main event of Tuesday's wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

Referee Sandor Kovaks awarded the match to Don Leo Jonathan at the end of the eighth "round" after he was kicked by John Tolos following the bell.

In other pairings, Don Jardine and Dutch Savage took Rene Goulet and Don Denucci, Paul Jones handled Paul DeGaulle and Eric Froelich drew with Bad Boy Shields.

Hawks Moving On Young Legs

CHICAGO (CP)—Despite the lack of scoring from Bobby Hull in recent games, Chicago Black Hawks have continued their winning ways with the club's younger players helping to keep the squad on top.

Hull, usually among the National Hockey League's leading goal scorers and a record-setter last season with 54 goals and a total of 97 points, hasn't scored in Chicago's last three starts, but the Hawks have won two.

Dennis Hull, Bobby's brother, was the big gun last Sunday as he scored one goal and assisted on two others as the Hawks downed Boston Bruins 4-2.

Ken Hodge's turn to set the pace came Tuesday night as he scored one goal and assisted on another to lead Chicago to a 3-1 victory over New York Rangers in the only scheduled NHL game.

BOYER SCORES

Wally Boyer, starting his second season in the NHL and his first with the Hawks, and Stan Mikita were the other Chicago marksmen. Rod Gilbert scored for New York.

Hodge scored his second goal of the season in the second period to give Chicago a 2-0 lead in the game. He then helped put the game out of New York's reach when he set up Mikita with a perfect pass from behind the New York net.

The Hawks fired 25 shots at New York's Cesare Maniago. Glenn Hall handled 27 Ranger shots in his second game since coming out of an announced retirement.

The victory moved Chicago three points ahead of idle Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs in the NHL standings. The loss was New York's fifth in nine outings this season and left them in fifth place, one point behind fourth-place Detroit Red Wings.

The Rangers meet the Bruins in New York tonight in one of two scheduled games. The Canadiens and Maple Leafs will clash in Montreal.

The Canadiens will likely go into tonight's game without centre Ralph Backstrom, who suffered a pulled groin in Tuesday morning's practice when he stepped in a crack on the ice.

Dick Duff, ready to play sooner than expected after suffering a knee injury during practice before the start of the schedule, is likely to be in uniform for Montreal.

Tonight's Montreal - Toronto game will be televised on CTV's national network (Channel 8 in the Victoria area), starting at 5:30 p.m.

RACE WITHIN RACE . . .

. . . FOR EUROPEAN RIVALS

French Feud With British an Issue at Laurel

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — For the British and the French, Friday's Washington, D.C. International is a contest within a contest.

In a year which prevented classic competition between the two great European racing rivals, the order in which their horses finish in the race at Laurel will be interpreted in France and England as confirmation of superiority over the other for 1966.

Early this year, the English banned the importation of all horses from France because of a swamp fever scare. The French thought this was unjustified, and there was bitter resentment among tri-color trainers who normally heavily enter the English classics.

In the International, three French thoroughbreds — Silver Shark, Behistoun and Vasco de Gama — will be pitted against England's lone runner in the 10-horse field — David Jack.

The qualities of Behistoun and David Jack are regarded in France and Britain as being approximately equal on the basis of form.

If Behistoun finishes ahead of David Jack, the French will believe that they could easily have won the English classics which were run without them.

To British, for their part, will be "cock-a-whoop" (one of their writers said it, not I) should the rather unfashionably-bred David Jack, third behind England's Charlottown and Sodium in the St. Leger Classic, prove superior, not only to Behistoun, but to either of the other French stars.

Reporters from the British Isles hold the belief that, in David Jack, they have a horse which could bring their best showing at Laurel since the first International in 1952.

They say David Jack couldn't be in better hands.

Trainer Teddy Lambton has enjoyed his most successful year since he began conditioning horses and jockey Lester Piggott is in top form, having ended the English season as the champion rider with almost 200 winners.

The English scribes, in their home publications, have pointed out for some weeks that Lambton was training David Jack in Laurel fashion for the Laurel race.

His preparation included the use of American aluminum shoes on the horse in trials over the Newmarket training grounds. He reportedly has brought David Jack along gradually with his objective to send a fit and fresh horse to the post.

If there is a knock against the English horse on the Laurel backstretch, it has to do with the fact that he never has raced from the American starting gate.

Starter Eddie Blind, who has dispatched all the International fields, introduced the horse to the get-away device Monday.

While reluctant at first to enter a stall, David Jack gradually improved and Blind expects him to become fully acclimated after another schooling session today.

There's the thought that, if the British don't win this one, they still hope the French finish behind them.

Sports Editor Doug Peden is en route to Laurel and will give readers of The Daily Times a personal glimpse of this year's running of the International classic. The first of Peden's dispatches will be published Thursday.

VIKING VIEWS

By MIKE WOODLEY

Bulldozers, back-hoes, graders and workmen are busily engaged these days in the construction of new parking lots, cement promenades between new buildings, the Centennial Stadium and in putting the finishing touches on the Education Arts Complex which will open in the new year. Another type of bulldozing occurred over the weekend, however, when the University of Victoria basketball Vikings opened their '66-'67 schedule.

The powerful Coffee Macs, displaying superior ability, ball savvy and experience, ground out a decisive 76-46 victory over the Vikings.

It was the students first game together and even after practising four times a week for the past month it showed.

When you have to combine eight rookies with only two holdovers it takes a while to get to know your mates and for the plays to click. But the Vikings have good potential, hustle and desire in their favor so they should win their fair share.

★ ★ ★

Here's a rundown on the '66-'67 edition of the Vikings as prepared by team manager Bob Crellin:

Don Frampton, 20—A hustling six-two forward, Don played high school ball at Vic High. He was a member of Canada's junior men's champs in 1965 and first-stringer on last year's runner-up team.

Al Glover, 18—A six-2½ rookie forward from Vic High, Al figured prominently as the Totems won the B.C. championship last year. He was an Island all-star for two years and B.C. all-star last season.

Dale Bate, 20 — A speedy five-eleven veteran, Dale played first-string guard last year. He came to the Vikings from St. Pat's College after playing high school ball in Courtenay.

Brain Brumwell, 19 — "Brum" is a six-four forward who turned down scholarships to play with the Vikings. He played high school ball at Mount View and was first-string centre for Victoria Chinooks.

Bill Carlson, 18 — A six-six rookie centre who can also jump, Bill played high school ball at Mount View. Last year he was centre on the Island all-star team.

Jack Newnham, 23—A five-9½ veteran first-stringer, Jack is a master playmaker as well as a fine shot. From Esquimalt High, Jack was a member of the champion Chinooks.

Brian Craig, 18 — A rugged six-three rookie, Brian should prove rough on the boards and consistent on the score sheet. He played for Oak Bay's '65 B.C. champs and '66 runners-up. He received honorable mention at the '66 tournament.

Tom Child, 19—A six-foot guard, Tom, besides being team comic, is a fine ball player who can shoot with the best. First-string on Oak Bay's B.C. champs and runner-up ball clubs, Tom has been an Island all-star twice.

Barry Burch, 20 — A six-three forward who always gives 100%, Barry played his high school ball at Esquimalt. An Island all-star in 1964, he played last year for Victoria Chinooks in the Canadian junior men's final.

Ken Jackson, 20 — Another Esquimalt product, "Jason" is a five-eleven guard who is remembered by all his opponents for his fine quick shot. He was league all-star and MVP as well as Canadian junior men's all-star in three years with Victoria Chinooks.

★ ★ ★

The undefeated hockey Vikings had to scramble to win their third straight in the Esquimalt Hockey League last weekend. Tudor Hotel, thumped three weeks previous 11-6 by the Collegians, proved a tough nut to crack this time as ex-Uvic skater Jerry Ciocetti almost singlehandedly defeated his former mates by potting all three Hotelmen markers.

But Uvic, led by Bill Rudyk with his fifth and sixth goals in three games; Ted Sarkissian (his fifth), and Jim Schkwarok (his third), came up with one more scoring shot to make the difference in the heart-stopping match. Goaltender Ted Hurd turned in a sparkling performance, especially in the early going as Vikings had trouble getting untracked.

Three exhibition games have been lined up by the hockey Vikings before Christmas: Saturday night in Nanaimo, Nov. 19 at UBC, and Dec. 2 at Esquimalt again with UBC.

★ ★ ★

The women's field hockey team, the Valkyries, returned to the friendly confines of the Uvic campus Sunday after competing in the Pacific Northwest Open Tournament in Seattle. Their record was one win, one tie and four losses, but nonetheless the future does look a little brighter than this record might indicate.

"The girls began playing like a team near the end," remarked coach Jill Kelly, "and we should be greatly improved when the big one rolls around, the Pacific Northwest Collegiate at Ellensberg Nov. 19." Valkyries are defending champs in this one and would dearly love to repeat.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Hc. man on bowling alley this week was truckdriver Bill Cool. He powered way to "Bowler-of-the-Week" honors in competition sponsored by The Daily Times with 206-360-373 — 939 series in Mixed Classic League at Gibsons. Cool thus becomes fifth bowler to qualify for year-end rolloffs in men's fivepin division.

Robinson Boys Lead the Way

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson of Baltimore Orioles unanimously was voted the American League's Most Valuable Player Tuesday, becoming the first player in baseball history to win the coveted award in both the American and National leagues.

But Robinson, who won the NL version with Cincinnati Reds in 1961, accomplished the feat by gaining the 1966 AL award without dissent from the 20 voting members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

In winning, the 31 - year - old outfielder led a 1-2-3 Baltimore sweep of the top places, drawing a maximum 280 points to 153 for third baseman Brooks Robinson and 122 for first baseman Boog Powell.

Points were on a basis of 14 for a first-place vote, nine for second, eight for third down to one for 10th.

Stick-Swinging Wing Let Off With Only Fine

MONTREAL (CP)— Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday that defenceman Gary Bergman would receive no additional penalty, other than $300 in automatic fines, for his part in a stick-swinging incident during Sunday's Montreal Canadiens-Detroit Red Wings game in Detroit.

Campbell made the statement following a review of reports concerning slashing and match penalties Bergman received following a scuffle with Claude Provost of the Canadiens.

He said he was satisfied with accounts of the incident which said Bergman bumped Provost into the boards and as Provost rebounded, he high-sticked the Detroit defenceman on the back of the head. Bergman turned and took a two-handed overhead swing with his stick which struck Provost on the shoulder but caused no apparent injury.

PRESIDENT SIGNS

Anti-Trust Laws Not for Football

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson signed into law Tuesday a bill giving the merger of the American and National football leagues limited immunity from anti trust laws.

Under the merger, the leagues will play a Super Bowl game in January pitting the AFL champions against the NFL winners, will hold a common draft and will plan a schedule for inter-league, pre-season games next summer.

Two new cities will join the combined league — eventually to include 28 teams.

Nov. 1, the NFL made New Orleans its 16th franchise, to begin operations in 1967. The new club will participate in the January draft. The AFL's 10th club is expected to begin operation in 1968. Two more teams are expected to be added later.

PLAY O'KEEFES FRIDAY

City Stars Don't Rate As Soccer Strangers

The weekend is a free one for Victoria O'Keefes, so the Pacific Coast Soccer League team will turn to the District League for competition.

Coach Frank Grealey's O'Keefes, not scheduled to resume PCSL play until Nov. 19, will engage the District League's select in their annual Hope Trophy series Friday at Heywood Avenue Park.

O'Keefes won't be running into too many strangers.

First division play resumes Saturday at Central Park with Gorge Molsons meeting Navy.

Seven games are scheduled Sunday to round out a full weekend, including four second-division matches.

'REACTION AGAINST BONNER'

Strachan Hopeful In Cariboo Vote

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today said a trip to the Cariboo constituency has left him "very optimistic" that the NDP will defeat Attorney-General Robert Bonner there Nov. 28.

He said a significant minority of the 200 who attended Saturday's nomination of resigned minister Hartley Dent as the NDP candidate were disenchanted supporters of other parties.

"Several persons were pointed out to me as prominent Tories and there also was the chairman of one Social Credit group who may become a supporter," he said.

Mr. Strachan said there is a reaction among the riding's Socreds against Mr. Bonner as an outsider and he heard suggestions that there will be a contest at Mr. Bonner's nomination meeting Wednesday in Williams Lake.

"We know there is some resentment among the Socreds," said Mr. Strachan. "Three weeks from today we will know how widespread it is."

He added that the 1,300-vote lead piled up by the Social Credit Sept. 12 could disappear if there is a heavy turnout by the 11,000 registered voters.

He said many of the constituency's 55 polls recorded turnouts of only 10 to 20 per cent of the voters two months ago and "if they turn out 60 or 70 per cent, it could change the whole picture."

"I am very optimistic."

The NDP leader added that it was ironic Premier Bennett indicated last week that an old one-way bridge in Quesnel, the largest town in the riding, would be replaced or widened.

"That's what William Speare promised them when he ran in the 1957 byelection that put him into the legislature," he said.

Mr. Speare retained the seat for the Socreds through succeeding elections until he resigned last month to give Mr. Bonner, defeated Sept. 12 in Vancouver Point Grey, an opportunity to try again to enter the 28th legislature.

Yule Cards Ruled Out As Project

The Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded does not plan to sell Christmas cards as a fund-raising project this year.

Executive director Mrs. Winifred Clark said this is because the association gets most of its support from the Community Chest.

"We think it's unfair to the public to keep going on and on asking for funds.

"All our fund-raising efforts now go into the united appeal," she said.

The Association for the Retarded runs the Elford Occupation Centre for mentally handicapped which Mrs. Clark heads.

She said a number of enquiries have been made about the cards, which the group last sold three years ago.

A series of Christmas cards including two with designs drawn by retarded youngsters is sold by the provincial association with proceeds going to help retarded children.

An illustrated brochure of the 1966 cards is available from the Association for Retarded Children of B.C., 603 Provjnce Bldg., 198 West Hastings, Vancouver 3.

Prisoners To Develop Two Parks

Two small Class A parks developed by minimum security prisoners will be established soon near Campbell River.

Parks branch director Harold McWilliams said Tuesday a 75-acre site at Loveland Bay on Lower Campbell Lake will be developed with a 20-unit campsite and a boat launching ramp to give access to the lake for fishermen.

He said the prisoners at the minimum security Camp Snow in the Sayward forest reserve would do the work.

They developed a similar campsite on a sandy beach of Morton Lake about 15 miles northwest of Campbell River.

A recent cabinet order lifted the forest reserve on both sites, including 165 acres at Morton Lake, to clear the way for formal designation as Class A parks.

Boy Receives Head Injuries In Car Mishap

A five-year-old city boy is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after suffering head injuries when he ran into the path of a car Monday.

Gordon Gerl, 1335 May St., was injured when he ran on to the street near his home and into the path of a car driven by Melbourne King, 1414 Craigflower.

Another pedestrian, Chew Chung Leung, 71, of 1346 Harrison, was treated for leg bruises after an accident at Fort and Blanshard Monday afternoon.

Police said he was crossing Blanshard when struck by an auto driven by Howard Bogart, 1784 Adanac. The Bogart car had been westbound on Fort and turning left on to Blanshard. At the time of the collision it was moving slowly, officers said.

Saanich to Decide On Piped Water Bid

Saanich council will be asked at its next meeting to approve circulating a local improvement petition to bring piped water to 27 properties on the Old West Saanich Road.

The recommendation was agreed upon Tuesday night by the municipal public works committee.

Only Monday, a similar petition to extend the water mains into the Prospect Lake area failed to gain the necessary two-thirds approval.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said a request was received from the residents asking for an estimate of costs.

It came to $48,000 which would work out to $140 per property over 20 years or $120 if Saanich paid two-thirds of the cost of pumps and replacement of mains.

The latter work would cost $29,000 alone.

Municipal planner Tom Loney expressed the fear that introduction of piped water would result in pressure for subdivision and end in "urban sprawl of the worst sort."

Coun. Digby Kier said the Rithet Estate at Royal Oak is urban sprawl but committee chairman Coun. Leslie Passmore said this development is "considerably closer" to the urban portion of Saanich.

OPEN TO ALL, YOUNG AND OLD

Beaver Lake Trail Ride Sunday

Woodland trails of Beaver Lake will pound to the hooves of competition horses Sunday.

Another trail ride is scheduled in which riders are judged individually at various natural obstacles and their marks are totalled for the prize lists.

Sponsor of this event is Garden City Horsemen's Club which stressed that the contest is open to all riders, young and old.

It will start at 11 a.m. at the Pat Bay Highway entrance to Beaver Lake, and riders will be started out at two-minute intervals over a two-hour course which will be marked.

There will be two classes, one for senior riders and the other for juniors. First place winners in each will be awarded a perpetual challenge trophy with miniature. Prizes will be presented to second and third-place finishers in each division.

Entries close tonight with the horsemen's club secretary, Mrs. Gordon Linfield, 1533 Ash Road, telephone GR 7-6448. Post entries will be accepted at a higher fee. Entry fee is $2 for seniors, $1 for juniors.

Judges will be posted at 14 different obstacles on the trials to award marks on how animal and rider negotiate each. Condition of horse as well as type of equipment used will be taken into consideration in the scores.

CAR INSURANCE PROBE

Blacklist of Non-Insurables Denied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Manly Price, chairman of the British Columbia auto rating committee of the Independent Insurance Conference, said Tuesday there is no blacklist of persons that no car insurance companies will insure.

Questioned by Cecil Merritt, legal counsel for the Canadian Underwriters Association, Mr. Price said members of the Independent Conference gather information in a central office about insured persons.

But he denied this is a blacklist for the purpose of excluding persons who otherwise would be insured.

The information is necessary to verify statements made by insured persons so they may be placed correctly in their rating class for the purpose of setting a premium correctly, he said.

Mr. Price said in each case a premium is calculated commensurate with the risk as the underwriter sees it. In the event the driver is rejected and referred to the assigned risk plan, he pays the same increased premium as he would if outside the plan with the limitation that a car cannot be insured against loss or damage.

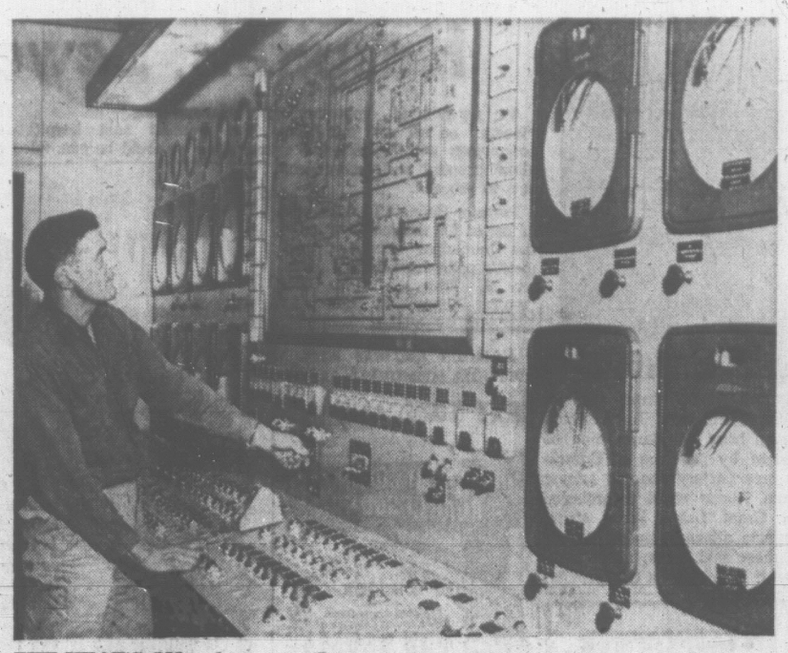
DWARFED by 15-ton roll of newsprint is worker in Crofton's $92 million mill. Machine produces this 22-foot wide roll at the rate of 2,800 feet a minute, thought to be the fastest anywhere. Plant now produces 350 tons of newsprint. Another machine will double capacity next year.



THE HEAT'S ON and operator Jerry Dixon, of Nanaimo, keeps an eye on console to control cooking of the wood chips in giant pressure cooker called continuous digester. Cooking will reduce the wood flakes to pulp, later to be bleached, rolled and pressed to blotter-like material called kraft. Crofton's 860 mill workers come from as far as Victoria and Nanaimo.

NANAIMO—A second person has died following a Sunday morning traffic accident here.

Murray Matthews, 39, died in hospital Monday night.

He suffered injuries in a two-car collision in which another Nanaimo man, Arthur Glen Carlton, 23, was killed.

Another weekend collision here killed two others.

CROFTON PAYROLL $5 MILLION

Cowichan Pulp Town Enriches the Island

By DON VIPOND

CROFTON—Something about this tiny community reminds you of Rip Van Winkle.

But where ol' Rip snoozed for jus 20 years, this quiet corner of the Cowichan Valley nine miles north of Duncan dozed for half a century.

A $117 million injection has snapped it awake.

And more bustle and business than that little smelter town at the turn of the century ever dreamed of will keep it wide-eyed from now on.

Crofton's big sleep began better than 60 years ago when an iron mine on nearby Mount Provost closed down. Crofton's smelter—its reason for being—was idled too.

It's said that some of the 200 souls who clung here as the decades slipped by did so convinced the smelter would some day fire up again.

Crofton Came Back

But it is wood, not metal, which has swept Crofton back into the millstream of the economy with a vengeance.

Where just a dozen years ago nearby Osborne Bay presented a tranquil reach of shoreline, now there is a $92 million mill, three mountains of wood chips, islands of logs and two long docks for deep-sea freighters.

Boilers hiss, trains huff, ships hoot, derricks clank and trucks roar. The old smelter days at their busiest could never match this.

The Crofton pulp and newsprint mill of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. now has 860 employees. This means close to 4,000 men, women and children look to it directly for their daily bread.

Anyone who stopped to count would surely find several thousand more provided with a living indirectly by the mill—construction men, their suppliers, house builders in Duncan, hydro linemen, stevedores, bakers and insurance salesmen. All these and others are needed to tend the instant giant.

$5 Million Wages

The mill will pump over $5 million just in wages into the local economy this year, a flow of funds felt from Victoria to Nanaimo. Crofton is leading an economic renaissance reaching throughout the Cowichan Valley in recent years.

There's more to come.

A $25 million addition to the newsprint operation is under construction now. When completed next fall it will push the mill's payroll over 1,000.

Even while carpenters are hammering at the forms for the plant which will house the second newsprint machine there is rumor of another addition on the drawing boards.

Selecting Crofton as the mill site in the mid-50s wasn't blind chance, explains Jack Gallagher, the plant's industrial relations officer.

It is right at the centre of the BCFP empire, midway between timber holdings which reach up the west coast as far as Nootka Sound and east to the mainland logging operations at Vancouver Bay or Glacial Creek. Handy too are the company's stands around Lake Cowichan.

Plenty of Water

Then there is water. A mill has an awe-inspiring thirst. Crofton uses 50 million to 60 million gallons a day, six times the volume used by the entire city of Victoria. It comes down a nine-mile pipe from the Cowichan River at the rate of 48,000 gallons a minute.

The 50-acre mill site not only has the fresh water it needs. Right alongside is the salt water, providing the cheapest possible road for the monster barges of chips which creep at the end of towlines round the island. Here about 15 deep-sea freighters a month stow away the tons of Crofton Kraft, the semi-finished pulp product which looks like white blotting paper.

The mill's operation begins and ends at the shore here. This is where the scruffy logs, not good enough for lumber, are fed up the log haul by the boom men, blasted free of their bark by a water jet at 1,500 pounds per square inch, cut and fed to the grinders.

These whirling stones driven by 6,000-horsepower motors, grind the logs to porridge. The pulp is screened, bleached, washed, squeezed, mixed, smoothed, pressed, dried, rolled and cut.

It's not that easy of course. The machines which turn those ragged logs to slick newsprint are mechanical marvels. The men in charge of their operation are highly skilled technicians who are paid $6 an hour.

Fast Production

Crofton's newsprint machine turns out a bright sheet of newsprint, known for its quality, 22 feet wide at the rate of about 2,800 feet a minute.

That's thought to be faster than any other newsprint machine now in operation.

But the bulk of the mill is devoted to producing the Kraft pulp, to be shipped out and further manufactured into a variety of paper products.

A $250,000 rail-mounted crane at dockside takes bits of five cubic yards at a time as it unloads the barges of chips. The wood flakes are also hauled by truck to the mill or produced by the plant's own chippers.

Crofton has a battery of eight batch digesters and one continuous digester, pressure cookers four storeys high where the chips are treated with a chemical mix called white liquor at about 325 degrees to reduce them to pulp.

There are two Kraft machines to convert the washed and bleached pulp at the rate of 950 tons a day.

Mill Feeds Itself

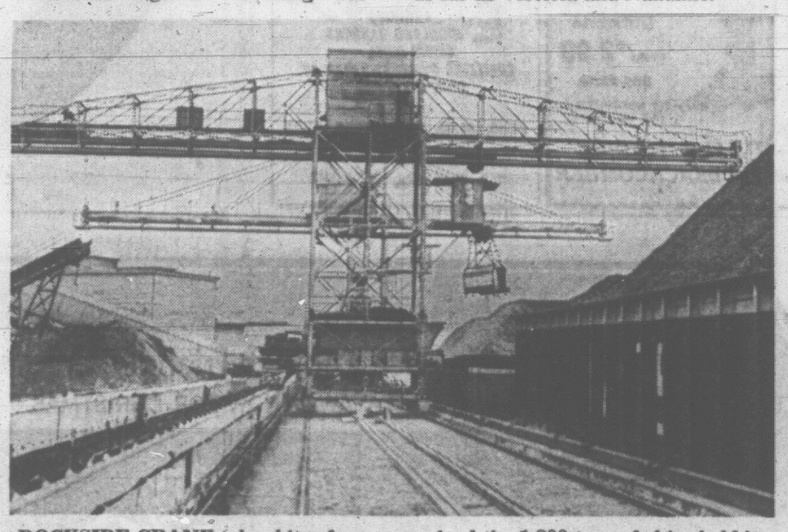
If the liquor used in cooking the chips were lost with each operation, the mill would close. Chemical costs would price it out of existence.

So the mill feeds itself, recovering most of its chemicals with each cooking, renewing them, burning its own waste to produce the heat it needs.

Crofton's mil keeps three shifts at work each day, seven days a week, pausing only briefly at Christmas and the new year.

Yet it can't catch up to market orders, is pressed at the moment to meet its share of a giant order for India.

Siesta time in Crofton is gone for good.



DOCKSIDE CRANE takes bites from bargeload of chips to be converted to pulp. The rail-mounted crane, worth $250,000, will take eight hours to unload the 1,200 tons of chips held by barge. Chips move by conveyor belt (lower left) to stock piles, eventually to be converted to pulp.

ISLAND DIGEST

Indians Brand Official 'Insulting and Unfeeling'

DUNCAN—Angry Cowichan Indian housewives are awaiting a reply to a letter sent to Jeff Boys, Indian commissioner for B.C.

Mr. Boys aroused the women by criticizing their "sloppy housekeeping" and saying it is at least partially responsible for the poor housing conditions on the reserve.

The housewives' letter accuses the commissioner of being "insulting and unfeeling."

Mrs. Doreen Peter, Allenby Road, is the group spokesman. She said the letter was mailed to Mr. Boys Oct. 28.

It asked Mr. Boys: "Have you ever had to live with a family of 6 to 10 children in a two or three-roomed house throughout the winter months?

"Have you tried to knit one sweater a week with raw wool, care for the children, cook for the family, clean house and shop for bargains as well . . .

"Chopped wood to continually fill the wood stove to give the uninsulated house enough heat for creeping babies to crawl on a floor which in wintertime freezes water . . ."

Mrs. Peter said it is easy for Mr. Boys to criticize Indian housekeeping from the comfort of his office.

She said individual Indians could not be blamed when the department insisted on building houses in flood areas.

The letter said: "If it is their blame you can also blame us for not being financially ready or intellectually prepared to remedy all our problems.

"We agree a few of our homes are sloppily kept and also that we need to help ourselves, but how many people can keep up with the chores of an Indian housewife?

"These problems are very deep."

Mrs. Peter said the commissioner's attack was a blow to women trying to do their best in difficult situations.

SOOKE SCHOOL PLAN CUT

The education department has cut five classrooms from the expansion program of the Sooke School Board.

Trustees were told at a meeting Tuesday that the department's corner-cutting means that the Dec. 10 referendum is $300,000 less than was asked for by trustees.

"We are most unhappy about it," said Trustee Mrs. Isobelle Reader. "This is only a two-year program and we are going to need those rooms.

"We will regret this cut and so will the department," she said.

SPECIAL CLASSES

Board chairman John Bartanus said later the cuts were being made in rooms which were to be set aside for special classes, three at Elizabeth Fisher junior high school and one each at Sooke and Glen Lake elementary schools.

"The results won't show up this year. But probably in the second year and certainly in the next year we shall have to increase the number of pupils in our other classrooms," said Mr. Bartanus.

The total amount of the referendum is now $2,165,200.

Classroom construction will cost $1,694,000; school sites $154,200; equipment $130,700 and $186,000 for plans and contingencies."

The church, akin in religious practice to the Pentecostal church, is an import from the United States.

It has been replaced by a new building, still being finished, and the church has over 100 members.

Each Saturday evening faith healing services are conducted at the Cowichan Reserve church, and regular services of worship are held on Sunday.

'Something Seriously Wrong'

PORT ALBERNI — A Port Alberni group has called for the dissolution of the B.C. Pollution Control Board because it is "not truly an agency of the people of B.C."

Speaking for Alberni Valley Citizens' Committee, George McKnight said the board's stand on the granting of a permit to Western Mines to dispose of tailings in Buttle Lake shows it is not "an independent body."

"We believe there should be a pollution control board of private citizens, not connected in any way with the government," said Mr. McKnight.

"We do not believe the provincial Pollution Control Board as presently constituted can be called an independent body with power and authority to control pollution.

"The question arises whether the board is an agency of business and industry, or truly an agency of the people of B.C.

"Something is seriously wrong."

Works Supervisor Retires From Post

DUNCAN — Ill health has caused the early retirement of Ed. Burnett, works supervisor of Cowichan School Board.

Mr. Burnett has served the district in this capacity for the past 16 years.

Will Dobson, chairman of the school board, said Monday it was with regret the trustees accepted Mr. Burnett's resignation which takes effect the end of this month.

Farmers Oppose City Plan

COURTENAY — A group of farmers who have been studying the proposed city boundary extension have agreed to ask for exclusion from the plan, council was told Tuesday.

Five points were outlined by John Farquharson, a spokesman for the group.

They say the largest factor in their decision was that their mill rate would increase.

Other points were:

- Their civic vote would not be representative of their investment.
- A preference to be regulated by the provincial government in agricultural problems.
- The city's power to expropriate their land for civic requirements could jeopardize their economic farm units.
- The strict regulations of business operations required of city merchants will adversely affect seasonal retail operations.

Council asked the group to hold off making a final decision until more discussions are held.

MEETING TODAY

Split Issues GVTA Asked

Contract negotiations between Greater Victoria school board and teachers may be resumed tonight if teachers agree at an afternoon meeting to separate the issue of teaching conditions from the contract talks.

If teachers agree, at a mass meeting to be held in Oak Bay school, it will break the deadlock over negotiations.

Teachers have insisted that teaching conditions be included in the contract negotiations but the board has adamantly refused.

School board chairman John Porteous said this morning the board has agreed to discuss teaching conditions concurrent with salary talks, but separately.

"We are willing to make another attempt to settle this dispute. The co-operative committee of teachers and trustees can discuss teaching conditions tonight and the salary negotiations can be discussed separately in the agreements committee."

Mr. Porteous indicated he was under the impression that the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association had agreed to this procedure.

But Ray Wunderlich, GVTA president, said such a development will have to be approved at the association meeting this afternoon.

AGREEMENT LIKELY

He said "it is probable" that negotiations will resume in the way suggested by the school board. He emphasized, however, that no matter in what way the teaching conditions are discussed, teachers still want a firm undertaking by the board to improve teaching conditions.

The board earlier indicated that, while its intention is to upgrade conditions, it is unable to give a firm commitment on specifics because any improvement necessitates provincial government approval which it cannot guarantee.

Mr. Wunderlich earlier said 600 teachers will quit the system at the end of this year if the commitment is not given. Mr. Porteous said today the board is drafting a form letter of acceptance to any teachers who offer to resign.

2 Persons Hurt In Car Crashes

A 79-year-old Sidney woman is in satisfactory condition in Rest Haven Hospital following a two-car collision about 3 p.m. Tuesday at Weiler and the Pat Bay Highway.

Mrs. Kathryn Ramage, of All Bay Road, suffered face and leg bruises.

Elizabeth Wendy Baker, 1401 Mount Douglas Cross Road, received facial injuries at 9:30 Tuesday night, when the car she was driving hit a lamp standard on the Ring Road, Gordon Head campus.

She was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Minors Fined $35 For Having Liquor

Fined $35 each when they pleaded guilty in central court to being minors in possesion of liquor:

Alexander Fraser, 18, of HMCS Yukon, after police found five bottles of beer in his parked car Oct. 22.

Robert Rudd, 19, of Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, stopped by police as he carried two dozen beer down Government Street Oct. 21.

EXTRADITION from U.S. of former Seafarers' International Union boss Hal Banks may be sought by province of Ontario to face perjury charges arising from Norris royal commission on Great Lakes labor strife. Ontario attorney-general Arthur Wishart said action may be taken if RCMP lay a charge.

Hospitals, Sewer Borrowings Approved

A provincial government "freeze" on all new municipal borrowings will be softened to allow hospital and sewer projects to proceed.

Premier Bennett Tuesday said he asked for the modification in the municipal affairs department's policy and deputy minister J. Everett Brown said "we're happy to take his recommendations."

Mr. Bennett said hospitals and sewers should be exempted from the hold-down because they were vital to community health.

He said he also has asked the federal government to make loan funds available to municipalities "for health services such as hospitals and sewerage including pollution control."

CAMERON OUT, BURKE IN, UNION PROTESTS

CBC Replaces Late Night News Man

TORONTO (CP) — The replacement of Earl Cameron by Stanley Burke on the late evening CBC national news has been described by CBC officials as a "mere re-assignment" and by an announcer's union as a "hypocritical manoeuvre."

"This was not a 'get Earl' move," Bill Cunningham, executive producer of the national news, said Tuesday night. Mr. Cameron had to go because of a policy to integrate totally the gathering and presentation of news.

In Ottawa, Paul Rousseau, executive vice-president of the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (ARTEC), said the union plans a formal protest to the CBC against the appointment.

'ARTEC is disgusted at this hypocritical manoeuvre by the CBC to oust from the top news spot one of its most loyal and distinguished staff announcers. . . ."

Mr. Burke, 42, foreign correspondent for the publicly-owned corporation for several years, was hired Tuesday as an announcer.

John Rae, supervisor of announcers for the CBC, said in Toronto that the corporation feels at liberty to hire "whoever they wish" and that Mr. Cameron was "merely being re-assigned" to the early evening broadcast.

The CBC announced in a statement Tuesday that Mr. Burke has been assigned to the late edition news and that Mr. Cameron would take over the early edition news.

Nyet, Says Russian Blonde —He Doesn't Get the Picture

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — "Nyet," said the stern-looking blonde behind the desk in a Moscow photo processing shop.

The customer drew in his breath and got squared away for an argument. Several minutes later it was over. The predictable outcome: another "Nyet" from behind the desk.

It was a small matter but, in its own way, revealing.

The customer had brought in two rolls of film and asked for one print of each picture. Impossible, said the girl. The customer would have to come back 11 days later, pick up the negatives at a desk about five paces from hers, go back to the first desk and order prints.

"The negatives go to a different laboratory from unprocessed film," she explained. "Anyway, you might not like all the pictures; better to see the negatives before deciding which you want to have printed."

"But I can tell you now—one print of each picture. I don't want to make an extra trip."

"Nyet."

The episode illustrates more than the futility of arguing with shop attendants in Moscow.

It also points to a weakness for over-extended labor division that frequently afflicts the Soviet economy at the retail level.

What the country seems to need, as much as anything else, are some strategically-placed efficiency experts. What it needs less of is organization for the sake of organization, or for the sake of preserving redundant jobs.

The most flagrant examples of the division-of-labor obsession occur in hotel restaurants.

Practically any tourist who has ever eaten in these establishments has had at least one experience of fretfully waiting for service while a whole claque of waiters and waitresses were gathered in one corner of the dining room telling jokes.

The explanation, of course, is that the waiter assigned to the visitor's particular table was tied up and his colleagues didn't consider it part of their duty to step into the breach.

In Leningrad, one evening this summer, a middle-aged American couple walked into the Europa Hotel dining room and sat down. Like a hawk, a waiter descended on them and asked them to move to my table, served by a different waiter, explaining that two couldn't sit at a table set for four.

Having got rid of them he stood away and resumed doing what he had been doing —surveying the almost-empty dining room.

LINEUPS AT LAUNDRY

At a Moscow laundry-clearing centre, you wait in line to hand in your dirty clothing, then go around to another door to get in line for clean laundry you handed in on a previous visit. This even though the women handling receiving and distributing stand almost cheek-by-jowl with one another.

In most stores, instead of picking something out and going to pay for it, you pick it out, go to a cashier and pay for it, get a receipt and take it to a sales clerk who gives you your article.

Sometimes the concentration on tightly delimited spheres of labor has humorous overtones. On Moscow's main thoroughfares, policemen are posted every 100 to 200 yards or so to keep a watch on traffic and jaywalking pedestrians.

Sometimes when a policeman blows his whistle the person concerned pays no attention. The next policeman along may help in chasing down the offender. But often he'll act as though it is none of his business—or pretend he didn't see.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 9, 1966—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Today for a start, we'll backtrack to the Anti-Cat, or Scat Week, column I wrote last Friday, and take another run at it.

Something like this: 'Whether short thair, Persian, Siamese, Burmese, Manx or what have you, puss is a sweet, lovable little creature, and the man who would propose a bounty for her or him or it must indeed be a fiend in human form."

And now, if you cat-people will kindly sheath your claws, we can unite in breathing brimstone on the callous wretches who dispose of unwanted cats and kittens by tossing them out of cars along the less-populated roads. It is these persons who are largely responsible for the plague of "wild" cats in some areas.

Were it not for the fact that the people-lovers would be on my back in a trice, I'd suggest a bounty for those who abandon unwanted pets in this cruel fashion.

The most recent castaway was a pup, dropped in a cardboard carton on the road-strip above our place. We heard him and went up, just as a lady driver pulled in to investigate. She, kind soul, set him box and all in her car, and took him off to the kind of home a dog—or cat, let me hasten to add—deserves.

★

CBC's 'Sunday,' the show we were assured would prove a worthy replacement to 'This Hour Has Seven Days,' left me both shaken and grateful.

I don't mean it is good. Not for a long time, in fact, has anything quite so bad laid waste a once-anticipated viewing hour. But however swarming its faults, Sunday served to bolster a deep personal conviction.

This is that government sponsorship of television and radio can be justified only when ironclad guarantees are provided against the sort of interference with programming that put Seven Days out of business.

To kill that brilliant show and offer us Sunday—which I have privately retitled 'Never on a Sunday'—is to insult the Canadian intelligence.

We are told by executive producer Daryl Duke that the intent is "to give a mind-expanding, full view of life—a view which has all the intensity and chaotic clarity of an LSD 'trip'."

Well, this viewer hasn't the slightest wish to take off on a government-sponsored LSD junket, and I don't want my living room turned into a new-type discotheque either.

I can also get along without singers Ian and Sylvia—tossed in patronizingly for the young audience—and mumbling interviewers who permit their subjects to make speeches on my time.

Like it or not, I suppose we are stuck for at least a winter with this bore. But, praise be, we don't have to watch it!

★

This is the month when the South Island's unique Garry oaks lay their russet carpet impartially on lawns that welcome the shower and others that would just as soon have the leaves blow on along the block.

As Bruce Hutchison and others have pointed out, it is a sinful waste of good compost to burn autumn leaves. Such reproaches, however, are taken lightly in our leaf-happy town, and these days of brown November are scented with the smoke which is fall's proper incense.

Last weekend you could drive for miles through oak-rich streets without losing the fragrance that wafted from curbside smudges and back-yard incinerators; and as many a weary raker is too well aware, a myriad of leaves must still fall before the boughs are bare.

We have no oaks on our place, but the western maple is a pretty good leaf-dropper, and so is the arbutus, which seems to spend most of its year shedding yellow shards.

These lack the oak-leaf tang though, and did we not have our own work cut out for us, I'd be tempted to borrow a bushel or two from someone else's over-supply.

That's it, except to reprimand a writer-in from New York who addressed his letter to "The Colonist Times". We are we and they are they, and never the twain shall meet!

Silence and Prayer Weapons Against War

Silence and prayer are the weapons a Victoria group plans to use against the war in Viet Nam.

The first in a series of weekly silent vigils for peace will be held Saturday from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., at the corner of Douglas and View.

The vigils will continue until the war ends, the organizng Victoria Committee on Canadian Responsibilty in Viet Nam promises.

At 1 p.m. St. John's Anglican Church will open its doors to the public for three hours of prayers for world peace.

Chairman of the organizing committee is William T. Lawson, of 1354 St. David Street.

LAW EXPECTED TO BE TESTED BY CHRISTMAS

Roadside Suspensions Next Month

B.C.'s experiment with "roadside suspensions" probably will be used here for the first time in the pre-Christmas crackdown on drinking drivers.

"It is the object of the attorney-general that this be achieved," Motor Vehicle superintendent Ray Hadfield said Tuesday when asked if the program would be in operation by Christmas.

The legislature last spring passed Attorney-General Robert Bonner's controversial bill authorizing, on proclamation, policemen to make an on-the-spot suspension of a dirver's licence if there is a suspicion of drinking.

The suspension lasts 24 hours only and does not involve a court appearance.

However, a driver can ask for a breath tes. If it shows less than .08 blood-alcohol content he will keep his licence.

Mr. Hadfield said his branch is still engaged in examining simple devices that will register "yes or no" above the .08 level when a suspect blows into them.

But chances that all problems will be solved apd the program put into operation in the Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver areas before Christmas "are pretty fair," said Mr. Hadfield.

"The problem with these devices is to ensure that we have quality control," he said. "Tests are being made by research people for us."

Mr. Hadfield would not identify the testing agency but it is known that some of the research is being conducted at the University of Victoria with human "guinea pigs" being examined for their reactions to various quantity-time combinations of liquor consupmption.

Once a decision is made among the various "throw away" devices, costing less than $1 each, it will take very little time to instruct police in their use, Mr. Hadfield said.

MDs Unite To Battle Pollution

British Columbia's doctors have decided to jump from the wings into the centre of the growing pollution controversy.

The B.C. Medical Association this morning announced it has set up a special committee to study specific pollution problems and make recommendations.

A Victoria neurologist, Dr. Robert M. Peet, has been picked to be the first chairman of the "committee on environmental health."

The committee will be attached to the association's health planning council headed by Vancouver gynecologist Dr. John Dickinson.

"Doctors have been interested in pollution problems for some time," Dr. Dickinson said in the announcement.

SPECIAL GROUP

"It was decided this year that a special group should go to work on the medical aspects of pollution in all its forms."

Membership of the committee will include doctors from various sections of the province and representatives from the University of Victoria and the University of B.C. The announcement said provincial government officials also have offered to assist the committee whenever necessary.

Dr. Peet said specific projects will be undertaken by his committee.

He emphasized that he will take a scientific-medical approach to the pollution questions "which all too often has been debated on the basis of emotion or special interests."

The committee will examine health factors related to all forms of pollution, whether air, water or soil.

MOUNTING WORRY

The announcement comes as public attention and concern with pollution continues to mount.

The first national conference—involving some 600 specialists and about 400 observers—was held last week on the general problem in Montreal, under sponsorship of the Canadian Resource Ministers' Council.

'NEVER LEARN'

Gun, Dog, Hunter All on Bike

A Victoria man who wanted to "hunt from his motorcycle" gun, dog and all was fined $25 when he appeared in central court today.

David Beulah, 1430 Fairfield, was charged with carrying a loaded firearm on a vehicle, after being checked by fisheries officers on a logging road Oct. 27.

He pleaded guilty.

Court was told the rifle was strapped to his back and loaded with four rounds of ammunition, and that Beulah was also "trying to hold a large dog" on the motorcycle.

Beulah told Magistrate William Ostler he didn't think it was against the law to hunt from his motorbike.

'CARELESSNESS'

"It seems some people never learn from tragedies in the woods," said Magistrate Ostler.

Brian Robertson, 2456 Evelyn Place, paid $25 for carrying a loaded rifle in his car Oct. 15.

Pleading guilty, he said "it was carelessness."

Inland Ferry Workers Talking Strike Action

A meeting has been set up for November 29 between the Civil Service Commission and representatives of 250 employees on highways department ferries who accuse the government of discrimination.

A spokesman for the B.C. Government Employees' Association today said the employees want the same working conditions granted to their counterparts in the B.C. Ferry Authority.

"The government uses two yardsticks in measuring working conditions and some sections in the highway department believe strike action is the only way to eliminate this official discrimination," the BCGEA spokesman said.

He said Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who headed a special cabinet study six months ago that led to averting of threatened wildcat strikes against the ferry authority, referred the question of similar working conditions for the highway department's ferry crews to the Civil Service Commission.

"We want the 10 per cent pay bonus for arduous summer shifts, shorhand pay and better overtime arrangements that the ferry authority workers were given but, except for one small concession, these have been rejected," said the spokesman.

13-HOUR DAY

He said the concession was that highway ferry workers would have a five-day work week "but only where practical and some of them now work 13 hours some days, 16½ hours other days and 17½ hours on Saturdays."

He said these overtime hours were "more or less permanent despite the government's own call for a ban on overtime."

"We want the Commission and highway department officials to recognize in all fairness, that ferry workers in the highway department should be treated on a par with those working for the ferry authority."

The highways department operates about 35 car ferries, most of them crossing interior rivers and lakes but three operating on salt water between Comox and Powell River, Nanaimo and Galiano Island, and Britannia and Woodfibre.

Heart Attack Caused River Death

Ex-Victoria alderman Millard H. Mooney died of a heart attack, not drowning, pathologist Dr. Ross McNeely said today.

"I don't think there is any doubt here. Mr. Mooney died of a heart attack. There was no indication of drowning," said Dr. McNeely after performing an autopsy.

He said his report will be sent to Duncan coroner Dr. Robert Wilson who is conducting an inquiry.

Mr. Mooney died Sunday while attempting to cross the swift-flowing Cowichan River, five miles west of Duncan.

At the time he was crossing the river in a small boat when it headed for some rapids. He left the boat; wether by accident or design is unknown. He was a strong swimmer.

RESCUE TRY

His son-in-law Gordon Meyer said he ran along the bank trying to reach Mr. Mooney and then dived in after him.

Mr. Mooney did not respond to the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after he was dragged to the bank.

Youth Wins Race But Loses in End

A 20-year-old youth who shook off Oak Bay police in a chase Tuesday afternoon was fined a total of $250 in magistrate's court today.

James Griffiths, 422 Craigflower, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving, driving without a licence, and being a minor without insurance.

Prosecutor John Macintyre told the court Griffiths, "who doesn't have a driver's licence and never had one," drove at speeds of up to 50 miles per hour on Dorset, Nottingham and Dover, going through two stop signs, while police were pursuing him.

He was picked up later and told police "he panicked."

Griffiths was fined $200 and suspended from driving for six months on the dangerous driving charge.

He paid $25 on each of the other two charges.

Ronald McBride, 431 Powell, was fined $100 for driving while under suspension.

A charge of careless driving cost Alan Ford, 269 King George Terrace, a fine of $40.

ONLY THE LOUD NEED FEAR BYLAW

Whistle—But Don't Squeal Tires

Relax, mother, Johnny can still whistle on the way to school even if he does live in Esquimalt.

Reeve Ray Bryant was upset this morning that news reports of his municipality's new anti-noise bylaw left the impression whistling schoolboys could be incarcerated.

"That's silly," said Reeve Bryant. "The bylaw was months in preparation and is designed to curb noise which disturbs the peace, order and quiet of the municipality.

"It is a bylaw based largely on a Nelson bylaw — which, by the way has been most successful — giving the police powers they did not have before."

He added that the law was designed to clamp down on those who make a "gross nuisance of themselves" and disturb the peace flagrantly.

Reeve Bryant said he objected to news reports which "try to create a controversy where no controversy exists."

His sharpest criticism was reserved for local radio reports.

One of the main targets for the police armed with the new bylaw will be the tire-squealer.

"Bedore we introduced the bylaw there was little the police could do," Reeve Bryant said.

"Under the bylaw they have the power to prosecute if the noise is made in flagrant disregard for others."

And Johnny can still whistle on the way to school.

RESEARCH DONE BY CONSUMERS' ASSOCIATION OF CANADA

Plastic Bags—Solution to Garbage Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — If you've ever watched in helpless horror as your packed paper garbage dissolved in your hands, you'll welcome research done by the Consumers' Association of Canada.

Plastic garbage bags are the solution to the breakage problems, they say in their fall bulletin. The plastic sacks are handier than grocery bags, and damp coffee grounds don't make them fall apart.

They come in two sizes. The large one can be used as a throw-away garbage can, thus solving the odor problem for the homeowner and making garbage collection day quieter and neater for the sanitation men.

The small size, designed to fit inside the kitchen disposal unit, is handier if it comes with ties to close the top when the bag is full.

The small bags come in packs of 10 to 20, and range in cost from two to six cents each. The association says hardware or tire stores may sell the plastic bags at much lower prices than grocery stores.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Teens Can Earn Their Privileges

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 17, a senior in high school and a straight "A" student. I went to a drive-in movie with the same boy three Saturday nights in a row. Each time I was home at the time my parents set for me — 12:30. After the third date they calmly told me I couldn't go to the drive-in with this boy any more. Their only reason was they thought I might do something I might regret.

When they told me this I cried all night. In the past you have always told kids if they listened to their parents and obeyed their rules, trust would come. Well, I've been doing it for nearly 17 years and you can see where it got me. Don't you think my parents are being unreasonable?

NOT TRUSTED

DEAR NOT: Yes, but worse yet they are being unrealistic. Were you bent on doing something you might regret, denying you permission to go to a drive-in movie with a boy wouldn't stop you.

Teen-agers who have demonstrated good judgment, integrity, and respect for their parents' rules should be rewarded by being given added privileges. They've earned it. In the meantime, do as you are told, and I think eventually your parents might see the error in their decision.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law asked my husband to give her the money he was going to spend on my birthday present and "together" they bought me something SHE picked out. A fire engine red wool coat with a low belt all the way 'round. I am 5 feet 3 inches tall and weigh 155. She has excellent taste when it comes to selecting her own clothes. What would you say happened in this case, and how would you handle it?

BOILING OVER

DEAR BOILING: There are two possibilities. She either did it on purpose or she didn't. But regardless, I would handle it very carefully while placing it in its original box to return it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have no automobile. Most of our friends do. When we go out for an evening of pleasure and they park the car in a pay parking lot, is it our part of the evening's participation to pay for at least one-half of the parking expense?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: There is no "law" or rule covering situations such as this one. Abide by the "Three C's": Common sense, consideration and courtesy. If you believe the other couple to be on a limited budget, and you can gracefully pay for the parking, I'd say pay for ALL of it in return for the chauffeur service.

Confidential To "Fashion-Conscious": A lady's dress should be like a stamped barbed wire fence. It should protect the property without obscuring the view.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed envelope.

Does Backache Give A Pain in the Neck?

By Penny Saver

There is nothing more rejuvenating than an exciting day. I had one earlier this week. My friend and I started out very late in the day in search of a waterfall with only a few clues to guide us. The long hike involved pretty tricky footwork if spotless shoes were to result. (In a matter of minutes, we were both up to our ankles in mud!) Later, when we were explaining our adventure to awed listeners, my fellow trooper, when asked, "Where was this waterfall?" pointed to her shoes and said, "On the other side of that mud!"

Being such avid hikers and climbers, there was, of course, no thought at all that we might slip when we were inching our way across a small creek, clinging to moss-covered rocks. In fact, we managed well there. When we had but a fraction of our return trip to go, I was standing on a log waiting for my friend. All of a sudden—thud—one shocked Saver was flat on her back on the sand.

By the time we returned home, I realized that I should really do something about my back—simply because it hurt.

Searching through medicine cabinets and linen closets, I finally found our trusty hot water bottle. That was fine—it had no plug. I though I was doomed for the night until I found that you can buy separate plugs for these cure-all devices. As a matter of fact, they come in white and black, too. I'm going to keep a couple of extra plugs handy just in case another such emergency occurs. Price is 20 cents each.

One thing that leaves me "out in the cold", that no hot water bottle will cure, is the night cyclist who has no lights of any kind on his bicycle. I never see them until I'm almost running over them. There is a type of light that cyclists can use to strap on a leg or arm so that drivers will see them. These safety wonders have a red and yellow light. Complete with batteries, these French imports sell for $2.75.

Decorate Church for Gilbert-Reichert Wedding

USE FLOWERS SENT FROM HAWAII

Orchids, pikake leis and anheriums, a gift sent from Mr. and Mrs. David Naone Jr. of Kailua-Oahu, Hawaii, decorated St. Patrick's Church for the wedding of Genevieve Carol Reichert and William Richmond Gilbert.

Fr. A. E. Leonard officiated at the ceremony, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Reichert, 2781 Musgrave Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Gilbert of Halifax. Mrs. Gilbert travelled to Victoria for the wedding.

Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary" was played by organist Mrs. R. Gill as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. "Ave Maria" was played during the signing of the register, and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was the recessional.

French imported wool and silk formed the bride's sheath gown. The bodice was highlighted by a sabrina neckline and sleeves ended in lily points. Her cathedral mantilla veil of French lace extended from a tiara. She carried a bouquet of white roses and ivy, and her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, her father's gift.

The bride's attendants were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of peau d'elegance in robin's egg blue tone. The bodices were styled with scoop necklines. Headpieces were self-fabric rosettes with veiling and they carried crescent bouquets of white chrysanthemums and ivy.

Miss Marilyn Reichert was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmatron was Mrs. W. H. White, and bridesmaid Miss Helen Kardos, both of Vancouver.

Robert Toye, Vancouver, was best man, and ushering guests were Glen Guilbault, Vancouver, and Ronald Magrath, New Westminster.

A silver bud vase containing white roses topped the three-tier wedding cake at the reception in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. White roses and silver candelabra flanked the cake. Cmdr. Ernest Bell (rtd.), Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple will make their home in Vancouver when they return from their honeymoon trip to New York, Jamaica, Nassau, and Halifax to visit the groom's parents.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Gilbert chose a three-piece suit of white brocade. She complemented her ensemble with a white mink pillbox hat, black patent accessories and pikake lei.

GROUP'S COLORS

Theme of Red and White Seen at NOBA Fall Bazaar

The organization's colors of red and white were very much in evidence, Saturday, when the North American Benefit Association, Review No. 1, held its annual bazaar in the Orange Hall on Fernwood Road.

The colors were used in the corsages presented to Alderman Lily Wilson who opened the affair, and Mrs. E. Crowther, the review's president and general convener of the bazaar. Alderman Wilson's corsage was white chrysanthemums, bound with red satin ribbons, and Mrs. Crowther's was of red and white carnations.

The lace-covered head table was set in the same motif, being centred with a bow of red roses, flanked with white candles. The guests' tables were set with white cloths and decorated with red and white flowers highlighted with holly.

The red and white theme was also evident in the decorations of the colorful stalls.

Seated at the head table with Alderman Wilson and Mrs. Crowther were pioneer president Mrs. K. Schmelz and Mrs. A. Ritchie, deputy and financial secretary.

Mrs. K. Jackson and Mrs. J. Morrison convened the home cooking stall. Other conveners were: Fancywork, Mrs. E. Longden; novelties, Mrs. A. Taylor; penny auction, Mrs. C. Payne and Mrs. K. Schmelz; large contest, Mrs. H. Graas; door receipts and chicken dinner, Mrs. J. Bowden; head table and guest tables, Mrs. G. Ritchie and Mrs. C. Berry.

In charge of arrangements for the afternoon tea were Mrs. K. Jacques, Mrs. R. Thompson and Mrs. N. Veal.

THIS CHICKEN BECAME THE STAR

The star may have been of the fowl variety, but there was nothing "chicken" about the way in which guests enthusiastically bought tickets for the raffle, arranged by Mrs. S. Worboys, at Saturday afternoon's annual fall bazaar at the Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1 held in the Odd Fellows Hall. Mrs. Worboys was kept busy making out tickets, each one on a full-course dinner, complete with chicken, potatoes, carrots, onions, parsnips, lettuce and tomatoes.

A green and white carnation corsage was given to the honor guest and gifts were in a decorated wishing well. A decorated shower cake, flanked with wedding bells, centred the refreshment table.

Mrs. A. E. Loft and Mrs. R. Wilcox were co-hostesses at a dessert party held in Mrs. Loft's Allenby Road home. Sprigs of heather in lace handkerchiefs were given to the bride-elect, her mother and grandmother, and the groom-elect's mother.

A rose-covered wishing well contained the gifts of linen presented by Mrs. R. Morriss, Mrs. Ray Edgar, Mrs. G. Penman, Mrs. Gordon Carley, Mrs. L. Davies, Mrs. E. Haywood, the Misses Sue Taylor, Susan Loft, Debbie Morriss, Marcia Haywood and Sydney-Jean Barker.

Miss Allin, her mother and grandmother and the groom-elect's mother all received corsages of carnations when Mrs. A. E. Jones held a shower in her Oakdowne Road home. Gifts were in a book-shaped box. Invited guests were Mrs. E. A. Hobbs, Mrs. Norman Putnam, Mrs. A. E. Loft, Mrs. Fred Furlough, Mrs. Colin Nickols, the Misses Karen Johannesen, Sydney-Jean Barker and Liz Taylor.

MacKENZIE-SMITH

Couple Honeymoon in South After Cathedral Ceremony

Following their recent wedding in St. Andrew's Cathedral, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Keith Douglas MacKenzie travelled on honeymoon to California. When they return, they will make their home in Vancouver.

The bride, the former Susan Lynn Smith, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gilhooly, 639 Ridgebank Crescent, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Florence Bennett, Spryfield, N.S., and the late Michael Bennett.

Fr. N. Kennedy officiated at the ceremony and Mr. Gilhooly gave his step-daughter in marriage.

Arrangements of pink and white chrysanthemums decorated the altar for the wedding. Organist was Mr. Barclay.

The bride's floor-length gown was accented by a crocheted empire-line bodice. The floor-length skirt was styled along A-lines. Back interest was a floor-length train which extended back from the waist. A floral headpiece, "something borrowed" from matron of honor Mrs. Gary Fairhurst, held her lace-trimmed, shoulder-length veil of net. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white feathered carnations

The bride's attendants were dressed alike in A-line gowns in rose pink tones. Highlighting the bodices were white velvet bows at the empire waistlines. Mrs. Fairhurst carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations and ivy. Bridesmaid Miss Coleen Lambert and junior bridesmaid, the bride's sister Miss Jo-Anne Smith, carried bouquets of pink carnations to match their dresses.

Gary Fairhurst was best man, and ushering guests to pews marked with pink chrysanthemums were Dennis Brady, Verona, Ont., and Howard Kettle, Port Aux-Bais, Nfld.

At the reception in Holyrood House, the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink roses. Vases of pink roses flanked the cake. Mr. Barclay played for dancing. A. Smith proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. MacKenzie chose a three-piece Italian knit suit in rose-pink shade trimmed with satin. Her hat was en tone and accessories were black patent. She completed her ensemble with a white orchid corsage.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

"Now if I remember what they told me this morning when I started this job, I should find the trouble back here someplace."

TODAY'S RECIPE

The proof of whipped fresh orange cream is definitely in the eating. This delectable, souffle-ligh. dessert will please all pudding fans. Handsomely served in golden orange shells, it's elegant party fare. And, so easy to prepare, it's the ideal happy ending to family meals.

Juicy, sweet oranges from the western sun country give the unmatched fresh flavor and goodness.

WHIPPED FRESH ORANGE CREAM IN ORANGE SHELLS

Six large or 8 medium oranges, one 3¾-ounce package vanilla whipped dessert mix, ½ cup cold milk, one 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened, cut into 6 pieces.

Slice tops from oranges, cutting off about one-fourth of each orange. Using a curved serrated knife or sharp paring knife, cut orange "meat" away from shells. Scoop meat from shells, holding them over a bowl and scraping shells "clean" with a large spoon. Arrange shells in a muffin pan for easy handling; refrigerate. Drain orange "meat," reserving ½ cup juice; refrigerate juice until thoroughly chilled. Cut drained orange into bite-size pieces. Combine dessert mix and cold milk according to package directions; beat at highest speed of electric mixer 1 minute. Blend in chilled orange juice and continue beating for 2 minutes. Add softened cream cheese pieces and beat at high speed until mixture is smooth. Carefully fold in bit-size orange pieces; chill until partially set, about 30 minutes. Spoon into orange shells, mounding slightly. Refrigerate at least 1 hour before serving. Makes 6-8 servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It seems to me that temporary part-time work is a wonderful way for the mature woman who wants a job to get back into the swing of things. She can work when and where she pleases and start and stop whenever she likes. What's more, if her skills are a bit rusty, she can brush them up free of charge while working in temporary part-time jobs.

Lowman

There was a time when the woman of middle age or older found it difficult to get a job. That is no longer true. As a matter of fact, business needs you no matter what your age, in all kinds of temporary work.

No mature woman need be unemployed if she can do a good day's work, and is neat, dressed with taste and is alert. Business needs them.

In order to lure the mature person into temporary jobs one American expert has invented what he calls the "Red Carpet Program." Every woman coming into one of his firm's offices who has been away from work for some time or is entering the business world for the first time is given job guidance by a counsellor. This helps her discover what kind of work she could do best and would enjoy most.

She also is given advice about how to dress and make up for today's office and how to act in the office. What's more, she is provided with facilities for brushing up her skills. All this is free. That's how much the part-time workers are needed.

There has been a tremendous increase in the demand for part-time temporary workers during the past few years. Many companies keep a hard-core staff and then get in temporary help at time when their business is at its peak. Some businesses are somewhat seasonal, like the travel business. Other concerns find that they just cannot get enough work done between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with their regular staff. Replacements may be needed at vacation time and because of illness or absence of a regular worker. Whatever the reasons, the demand is great.

NATIONAL POSTAL STRIKE

Full Impact Impossible to Gauge

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—The threatened national postal strike is already causing a mail-early rush but the full impact of any pre-Christmas mail shutdown is impossible to gauge at this point.

Post office and union officials can recite chapter and verse of the results of last summer's crippling three-province postal strike, but to predict how a walkout this month would hit the householder involves too many ifs.

The intangibles:

—Would the government allow such a strike to take place, and if so, for how long before ordering workers back to their jobs on pain of dismissal?

—Would the government call out the armed forces to sort and deliver mail, and if such inexperienced personnel were used what kind of delay would Christmas presents and cards and other mail undergo?

—Will the 11,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers and 9,000-member Letter Carriers Union of Canada stick to their demands for a $1 - an - hour raise over two years with, a 50-cent increase payable at once?

VOLUME GROWING

Post offices in Montreal and Ottawa already report a sharp upswing in volume of mail being handled. Most of it is due to magazine or companies pushing third-class advertising material destined for the pre-Christmas trade.

Little publicity has been given to the fact that 30,000 non-postal employees are in the same pay grouping as the postal clerks and carriers.

Claude Edwards, provisional president of the 120,000-member Public Service Alliance, has made it clear that any raise granted postal workers must also go to those represented by his organization. His union seeks an eight-per-cent interim raise.

The postal workers are seeking roughly a $2,000-a-year increase over a two-year agreement. Multiply that by 50,000 employees and the Canadian taxpayer would be paying $100,000,000 more a year.

Postal clerks, those who sort mail, now earn a maximum of $5,215 annually. They want $7,205. Letter carriers now are at $4,965 a year maximum and want $6,900. It takes a postal clerk six years to reach his maximum, assuming he makes normal progress, and a carrier four years.

How do the postal unions justify such increases?

They say their members were on a par with non-federal employees such as policemen and firemen a few years ago. Now they lag $1,000 to $1,500 behind and want to close the gap.

They also cite the most ponderous, baffling list of regulations in the public service and miserable working conditions—the recent report of a royal commission agreed with the latter.

Postal workers must know their cities—and often national and foreign mailing points—memorize stamp charges, zone numbers and money - order rates, and carry mail bags weighing up to 40 pounds or more.

If they don't, a system of fines and suspensions—unique in the public service — comes into play. They can be fined for losing mail box keys and numerous other offences. They work a 40-hour week while most of the government service works 37½.

Although pay is the main topic of the continuing talks between union representatives and officials of the treasury board, some of the other points mentioned are believed to have come up.

Should the postal workers strike, and the government let such a walkout continue for some time, most points affected will be closed down. Efforts were made last summer to keep vital mail flowing but officials said they didn't work.

One point cleared part of its incoming or outgoing mail only to have it grind to a halt at the next point.

One consolation — the postal unions both have said they want to avoid inconveniencing Canadians at Christmas.

That's why they predict their strike will either be averted or called within the next week or so, thereby allowing time for a strike of several weeks and a settlement by mid-December—still time, perhaps, to get presents through the mails.

Profit Low, Efficiency High Meatpackers Tell Probers

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Fresh claims of innocence, this time from meatpackers, have been laid before parliamentarians hunting causes of the high cost of food.

The meat industry's big three testified Monday and Tuesday that their profits are low and their efficiency high.

The Senate - Commons committee on living costs has heard the same thing from the supermarkets, the food processors and the wholesalers.

The committee must report by Christmas on who it believes, and what it thinks the government should do to arrest price increases.

The unspoken assumption during committee hearings seems to be that the farmer deserves every cent he gets for the products he puts into the food system.

W. F. McLean, Canada Packers president, said the cure lies not in paying the farmer less, but in increasing the efficiency of the rest of the food industry.

Mr. McLean laid bare his company's operations in great detail with a 3,000-word brief and 19 major exhibits. Committee counsel John Urie said he was left "almost speechless" by the comprehensive material.

Earlier in the day, executives of Swift Canadian Co. Ltd. were upbraided for failing to bring along even such figures as gross sales, their relative position in the industry, and the fees charged by their parent American firm for research services.

Swift President P. L. Ayers said he could not recall even round figures and would have to supply them later.

Senator David Croll, committee co-chairman, asked for a special hearing to bring Swift back for cross-examination on the figures, which have been supplied in direct evidence by all other witnesses.

REVEALS PROFIT

Canada Packers said its livestock division's sales last year of $392,000,000 returned a net profit of only four-tenths of a cent on each dollar, or $1,684,418.

Swift gave a percentage figure of eight-tenths of a cent on the dollar and no figure on total sales.

In testimony Monday, Burns Foods Ltd. reported total sales by its meatpacking division of $138,000,000 and a profit of one-eighth of one cent on the dollar.

Mr. McLean said Canada Packers holds 28 per cent of the market and Swift and Burns share between 22 and 27 per cent. The rest is occupied by smaller packers, many of them operating only in regions of Canada.

Swift said its interests in dairies, feeds, chemicals and potash account for 25 per cent of its total sales and Canada Packers outlined a raft of processing enterprises ranging from vegetables to drugs that account for almost half its total sales.

The committee sits again Thursday to hear testimony from Kellogg Co. of Canada Ltd. and General Foods Ltd.

Heathers Provide Color for Winter

By HILDA BEASTALL

Tubs and planters can be a bit of a problem when thinking of them in terms of winter color on the same scale as provided by summer annuals.

Hilda

This is not possible in our general area, but pleasing arrangements of spreading shrubby material can be used.

The chief difficulty lies in the fact that rarely does a gardener wish to purchase plants of a sufficient size to provide a finished display, and smaller plants make little additional growth during winter.

Heathers are possibly the most satisfactory solution for winter color in planters facing southeast, south or southwest. These aspects are needed if sufficient winter sunlight is to reach the plants.

Variegated ivy can be used for a north side, especially if an unlimited supply is on hand. The gardener can find, and dig up, large rooted trailing mats for quick transference to the planters.

These will create an immediate effect, and will either be retained all season because of their attractiveness, or may be considered expendable, to be replaced by flowering material for summer.

True dwarf conifers, of the kinds which take several years to grow to a foot in height, could be used for winter planters and lifted in late spring for planting in a reserve spot in the garden.

For several years, these dwafs would fulfil the winter needs and would not suffer from being lifted carefully and replanted.

The soil would have to be prepared of fibrous loam and peat moss, containing no additional fertilizers at any time. Perhaps the chief thought regarding tubs and planters needs to be given to moisture within the soil.

INVOLVEMENT DENIED, TRIAL TOLD

Castellani Warned to End Association With Woman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rene Castellani, charged with capital murder in the arsenic death of his wife Esther, was warned by his boss to end his association with another woman or be fired, a B.C. Supreme Court jury was told Tuesday.

W. J. Hughes, manager of a New Westminster radio station where Castellani, 40, was employed before his wife's death July 11, 1965, said he spoke to the accused early in 1965.

Mr. Hughes said he told Castellani he had heard reports about an association between Castellani and Mrs. Adelaide (Lollie) Miller, then a receptionist at the station.

Mr. Hughes said Castellani denied the association and when he was told the radio station's promotion van was seen parked outside Mrs. Miller's apartment at 3 a.m., Castellani said he was delivering a prescription for Mrs. Miller's sick child.

"I asked him where he would find a drug store open in New Westminster at that time of night and he did not answer," said Mr. Hughes. "I told him that the association must be terminated or both would be dismissed."

Herman Fiorillo, office manager and accountant at the station, told the court he spoke to Castellani about rumors he had heard concerning Mrs. Miller.

He said the accused denied involvement.

Earlier, builder Warren L. Peterson testified that Castellani and Mrs. Miller inspected a home he had for sale in June, 1965, and Mrs. Miller said she and Castellani were planning marriage and a holiday in Disneyland.

The Crown is attempting to prove Castellani progressively gave his wife doses of arsenic in food while she was in hospital. An autopsy on her body showed heavy traces of arsenic.

The trial continues.

$1 PER PERSON SPENT BY GOV'T FOR TOURISM

VERNON (CP) — Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Tuesday the provincial government will spend slightly more than a dollar per person in British Columbia on promotion of the tourist industry in 1966.

He was speaking at the annual meeting of the tourist and advisory council.

Mr. Kiernan estimated $1,644,000 will be spent by the Provincial Travel Bureau; $155,000 will be spent by British Columbia Ferries, and another $50,000 will be spent by British Columbia Hydro in looking after visitors to the Peace River power project.

LEADERSHIP RACE

Lin Piao Edging 'Mao the Thought'

By FORREST EDWARDS

HONG KONG (AP) — Military boss Lin Piao has, in the opinion of some competent China analysts here, effectively reduced Mao Tse-tung to a mere symbol and himself taken over the real leadership of the Communist party and the nation.

"Mao the leader" has been faded into "Mao the thought" while Lin has advanced himself in three months from tentative heir-apparent to the real executive power.

It is, says one Westerner who has the job of assessing China's developments for his government, like a power takeover in a big company. He asserts:

"The trusted aide has taken control from the ageing company founder, whose picture and mottos have been hung on the wall for generations by the underlings and as a symbol that the old man approved the power grab.

"Whether or not he approved may never be known by the minor stockholders. But the old man obviously preferred being figurehead chairman of the board to risking a power fight with the new executive chief."

Behind the thinking of this analyst and others who hold similar beliefs is the increasing exaltation of Lin Pao's leadership in China's press and radio broadcasts.

Reports reaching Hong Kong say provincial radio stations and newspapers throughout China have inaugurated a massive campaign to "learn from Comrade Lin Piao."

Lin is portrayed as the man who will lead the people to true understanding and true application of the thought of Mao Tse-tung. The significant factor, say the analysts, is that the reference is always to Lin, not Mao, as the leader. Mao is relegated to the position of thinker of thoughts.

Beginning in August, Lin Piao's name approached almost equal prominence with that of Mao. By mid-September, it had received virtually equal prominence.

Now, according to one research organization here, Lin Piao's name tends to surpass that of Mao.

McNamara Heckled

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Student demonstrators threw themselves beneath a car carrying Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara Monday, forcing him out for a shouting "debate." McNamara was shouted down whenever he tried to speak and had to be led away through steam tunnels by Harvard university and city policemen.

WOMAN, 93, ENDS LONG SEA VOYAGE

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (Reuters)—A 93-year-old British grandmother arrived with her family in New Zealand Tuesday after a 10-month, 10,400-mile voyage from Kenya in a sailing vessel.

Mrs. Emily Cole, who spent most of the time knitting, said the voyage was most enjoyable. She said she was "very thrilled" to be in New Zealand.

She arrived in the Bay of Islands, north of here, in the 40-foot Trimaran skippered by her 61-year-old son, Lt.-Cmdr. George Cole.

Cole decided to take his family to start a new life in New Zealand after their Kenyan farm was taken over by the government.

Also on board were Cole's wife, their 24-year-old daughter Jane and 21-year-old son Giles.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CBC has bombarded television columnists from coast to coast the past couple of weeks with countless bits of information claiming the "Wojeck" series attracts the biggest audience of any Canadian-produced network program.

Stephen

Among all network shows, Canadian and U.S.-produced, it is outrated by only Red Skelton, Bonanza and Ed Sullivan.

The program, according to the public network, is being watched by an estimated 31 per cent of all adults and teen-agers in English-speaking Canada. This represents 2,800,000 viewers.

The figures come from the CBC's own National Audience Panel, a sample survey operation which obtains information from a selected cross-section of some 2,000 persons across the country who report, each week, which network programs they have watched.

Holy, Holly! Toronto's Santa Claus parade, an annual event in the big town, will be televised across the country for the first time by CTV network.

The parade, often described as being one of the best of its kind in North America, will beam, in color, on Nov. 19.

NBC-TV has refused to have one of its specials clash with a big one slated for CBS-TV. The peacock network has scheduled its 25th Anniversary of Pearl Harbor documentary for Nov. 27 rather than throw it in against the CBS Frank Sinatra Special on Dec. 7. If all networks followed this procedure, viewers would really get the preferred treatment.

SHORT CIRCUIT: The Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy Anniversary Radio Show will be broadcast on CBC radio Sunday, Nov. 13, at 5 p.m.

Bergen and Charlie will preside over a capsule history of 40 years of radio broadcasting, using edited versions of actual comedy programs and actuality coverage of noted events.

Such voices as Fred Allen, Amos 'n' Andy, Tallulah Bankhead, Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bing Crosby, Al Jolson, Groucho Marx, Will Rogers and Ed Wynn will be heard.

The program will also go back in history for events surrounding such as King Edward VIII, Sir Winston Churchill, Roosevelt, Kennedy, Truman, Charles Lindbergh and "Wrong Way" Corrigan.

ROME!!
All roads lead to Rome, they say, but in Victoria, it seems all roads lead to Douglas and Hillside. From recent city hall records, the daily traffic flow is considered to be in excess of 30,000 cars daily. Yes, we have available for the investor who thinks ahead, 180 feet on Hillside and about 130 feet on Gorge Rd., with access off both. What will it be? European car agency with safety lane, hotel, motel, medical-dental building, office building, or could be suited to many other investment-type properties. With land at this corner at a premium—underground parking is feasible. For complete information on the handling of this valuable property call W. MOORE or P. WILLS, anytime, at 388-4271. J. H. Fifteen houses in this area, presently occupied by tenants, now being offered for sale. These are nearly all three-bedroom houses. Several are only a year or two old. None have basements, but most have Oil-o-Matic heating, plumbing for automatic washers and wiring for electric range and dryer, paved driveways, carports.
Taxes are low! (In most cases only $25-$60 a year to the owner.) Best of all, only $1,000 down and the balance like rent. No mortgages to raise or commissions to pay. All financing arranged for you. Only one payment to make. These are certainly not mansions, but good comfortable family homes, particularly suited to a young family starting out. Most prices range from $10,400-$12,400. Some older houses are even less.
We will be happy to arrange to show you these houses by appointment.
If you wish to drive past them first we will mail you a list showing the addresses and prices. (Please do not disturb the tenants.) Simply call 478-4446 or 478-4116 and leave your name and address. No one will call on you unless requested.

VESSEL BREAKING UP ON ROCKS, 2 ABOARD

ADAK, Alaska (AP) — A U.S. navy patrol plane from Adak Tuesday night reported seeing two men on a U.S. landing craft which is breaking up on rocks in the Aleutian Islands.

The pilot of the patrol plane said the two men, visible on the deck, apparently were in good condition. Bad weather kept the plane from further investigation or dropping survival gear.

The U.S. navy tug Munses reached the scene about midnight and reported a light on the beach. A boat was put ashore but nothing has been reported.

. . . GOP VICTORIES

win the two races in which the outcome still is in doubt, in Alaska and Georgia, they will control a majority of the nation's state Houses — 26 to 24—for the first time in many years. Before the balloting, the Democrats had a 33 - 17 bulge.

Even more significant, the rebou[illegible]g Republicans won the governorships of five of the seven largest states, assuring a solid GOP base for the 1968 presidential campaign.

The Democrats unseated two Republican governors. Kenneth Curtis defeated Gov. John Reed in Maine and Robert Docking, son of the late Gov. George Docking, beat Gov. William H. Avery of Kansas.

Republicans displaced Democratic governors in eight states —Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada and New Mexico.

Bright New Galaxy of Stars

The GOP, which suffered a disastrous defeat in 1964 under the banner of Barry Goldwater, emerged from the 1966 balloting with a bright new galaxy of political stars who are sure to figure prominently in the 1968 casting.

Among them were:

● Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who swept to re-election by a landslide majority, pulling in on his coat tails Michigan's first Republican senator in 14 years, at least 3 new GOP congressmen and an apparent majority of the state legislature.

● Former movie star Ronald Regan, who was elected governor of California by a margin of nearly a million votes over two-term Democratic incumbent Edmund (Pat) Brown.

● Sen.-elect Charles H. Percy of Illinois, who unseated 74-year-old Democratic veteran Paul H. Douglas.

● Sen.-elect Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, first Negro elected to the Senate since the Civil War.

● Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, re-elected by a whopping majority that swept his party into control of many other state offices.

● Sen.-elect Mark Hatfield of Oregon, who like Percy was a dove-side critic of administration policy in Viet Nam.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York retained a powerful seat among the GOP kingmakers by winning re-election handily in what was expected to be a close contest with Democrat Frank O'Connor.

The Republicans elected governors in Florida and Arkansas for the first time since the civil war, and GOP candidate Rep. Howard Callaway was leading in Georgia in a close race with Democratic segregationist Lester Maddox.

Appeal to White Backlash Fails

In Maryland, Republican Spiro Agnew won the governorship by a convincing majority over Democrat George Mahoney, who appealed to "white backlash" sentiment with a campaign pitched on opposition to an open housing law.

Democrats found little to cheer about, even in some races which were officially listed as Democratic victories. One such was in Alabama, where George Wallace saw his wife, Lurleen, elected to the governorship for which he was ineligible to run again—thus providing him with a political base from which he could launch a third-term presidential bid in 1968.

The Republican bounce-back from 1964's humiliating defeat came on a record outpouring of votes for an off-year election in which the White House was not at stake.

The GOP never had any chance of winning control of Congress but its gains exceeded Johnson's worst fears. While making no forecasts, Johnson told a recent news conference that even a Republican gain of 40 to 50 House seats would not affect U.S. foreign policy.

The Republicans rode to victory on assorted issues ranging from war worries to high prices and the white backlash. The backlash effect was muted, however, and cut both ways.

Many Republicans pitched their campaigns against Johnson and big or "one party" government and said a better balance was needed in Congress.

They also had going for them the law of averages. Since 1912, when the House was fixed at its present 435 members, the party in power has lost an average of 36 seats in non-presidential election years.

Democrats 'Shocked' by Loss

Democratic strategists privately were shocked at the outcome, although publicly they sought to minimize their House losses. They characterized them as a return to what they now were picturing as the pre-LBJ "normal" margin between Democrats and Republicans.

Romney crowed about "national Republican unity" today and disclosed he already was in touch with the party's other big winners.

Romney ducked questions about his alleged aspirations for the 1968 presidential nomination and refused to say whether he would serve the full four-year term he won with a record margin of nearly 500,000 votes.

Nelson Rockefeller, advised by some members of his own party a few months ago to quit politics, bounced back with a decisive, third straight Gubernatorial victory.

Rockefeller, who has renounced further presidential ambitions, has indicated a preference for Romney.

Roosevelt Vote Hurts O'Connor

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., running as the Liberal party candidate, hurt O'Connor. But Paul L. Adams, the Conservative party professor and strong 1964 Barry Goldwater backer, cost Rockefeller heavily, too.

Returns from 12,409 of the state's 13,170 election districts gave Rockefeller 2,518,486, O'Connor 2,127,393, Roosevelt 483,934 and Adams 472-187.

Rockefeller's win was all the more remarkable in that the Republican party did not register significant congressional gains in New York as they did in many other places across the nation.

Hatfield, 44, defeated his Democratic opponent, Rep. Robert Duncan, for the Senate in an Oregon contest that muddied the "clear-cut" test of voter support for President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

Hatfield, the two-term GOP chief executive, had 314,025 votes to 288,709 for Duncan with 2,601 of the state's 2,905 precincts reporting.

Duncan led in populous Multnomah County (Portland), but Hatfield countered with substantial strength upstate, including a majority in the fourth district which Duncan represented for two terms in Congress.

National political observers viewed the contest as a referendum for the military effort in Viet Nam. Hatfield campaigned in opposition to the U.S. troop commitment there, instead advocating a stepped-up drive for peace, if necessary with the Viet Cong and Peking.

Duncan, 45, entered the race in support of Johnson.

The war was much on the mind of the Oregon voter, but so, too, was inflation and the tight money curb, which hit hard at the lumber economy — the state's number one industry.

Italy Hikes Gas Tax For Flood Rebuilding

ROME (Reuters)—The Italian cabinet today put a higher tax on gasoline which it said would bring in about $291,000,000 in two years to finance reconstruction of regions stricken in the last week of flooding.

The cabinet also gave approval for the immediate spending of some $74,000,000 to finance relief needed at once in the mud-washed, storm-devastated cites and agricultural provinces hit by the floods which came after 10 days of torrential rain.

Meantime, Florence appealed to the world for funds to restore damage estimated at more than $140,000,000 to its art treasures.

More than 600 paintings, 1,000 manuscripts and books of priceless historical value were damaged by the water, mud and oil which swept through the beautiful renaissance city.

Flood waters were subsiding today in Florence, the Po delta and Venice but the situation was reported still desperate in the southern Dolomites where tens of thousands were marooned or homeless.

ATTEMPT to climb 9,000-foot Mount Kilmanjaro will be made next September as Centennial project by Erik Sheer, eight, and his father, Frank. They display Canadian flag given them Tuesday in Ottawa by Prime Minister Pearson. It will be presented by the Sheers to Tanzanian President Nyerere. (CP Photo.)

'REASONABLE DOUBT'

Jury Frees Accused After 5-Hour Study

Wayne Albert Brown, 23, was acquitted in B.C. Assize Court Wednesday on charges of breaking and entering and theft and being in possession of housebreaking tools.

The 12-man jury deliberated its verdict for more than five hours.

Brown was accused of breaking into the Sam Kee grocery, 142 Moss Street, in the early hours of Sunday, Aug. 15, and stealing groceries, cigarettes and about $5 from the till.

Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse said the crown had failed to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that it was Brown who broke into the store. He said the identification of goods stolen from the store had been most unsatisfactory.

Mr. Gatehouse also challenged the crown's submission that a screwdriver and a hammer found in the car Brown was driving had been used to break into the store.

PAINT MATCHED

Crown prosecutor E. George MacMinn called police experts to testify that flecks of paint taken from the tip of the screwdriver matched flecks taken from the front door of the Sam Kee grocery.

Mr. Gatehouse contended this was not proof that the screwdriver found in the car was the one used to break into the store.

He said the car Brown was driving had been borrowed from Mrs. Lois Ross, then a resident of 46 South Turner Street. But the car was not used until nearly 4 a.m. at which time Brown and a companion were stipped by police on Fisgard Street near the police station.

Mr. Gatehouse argued that anyone could have used the car between midnight, when Brown borrowed the keys, and 4 a.m. when he was stopped by police.

SOLUTION MONDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Deborah William, age 12, of Charleston, W.Va., for her question:

How many animals are in the cat family?

The tame tabby is a small cousin of the tiger. Like all cats, they are magnificent and highly advanced members of the animal world. They hunt at high tension with patience and split-second timing. Then their superb nerves and muscles rest in complete relaxation.

Felidae, the cat family, grew up with the Age of Mammals, and the fossil remains of small, catty ancestors date back more than 50 million years. The earliest cats might have been mistaken for foxes or weasels and later there were dog-type cats and even bear-type cats. The catty-type cats arrived about 35 million years ago. A monstrous feline called the sabre-toothed tiger prowled around during the last Ice Age, some 20,000 years ago. He has since become extinct.

Zoologists are not certain of the exact number of different felines in the family Felidae. About 50 species have been described but some, such as the cheetah, have some rather uncatty features. What's more, different species often interbreed and produce a different cat species.

In any case, all the felines have furry coats, all the modern cats and also all those dating back to the remote ancestor of 50 million years ago. Nature most likely intended that they should make themselves at home in chilly climates such as the polar regions. But every cat, from the tame tabby to the terrible tiger, is devoted to comfort. The felines of long ago got news of warmer climates and moved there.

There still is a big fluffy cat with a spotted coat living high in the snowy Himalayas. But the rest of the felines enjoy cozy lives in warm or temperate zones, and most of them prefer the torrid tropics. The family may be divided into groups according to size. There are big-cats, not-so-big-cats, small-cats and quite-small-cats.

Species Found Everywhere

Tigers, leopards and jaguars are big cats and so is the lion, king of the beasts. Our mountain lion is one of several not-so-big-cats. Ocelots and bobcats belong in a group of smallish cats. This group includes a large number of wild felines living in woods and forests and steamy jungles around the world. The small cats include tabby and our tame house pets. Their wild cousins are at home almost everywhere, and the first tame tabby probably was domesticated from small wild cats of the African desert. Some of the small, wild felines are extremely hard to find and identify and zoologists suspect that many of them are still unlisted. We must leave spaces to add them to the list of the 50 known members of the cat family.

Cheetahs are rather strange east of Africa and Asia. Unlike other felines, they are unable to sheathe their claws. The servals are smallish, long-legged cats who hunt in the grassy veldt-lands of Africa. Another unusual cat or group of cats is a native of the New World. He is the jaguarondi and both plain and spotted-types range all through Central and South America. Zoologists are not certain whether these jaguarondis are the same or different species.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Eric Browne, age 11, of Eugene, Ore., for his question:

What is the origin of the word atom?

The word atom is borrowed from Greek words meaning uncut or undivided. The idea of the atom dates back to Democritus, a philosopher of ancient Greece who was born in 460 B.C. He suggested that matter must be composed of small, indivisible particles called atoms. These atoms, he said, come in different shapes and are arranged in different orders. They cannot, he said, be cut or broken into smaller particles. But by rearranging their positions they cause substances to change from one to another.

The Age of Science proved most of this ancient theory to be correct. However, it proved that the basic meaning of the word atom is wrong. We know that each different atom is made of smaller particles. It is not indivisible. We have smashed the atom and studied its pieces.

TOKYO (UPI) — North Korea has charged the United States and South Korea carried out "frenzied military provocation" during President Johnson's visit north of the demilitarized zone to Seoul last week. The Communists said American GIs and ROK forces made 33 attacks north of the zone separating North and South Korea between Oct. 20 and Nov. 3.

YOUR HEALTH

Types of Blindness That Threaten Us

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

It is estimated that there are now 420,000 people in the United States who are either totally blind or with such poor vision that they cannot do much work.

Alvarez

Blindness tends to come with age. Among older people, the commonest disease which causes poor sight is degeneration of the retina (the seeing part of the eye); sometimes this is associated with hardening of the arteries and with diabetes.

Another problem that can confront some aging people is senile degeneration of the macula (a spot). This spot is the small part of the retina which is specially constructed to enable us to see small objects. It enables us to read, and it enables the watchmaker to repair watches.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Steven Popovich of Los Angeles tells about it in "Light," a journal published by the Braille Institution of America. He says that degeneration of the macula was first described some 100 years ago. In spite of the large amount of research and study carried out since then, opthalmologists still have little to offer the patient who comes suffering with this form of degeneration of the eye. It usually begins in one eye, but eventually involves both eyes.

It is thought to result from poor circulation or hardening of the arteries; or in many people it may be just a part of the aging process. The people affected do not lose that part of the vision that is needed to get about. Fortunately, the condition never leads to total blindness.

★ ★ ★

Glaucoma is another threat to people's vision. It is a disease in which the pressure within the eyeball becomes so high that the circulation of the seeing part of the back of the eye is impaired, and the vision tends to be lost.

Cataracts, of course, are found usually in older persons, and usually more often in women than in men, although we doctors don't know why this should be.

Detective Says RCMP Involved in 'Bugging'

FATAL TUG SINKING BRINGS JAIL TERM

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Clifford John Rudland, captain of a tugboat that sank with the loss of five lives, was sentenced to six months in jail today for operating a vessel in a manner dangerous to navigation, life and limb.

A Supreme Court jury acquitted him on a further charge of criminal negligence in causing the death of Leslie Ryan, one of the five killed in the sinking August 28.

"I cannot in the public interest avoid consideration of the terrible tragedy which was caused by your navigation on that day," said Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

MICHIGAN'S George Romney, left, re-elected as governor, and Senator Robert Griffin, make their victory appearance in Detroit. Romney is now considered as a top Republican presidential candidate in 1968. He defeated Democrat Zolton Ferency. Griffin defeated G. Mennen Williams.

Political Intrigue Hinted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Private detective Weldin Brock (Bud) Graham hinted today at political facets in the case of the bugged labor convention.

The former RCMP officer said in a radio interview he was aware of political connections in the case, but declined to amplify.

Assistant Commissioner F. S. Spalding, B.C.'s top RCMP officer, ordered a full investigation into Mr. Graham's claims that members of the RCMP were involved in the bugging of a union leader's hotel room.

Mr. Graham said in an interview Tuesday night that Cpl. Harry Reid of the RCMP's security and intelligence division arranged a meeting with him and Pat O'Neal, organizer of the Internationatl Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Graham said the result of the meeting was that Mr. O'Neal paid him $250 to install electronic listening equipment in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Assistant Commissioner Spalding said in Victoria he heard the radio broadcast and decided the situation warranted an investigation.

He hoped it would be completed later today.

He declined ocmment when asked if the results of the investigation will be made public.

"The investigation is under way and I want to get the reports first and give them scrutiny," he said.

Vancouver police transport department officilas Monday seized $700 worth of electronic equipment from three rooms in the Ritz Hotel, where the Canadian Pulp and Paper Workers Union is holding its convention.

UNION LEADER DIES

One of the three rooms was occupied by Lloyd Craig, president of the Canadian union who died there Saturday of a heart attack.

John Fisk, deputy Vancouver police chief, said "as far as we are concerned it was a natural death."

O'Neal denied earlier he had anything to do with bugging the rooms and could not be located today to comment on the allegation he paid Graham $250 as a retainer.

Graham, who said he was a member of the RCMP's security and intelligence division from 1955 to 1962, said he would have refused the job except he believed he was acting for the police.

Graham said he placed microphones in Craig's room, in Room 206 and an adjacent committee room. A receiving set was put in Room 309 on the floor above.

"I have never done any bugging before and would have refused this case had I not thought it was a RCMP request," he said.

"I was surprised and flattered when Cpl. Reid came to me. It appeared the RCMP was assisting one union to spy on another."

FIND MIKE

Canadian union officials said the first microphone was found Saturday when it fell from a portable cupboard that was being moved to make more room in the committee room.

The union then hired a private detective agency which found the microphones in Room 206 and in Craig's room.

Angus MacPhee, vice-president of the Canadian union, said officials became suspicious of Room 309 — where the receiving set was located — because the blinds were shut all the time.

MacPhee said the room was kept under surveillnce and

Johnson Control of House Hit by GOP Victories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans came back strong in Tuesday's elections, wresting at least seven governorships from the Democrats and winning enough House seats to hamstring President Johnson's great society legislative program.

The off-year elections also gave the GOP a greatly expanded array of proven vote-getters who doubtless will play a part as candidates or king-makers in the 1968 presidential contest.

Among the Republican candidates who won big were Govs. George Romney of Michigan, Nelson Rockefeller of New York and James Rhodes of Ohio, Gov.-Elect Ronald Reagan of California, and Sens. - Elect Charles Percy of Illnois. Negro Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

Former vice-president Richard Nixon, who carried the campaign bod for the GOP, also emerged with revitalized political lustre.

Southern Democrats Hold Control

Democrats retained numerical control of both chambers of Congress but with reduced margins that will transfer real control to a conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

President Johnson, who received the returns at his Texas ranch, withheld direct comment on the Republican gains. But acting White House press secretary, George Christian, said: "He the President), obviously wishes that every man that he wanted elected had been elected. But on the other hand, the Senate Democratic majority will be in the neighborhood of 64 to 36, which is a pretty good majority in anyone's estimation. And the House majority will be in the neighborhood of 250 to 185."

Nearly complete returns showed that the Republicans had elected 182 House members and were ahead in 5 other races for a total of 187, compared to 140 they held in the last congress. The Democrats had nailed down 247 seats and led in 1 contest for an indicated total of 248, compared to their previous 295.

This would mean a net gain of 47 House seats for the GOP.

In the Senate, where 35 of the 100 seats were at issue, the GOP won 18 races, the Democrats 17. The new Senate lineup of 64 to 36 represents a gain of 3 seats for the GOP.

In the 35 gubernatorial races, Republicans won 22 and were leading in two others. Democrats won 11. If the Republicans

REAGAN OVERPOWERS BROWN

Conservatives Find Heir to Goldwater

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Political newcomer Ronald Reagan today won California's governorship in a landslide that made him a national GOP political force. But he promptly denied even "favorite son" presidential hopes in 1968.

In his first bid for political office, Reagan swept into the helm of the nation's most popular state by overpowering two-term Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The victory made him the newly crowned leader of GOP conservatives but Reagan said he did not think his victory signalled a swing to conservatism in California. He scorned the use of "labels".

However, conservative backers made it plain they saw him as inheriting the mantle of former U.S. senator Barry Goldwater, overwhelmed as GOP presidential standard bearer in 1964.

With 25,191 of the state's 28,573 precincts reporting, Reagan had 3,089,208 votes to 2,229,696 for Brown. His vic-

Easing of East-West Relations Martin Hope

MOSCOW (CP)—Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin said today productive discussions between East and West seem more likely and are more desirable than in the past.

The minister said talks between himself and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are not going to solve any of the world's major problems.

"But I am convinced that each of us can in these talks derive a better understanding of each country's point of view and, I hope, move at least some of the problems forward a little closer to solution."

Martin was speaking at a luncheon given in his honor by Gromyko on the first day of a three-day Moscow visit by a Canadian group headed by the external affairs minister.

Martin earlier held what were described as friendly talks with Gromyko, who gave the Canadian the spotlight during airport interviews after his arrival this morning.

Martin flew here from Warsaw and may also see Premier Alexei Kosygin.

With Canada a member of the International Control Commission that, in theory, supervises peace in Viet Nam, the Vietnamese war was expected to be a major item in Martin's talks here.

Poland also is an ICC member but Martin said in Warsaw Tuesday that the time is not ripe for ICC action on peace negotiations. Talks here will explore when the time might become ripe.

Among those at the airport were First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, the director-general of Tass, Dmitri Goryunov, and the ambassadors of Canada, Britain, India and Poland.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were to attend a ballet performance tonight.

SNOW MAKES DEBUT ON LOWER MAINLAND

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Greater Vancouver area said welcome to winter Tuesday night as the first snow of the season hit the area.

But the flakes in most regions—except in the higher levels of the North Shore mountains—were mixed with rain and melted as they hit the ground.

The mountains had a four-inch blanket and ski enthusiasts were crossing their fingers for a continued fall and an early start to the skiing season.

HELLYER CHARGES 'BLACKMAIL'

It's a Game of Chicken Diefenbaker Wants to Win

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is playing Russian roulette. The right combination in the chamber could blow it up. (See also Page 6.)

Here is how this kind of brinkmanship works:

The government needs about $340,000,000 to pay its November bills. It has to ask Parliament for it.

This opens up a debate called "interim supply" and MPs can talk on any subject they choose for as long as they wish.

The Conservatives, or most of them, decided to go after Defence Minister Hellyer on one specific matter.

Send the armed forces unification bill to the defence committee before Commons second reading — approval in principle — they said, Mr. Hellyer said no. After second reading the bill goes to committee.

The Conservatives have kept talking for eight sitting days, including today. No committee study, no money.

"Blackmail," said Mr. Hellyer.

Friday, Nov. 11, is a Commons holiday. Main pay day for the civil service and a lot of contractors is next Tuesday. But some cheques are due earlier — on Thursday and next Monday.

The Conservatives run the risk of getting civil servants and contractors angry with them.

However, there's a much greater risk than people not getting paid. The government could pull the plug and call an election, even though it's only a year since the last one.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker would dearly like to take another Liberal "retreat" before his party's convention here next week.

But he might be accused by some Conservatives of trying to force an election before his party was ready for one and just so he could try again for the prime ministership.

The question on Parliament Hill today was not "who will win?" but, rather, "who will chicken out first?"

Some sort of compromise seems to be shaping up.

The Liberals won't give in on the unification bill.

But they will throw a very large bone to the Conservatives: Immediate introduction of the legislation to increase old-age pensions for the needy.

The Conservatives have been hammering away at this, too, and they would be able to tell next week's party convention they had forced the government to act.

The government has already compromised to some extent. Last week it said it would bring on the unification bill after interim supply was passed. But it dropped this plan this week.

And Mr. Hellyer has taken a much softer line in the last couple of days — to the point of agreeing with some opposition arguments.

The expectation is that interim supply will be passed Thursday night. But great expectations have gone awry here before.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 9, 1966—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Today for a start, we'll backtrack to the Anti-Cat, or Scat Week, column I wrote last Friday, and take another run at it.

Something like this: 'Whether shorthair, Persian, Siamese, Burmese, Manx or what have you, puss is a sweet, lovable little creature, and the man who would propose a bounty for her or him or it must indeed be a fiend in human form."

And now, if you cat-people will kindly sheath your claws, we can unite in breathing brimstone on the callous wretches who dispose of unwanted cats and kittens by tossing them out of cars along the less-populated roads. It is these persons who are largely responsible for the plague of "wild" cats in some areas.

Were it not for the fact that the people-lovers would be on my back in a trice, I'd suggest a bounty for those who abandon unwanted pets in this cruel fashion.

The most recent castaway was a pup, dropped in a cardboard carton on the roadstrip above our place. We heard him and went up, just as a lady driver pulled in to investigate. She, kind soul, set him box and all in her car, and took him off to the kind of home a dog—or cat, let me hasten to add—deserves.

CBC's 'Sunday,' the show we were assured would prove a worthy replacement to 'This Hour Has Seven Days,' left me both shaken and grateful.

I don't mean it is good. Not for a long time, in fact, has anything quite so bad laid waste a once-anticipated viewing hour. But however swarming its faults, Sunday served to bolster a deep personal conviction.

This is that government sponsorship of television and radio can be justified only when ironclad guarantees are provided against the sort of interference with programming that put Seven Days out of business.

To kill that brilliant show and offer us Sunday—which I have privately retitled 'Never on a Sunday'—is to insult the Canadian intelligence.

We are told by executive producer Daryl Duke that the intent is "to give a mind-expanding, full view of life—a view which has all the intensity and chaotic clarity of an LSD 'trip'."

Well, this viewer hasn't the slightest wish to take off on a government-sponsored LSD junket, and I don't want my living room turned into a new-type discotheque either.

I can also get along without singers Ian and Sylvia—tossed in patronizingly for the young audience—and mumbling interviewers who permit their subjects to make speeches on my time.

Like it or not, I suppose we are stuck for at least a winter with this bore. But, praise be, we don't have to watch it!

★

This is the month when the South Island's unique Garry oaks lay their russet carpet impartially on lawns that welcome the shower and others that would just as soon have the leaves blow on along the block.

As Bruce Hutchison and others have pointed out, it is a sinful waste of good compost to burn autumn leaves. Such reproaches, however, are taken lightly in our leaf-happy town, and these days of brown November are scented with the smoke which is fall's proper incense.

Last weekend you could drive for miles through oak-rich streets without losing the fragrance that wafted from curbside smudges and backyard incinerators; and as many a weary raker is too well aware, a myriad of leaves must still fall before the boughs are bare.

We have no oaks on our place, but the western maple is a pretty good leaf-dropper, and so is the arbutus, which seems to spend most of its year shedding yellow shards.

These lack the oak-leaf tang though, and did we not have our own work cut out for us, I'd be tempted to borrow a bushel or two from someone else's over-supply.

That's it, except to reprimand a writer-in from New York who addressed his letter to "The Colonist Times". We are we and they are they, and never the twain shall meet!

Silence and Prayer Weapons Against War

Silence and prayer are the weapons a Victoria group plans to use against the war in Viet Nam.

The first in a series of weekly silent vigils for peace will be held Saturday from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., at the corner of Douglas and View.

The vigils will continue until the war ends, the organizng Victoria Committee on Canadian Responsibilty in Viet Nam promises.

At 1 p.m. St. John's Anglican Church will open its dors to the public for three hours of prayers for world peace.

Chairman of the organizing committee is William T. Lawson, of 1354 St. David Street.

LAW EXPECTED TO BE TESTED BY CHRISTMAS

Roadside Suspensions Next Month

B.C.'s experiment with "roadside suspensions" probably will be used here for the first time in the pre-Christmas crackdown on drinking drivers.

"It is the object of the attorney-general that this be achieved," Motor Vehicle superintendent Ray Hadfield said Tuesday when asked if the program would be in operation by Christmas.

The legislature last spring passed Attorney-General Robert Bonner's controversial bill authorizing, on proclamation, policemen to make an on-the-spot suspension of a dirver's licence if there is a suspicion of drinking.

The suspension lasts 24 hours only and does not involve a court appearance.

However, a driver can ask for a breath tes. If it shows less than .08 blood-alcohol content he will keep his licence.

Mr. Hadfield said his branch is still engaged in examining simple devices that will register "yes or no" above the .08 level when a suspect blows into them.

But chances that all problems will be solved and the program put into operation in the Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver areas before Christmas "are pretty fair," said Mr. Hadfield.

"The problem with these devices is to ensure that we have quality control," he said. "Tests are being made by research people for us."

Mr. Hadfield would not identify the testing agency but it is known that some of the research is being conducted at the University of Victoria with human "guinea pigs" being examined for their reactions to various quantity-time combinations of liquor consumption.

Once a decision is made among the various "throw away" devices, costing less than $1 each, it will take very little time to instruct police in their use, Mr. Hadfield said.

MDs Unite To Battle Pollution

British Columbia's doctors have decided to jump from the wings into the centre of the growing pollution controversy.

The B.C. Medical Association this morning announced it has set up a special committee to study specific pollution problems and make recommendations.

A Victoria neurologist, Dr. Robert M. Peet, has been picked to be the first chairman of the "committee on environmental health."

The committee will be attached to the association's health planning council headed by Vancouver gynecologist Dr. John Dickinson.

"Doctors have been interested in pollution problems for some time," Dr. Dickinson said in the announcement.

SPECIAL GROUP

"It was decided this year that a special group should go to work on the medical aspects of pollution in all its forms."

Membership of the committee will include doctors from various sections of the province and representatives from the University of Victoria and the University of B.C. The announcement said provincial government officials also have offered to assist the committee whenever necessary.

Dr. Peet said specific projects will be undertaken by his committee.

He emphasized that he will take a scientific-medical approach to the pollution questions "which all too often has been debated on the basis of emotion or special interests."

The committee will examine health factors related to all forms of pollution, whether air, water or soil.

MOUNTING WORRY

The announcement comes as public attention and concern with pollution continues to mount.

The first national conference—involving some 600 specialists and about 400 observers—was held last week on the general problem in Montreal, under sponsorship of the Canadian Resource Ministers' Council.

'NEVER LEARN'

Gun, Dog, Hunter All on Bike

A Victoria man who wanted to "hunt from his motorcycle" gun, dog and all was fined $25 when he appeared in central court today.

David Beulah, 1430 Fairfield, was charged with carrying a loaded firearm on a vehicle, after being checked by fisheries officers on a logging road Oct. 27.

He pleaded guilty.

Court was told the rifle was strapped to his back and loaded with four rounds of ammunition, and that Beulah was also "trying to hold a large dog" on the motorcycle.

Beulah told Magistrate William Ostler he didn't think it was against the law to hunt from his motorbike.

'CARELESSNESS'

"It seems some people never learn from tragedies in the woods," said Magistrate Ostler.

Brian Robertson, 2456 Evelyn Place, paid $25 for carrying a loaded rifle in his car Oct. 15.

Pleading guilty, he said "it was carelessness."

HOURS, PAY PROTESTED

Inland Ferry Workers Talking Strike Action

A meeting has been set up for November 29 between the Civil Service Commission and representatives of 250 employees on highways department ferries who accuse the government of discrimination.

A spokesman for the B.C. Government Employees' Association today said the employees want the same working conditions granted to their counterparts in the B.C. Ferry Authority.

"The government uses two yardsticks in measuring working conditions and some sections in the highway department believe strike action is the only way to eliminate this official discrimination," the BCGEA spokesman said.

He said Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who headed a special cabinet study six months ago that led to averting of threatened wildcat strikes against the ferry authority, referred the question of similar working conditions for the highway department's ferry crews to the Civil Service Commission.

"We want the 10 per cent pay bonus for arduous summer shifts, shorhand pay and better overtime arrangements that the ferry authority workers were given but, except for one small concession, these have been rejected," said the spokesman.

13-HOUR DAY

He said the concession was that highway ferry workers would have a five-day work week "but only where practical and some of them now work 13 hours some days, 16½ hours other days and 17½ hours on Saturdays."

He said these overtime hours were "more or less permanent despite the government's own call for a ban on overtime."

"We want the Commission and highway department officials to recognize in all fairness, that ferry workers in the highway department should be treated on a par with those working for the ferry authority."

The highways department operates about 35 car ferries, most of them crossing interior rivers and lakes but three operating on salt water between Comox and Powell River, Nanaimo and Galiano Island, and Britannia and Woodfibre.

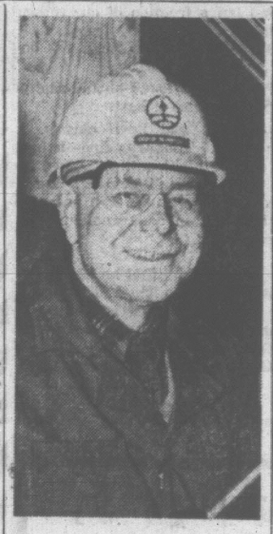
Ask The Times

Q. What part of his body does the mole use to dig holes? J.O.

A. The mole, say Times references, has broad, strong forelimbs and shovel-shaped feet for digging. The Old World mole has definite claws.

Q. What is gamma globulin? F.L.O.

A. Gamma Globulin is described by the Red Cross as "a fraction of plasma which contains the antibodies to many infectious diseases."



FORTY ACCIDENT-FREE YEARS is the record of Frank Mussick of the Victoria sawmill division of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. He has been a gang sawyer for the past six years. Mr. Mussick's achievement amounts to working 85,000 hours without losing time due to an injury. He has been working in the wood products industry since 1926, when he began working at the old Cameron Lumber Company.

Heart Attack Caused River Death

Ex-Victoria alderman Millard H. Mooney died of a heart attack, not drowning, pathologist Dr. Ross McNeely said today.

"I don't think there is any doubt here. Mr. Mooney died of a heart attack. There was no indication of drowning," said Dr. McNeely after performing an autopsy.

He said his report will be sent to Duncan coroner Dr. Robert Wilson who is conducting an inquiry.

Mr. Mooney died Sunday while attempting to cross the swift-flowing Cowichan River, five miles west of Duncan.

At the time he was crossing the river in a small boat when it headed for some rapids. He left the boat; wether by accident or design is unknown. He was a strong swimmer.

RESCUE TRY

His son-in-law Gordon Meyer said he ran along the bank trying to reach Mr. Mooney and then dived in after him.

Mr. Mooney did not respond to the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after he was dragged to the bank.

Naval Officer Earns BA Degree

Lieut. Herbert J. C. Law, formerly of Victoria and now at Naval Headquarters, Ottawa, has graduated from Carleton University with a bachelor of arts degree.

He was educated at the University of Victoria, UBC and Dalhousie.

Prosecution Of Contractor Proposed Here

The Labour Relations Board has granted permission to the United Brotherhood of Carpenters to prosecute a Victoria contracting company.

The union sought permission to prosecute Jesse R. Green and Jesse R. Green Construction Limited for failure to pay certain sums of money into the Carpentry Workers Welfare Fund.

The board's decision was announced today. A union spokesman said the matter now is in the hands of its lawyers.

Third Conviction

Larry Marcotte, 19, of 2804 Rodney, was fined $50 on a charge of being a minor in possesion of alcohol when he appeared in central court today.

Court was told he had had two previous convictions on the same charge earlier this year.

Youth Wins Race But Loses in End

A 20-year-old youth who shook off Oak Bay police in a chase Tuesday afternoon was fined a total of $250 in magistrate's court today.

James Griffiths, 422 Craigflower, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving, driving without a licence, and being a minor without insurance.

Prosecutor James Macintyre told the court Griffiths, "who doesn't have a driver's licence and never had one," drove at speeds of up to 50 miles per hour on Dorset, Nottingham and Dover, going through two stop signs, while police were pursuing him.

He was picked up later and told police "he panicked."

Griffiths was fined $200 and suspended from driving for six months on the dangerous driving charge.

He paid $25 on each of the other two charges.

Ronald McBride, 431 Powell, was fined $100 for driving while under suspension.

A charge of careless driving cost Alan Ford, 269 King George Terrace, a fine of $40.

ONLY THE LOUD NEED FEAR BYLAW

Whistle—But Don't Squeal Tires

Relax, mother, Johnny can still whistle on the way to school even if he does live in Esquimalt.

Reeve Ray Bryant was upset this morning that news reports of his municipality's new anti-noise bylaw left the impression whistling schoolboys could be incarcerated.

"That's silly," said Reeve Bryant. "The bylaw was months in preparation and is designed to curb noise which disturbs the peace, order and quiet of the municipality.

"It is a bylaw based largely on a Nelson bylaw — which, by the way has been most successful — giving the police powers they did not have before."

He added that the law was designed to clamp down on those who make a "gross nuisance of themselves" and disturb the peace flagrantly.

Reeve Bryant said he objected to news reports which "try to create a controversy where no controversy exists."

His sharpest criticism was reserved for local radio reports.

One of the main targets for the police armed with the new bylaw will be the tire-squealer.

"Bedore we introduced the bylaw there was little the police could do," Reeve Bryant said.

"Under the bylaw they have the power to prosecute if the noise is made in flagrant disregard for others."

And Johnny can still whistle on the way to school.

Ottawa Orders Probe Into 'Bugging' Claim

SNOW MAKES DEBUT ON LOWER MAINLAND

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Greater Vancouver area said welcome to winter Tuesday night as the first snow of the season hit the area.

But the flakes in most regions—except in the higher levels of the North Shore mountains—were mixed with rain and melted as they hit the ground.

The mountains had a four-inch blanket and ski enthusiasts were crossing their fingers for a continued fall and an early start to the skiing season.

U.S. Troops Uncover Arms Store

SAIGON (AP) — Victorious United States 1st Infantry Division troops have been hauling from Viet Cong guerrilla tunnels in South Viet Nam's Tay Ninh province the most massive store of enemy arms and ammunition they have ever encountered.

Eighty rocket launchers, 25 machine-guns and 481 mines topped an inventory over which the Americans were still toiling at dusk today.

Gemini Flight Postponed Again

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 12 flight today was postponed another 24 hours—until Friday—because of a problem with an automatic pilot system in the astronauts' Titan II booster rocket.

RUSSIAN ROULETTE

Game of Chicken Dief Bids to Win

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is playing Russian roulette. The right combination in the chamber could blow it up. (See also Page 6.)

Here is how this kind of brinkmanship works:

The government needs about $340,000,000 to pay its November bills. It has to ask Parliament for it.

This opens up a debate called "interim supply" and MPs can talk on any subject they choose for as long as they wish.

The Conservatives, or most of them, decided to go after Defence Minister Hellyer on one specific matter.

Send the armed forces unification bill to the defence committee before Commons second reading — approval in principle — they said. Mr. Hellyer said no. After second reading the bill goes to committee.

The Conservatives have kept talking for eight sitting days, including today. No committee study, no money.

"Blackmail," said Mr. Hellyer.

Friday, Nov. 11, is a Commons holiday. Main pay day for the civil service and a lot of contractors is next Tuesday. But some cheques are due earlier — on Thursday and next Monday.

The Conservatives run the risk of getting civil servants and contractors angry with them.

However, there's a much greater risk than people not getting paid. The government could pull the plug and call an election, even though it's only a year since the last one.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker would dearly like to take another Liberal "retreat" before his party's convention here next week.

But he might be accused by some Conservatives of trying to force an election before his party was ready for one and just so he could try again for the prime ministership.

The question on Parliament Hill today was not "who will win?" but, rather, "who will chicken out first?"

Some sort of compromise seems to be shaping up.

The Liberals won't give in on the unification bill.

But they will throw a very large bone to the Conservatives: Immediate introduction of the legislation to increase old-age pensions for the needy.

The Conservatives have been hammering away at this, too, and they would be able to tell next week's party convention they had forced the government to act.

The government has already compromised to some extent. Last week it said it would bring on the unification bill after interim supply was passed. But it dropped this plan this week.

And Mr. Hellyer has taken a much softer line in the last couple of days — to the point of agreeing with some opposition arguments.

The expectation is that interim supply will be passed Thursday night. But great expectations have gone awry here before.

MICHIGAN'S George Romney, left, re-elected as governor, and Senator Robert Griffin, make their victory appearance in Detroit. Romney is now considered as a top Republican presidential candidate in 1968. He defeated Democrat Zolton Ferency. Griffin defeated G. Mennen Williams.

Johnson Control of House Hit by GOP Victories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans came back strong in Tuesday's elections, wresting at least seven governorships from the Democrats and winning enough House seats to hamstring President Johnson's great society legislative program.

The off-year elections also gave the GOP a greatly expanded array of proven vote-getters who doubtless will play a part as candidates or king-makers in the 1968 presidential contest.

Among the Republican candidates who won big were Govs. George Romney of Michigan, Nelson Rockefeller of New York and James Rhodes of Ohio, Gov.-Elect Ronald Reagan of California, and Sens. - Elect Charles Percy of Illnois. Negro Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

Former vice-president Richard Nixon, who carried the campaign hod for the GOP, also emerged with revitalized political lustre.

Southern Democrats Hold Control

Democrats retained numerical control of both chambers of Congress but with reduced margins that will transfer real control to a conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

President Johnson, who received the returns at his Texas ranch, withheld direct comment on the Republican gains. But acting White House press secretary, George Christian, said:

"He the President), obviously wishes that every man that he wanted elected had been elected. But on the other hand, the Senate Democratic majority will be in the neighborhood of 64 to 36, which is a pretty good majority in anyone's estimation. And the House majority will be in the neighborhood of 250 to 185."

Nearly complete returns showed that the Republicans had elected 182 House members and were ahead in 5 other races for a total of 187, compared to 140 they held in the last congress. The Democrats had nailed down 247 seats and led in one contest for an indicated total of 248, compared to their previous 295.

This would mean a net gain of 47 House seats for the GOP.

In the Senate, where 35 of the 100 seats were at issue, the GOP won 18 races, the Democrats 17. The new Senate lineup of 64 to 36 represents a gain of 3 seats for the GOP.

In the 35 gubernatorial races, Republicans won 22 and were leading in two others. Democrats won 11. If the Republicans

REAGAN OVERPOWERS BROWN

Conservatives Find Heir to Goldwater

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Political newcomer Ronald Reagan today won California's governorship in a landslide that made him a national GOP political force. But he promptly denied even "favorite son" presidential hopes in 1968.

In his first bid for political office, Reagan swept into the helm of the nation's most popular state by overpowering two-term Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The victory made him the newly crowned leader of GOP conservatives but Reagan said he did not think his victory signalled a swing to conservatism in California. He scorned the use of "labels".

However, conservative backers made it plain they saw him as inheriting the mantle of former U.S. senator Barry Goldwater, overwhelmed as GOP presidential standard bearer in 1964.

With 25,191 of the state's 28,573 precincts reporting, Reagan had 3,089,208 votes to 2,229,696 for Brown. His vic-

RCMP Involved Detective Says

OTTAWA (CP)—Solicitor-General Pennell told the Commons today he has asked for a full report into allegations that the RCMP was involved in putting a listening device in a union leader's Vancouver hotel room.

He was replying to H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) who referred to a statement by private detective W. B. Graham that Cpl. Harry Reid of the RCMP arranged a meeting with him and Pat O'Neal, organizer of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Herridge also asked Mr. Pennell to look into the death of Lloyd Craig, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers, who died of an apparent heart attack in one of the hotel rooms Saturday.

Mr. Pennell said he had asked for a full report that would take in all allegations made about the case.

R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Royal) said perhaps the time had come for the Commons standing committee on justice and legal affairs to look into "the nefarious practice" of wiretapping. Mr. Pennell said he would discuss this with his departmental officials.

Political Intrigue Hinted

VANCOUVER (CP)— Private detective Weldin Brock (Bud) Graham hinted today at political facets in the case of the bugged labor convention.

The former RCMP officer said in a radio interview he was aware of political connections in the case, but declined to amplify.

Assistant Commissioner F. S. Spalding, B.C.'s top RCMP officer, ordered a full investigation into Mr. Graham's claims that members of the RCMP were involved in the bugging of a union leader's hotel room.

Mr. Graham said in an interview Tuesday night that Cpl. Harry Reid of the RCMP's security and intelligence division arranged a meeting with him and Pat O'Neal, organizer of the Internationatl Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Graham said the result of the meeting was that Mr. O'Neal paid him $250 to install electronic listening equipment in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Assistant Commissioner Spalding said in Victoria he heard the radio broadcast and decided the situation warranted an investigation.

He hoped it would be completed later today.

He declined comment when asked if the results of the investigation will be made public.

"The investigation is under way and I want to get the reports first and give them scrutiny," he said.

Vancouver police transport department officials Monday seized $700 worth of electronic equipment from three rooms in the Ritz Hotel, where the Canadian Pulp and Paper Workers Union is holding its convention.

One of the three rooms was occupied by Lloyd Craig, president of the Canadian union who died there Saturday of a heart attack.

John Fisk, deputy Vancouver police chief, said "as far as we are concerned it was a natural death."

O'Neal denied earlier he had anything to do with bugging the rooms and could not be located today to comment on the allegation he paid Graham $250 as a retainer.

Believed Acting for Police

Graham, who said he was a member of the RCMP's security and intelligence division from 1955 to 1962, said he would have refused the job except he believed he was acting for the police.

Graham said he placed microphones in Craig's room, in Room 206 and an adjacent committee room. A receiving set was put in Room 309 on the floor above.

"I have never done any bugging before and would have refused this case had I not thought it was a RCMP request," he said.

"I was surprised and flattered when Cpl. Reid came to me. It appeared the RCMP was assisting one union to spy on another."

Canadian union officials said the first microphone was found Saturday when it fell from a portable cupboard that was being moved to make more room in the committee room.

The union then hired a private detective agency which found the microphones in Room 206 and in Craig's room.

Angus MacPhee, vice-president of the Canadian union, said officials became suspicious of Room 309 — where the receiving set was located — because the blinds were shut all the time.

MacPhee said the room was kept under surveillnce and

UH - UH - UH - UH - UH - SIR OR madam . . . if you have found me . . . you must be considering selling your property . . . no-no-no-no . . . please do not cast this poor attempt aside, and brand it as another plaintive cry for a listing. I have dedicated myself to selling, in a satisfactory manner, houses—not—clients . . . and at the present time, like so many of us . . . I am out of listings.
Why not at least have a chat with me, at no obligation, of course, and form your own conclusion . . . Please call Mr. Stothers, EV 2-2101 or 658-5285 eves.

VESSEL BREAKING UP ON ROCKS, 2 ABOARD

ADAK, Alaska (AP) — A U.S. navy patrol plane from Adak Tuesday night reported seeing two men on a U.S. landing craft which is breaking up on rocks in the Aleutian Islands.

The pilot of the patrol plane said the two men, visible on the deck, apparently were in good condition. Bad weather kept the plane from further investigation or dropping survival gear.

The U.S. navy tug Munses reached the scene about midnight and reported a light on the beach. A boat was put ashore but nothing has been reported.

. . . GOP VICTORIES

win the two races in which the outcome still is in doubt, in Alaska and Georgia, they will control a majority of the nation's state Houses — 26 to 24—for the first time in many years. Before the balloting, the Democrats had a 33 - 17 bulge.

Even more significant, the rebor[illegible] Republicans won the governorships of five of the seven largest states, assuring a solid GOP base for the 1968 presidential campaign.

The Democrats unseated two Republican governors. Kenneth Curtis defeated Gov. John Reed in Maine and Robert Docking, son of the late Gov. George Docking, beat Gov. William H. Avery of Kansas.

Republicans displaced Democratic governors in eight states —Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada and New Mexico.

Bright New Galaxy of Stars

The GOP, which suffered a disastrous defeat in 1964 under the banner of Barry Goldwater, emerged from the 1966 balloting with a bright new galaxy of political stars who are sure to figure prominently in the 1968 casting.

Among them were:

● Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who swept to re-election by a landslide majority, pulling in on his coat tails Michigan's first Republican senator in 14 years, at least 3 new GOP congressmen and an apparent majority of the state legislature.

● Former movie star Ronald Regan, who was elected governor of California by a margin of nearly a million votes over two-term Democratic incumbent Edmund (Pat) Brown.

● Sen.-elect Charles H. Percy of Illinois, who unseated 74-year-old Democratic veteran Paul H. Douglas.

● Sen.-elect Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, first Negro elected to the Senate since the Civil War.

● Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, re-elected by a whopping majority that swept his party into control of many other state offices.

● Sen.-elect Mark Hatfield of Oregon, who like Percy was a dove-side critic of administration policy in Viet Nam.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York retained a powerful seat among the GOP kingmakers by winning re-election handily in what was expected to be a close contest with Democrat Frank O'Connor.

The Republicans elected governors in Florida and Arkansas for the first time since the civil war, and GOP candidate Rep. Howard Callaway was leading in Georgia in a close race with Democratic segregationist Lester Maddox.

Appeal to White Backlash Fails

In Maryland, Republican Spiro Agnew won the governorship by a convincing majority over Democrat George Mahoney, who appealed to "white backlash" sentiment with a campaign pitched on opposition to an open housing law.

Democrats found little to cheer about, even in some races which were officially listed as Democratic victories. One such was in Alabama, where George Wallace saw his wife, Lurleen, elected to the governorship for which he was ineligible to run again—thus providing him with a political base from which he could launch a third-term presidential bid in 1968.

The Republican bounce-back from 1964's humiliating defeat came on a record outpouring of votes for an off-year election in which the White House was not at stake.

The GOP never had any chance of winning control of Congress but its gains exceeded Johnson's worst fears. While making no forecasts, Johnson told a recent news conference that even a Republican gain of 40 to 50 House seats would not affect U.S. foreign policy.

The Republicans rode to victory on assorted issues ranging from war worries to high prices and the white backlash. The backlash effect was muted, however, and cut both ways.

Many Republicans pitched their campaigns against Johnson and big or "one party" government and said a better balance was needed in Congress.

They also had going for them the law of averages. Since 1912, when the House was fixed at its present 435 members, the party in power has lost an average of 36 seats in non-presidential election years.

Democrats 'Shocked' by Loss

Democratic strategists privately were shocked at the outcome, although publicly they sought to minimize their House losses. They characterized them as a return to what they now were picturing as the pre-LBJ "normal" margin between Democrats and Republicans.

Romney crowed about "national Republican unity" today and disclosed he already was in touch with the party's other big winners.

Romney ducked questions about his alleged aspirations for the 1968 presidential nomination and refused to say whether he would serve the full four-year term he won with a record margin of nearly 500,000 votes.

Nelson Rockefeller, advised by some members of his own party a few months ago to quit politics, bounced back with a decisive, third straight Gubernatorial victory.

Rockefeller, who has renounced further presidential ambitions, has indicated a preference for Romney.

Roosevelt Vote Hurts O'Connor

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., running as the Liberal party candidate, hurt O'Connor. But Paul L. Adams, the Conservative party professor and strong 1964 Barry Goldwater backer, cost Rockefeller heavily, too.

Returns from 12,409 of the state's 13,170 election districts gave Rockefeller 2,518,486, O'Connor 2,127,393, Roosevelt 483,834 and Adams 472-187.

Rockefeller's win was all the more remarkable in that the Republican party did not register significant congressional gains in New York as they did in many other places across the nation.

Hatfield, 44, defeated his Democratic opponent, Rep. Robert Duncan, for the Senate in an Oregon contest that muddied the "clear-cut" test of voter support for President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

Hatfield, the two-term GOP chief executive, had 314,025 votes to 288,709 for Duncan with 2,601 of the state's 2,905 precincts reporting.

Duncan led in populous Multnomah County (Portland), but Hatfield countered with substantial strength upstate, including a majority in the fourth district which Duncan represented for two terms in Congress.

National political observers viewed the contest as a referendum for the military effort in Viet Nam. Hatfield campaigned in opposition to the U.S. troop commitment there, instead advocating a stepped-up drive for peace, if necessary with the Viet Cong and Peking.

Duncan, 45, entered the race in support of Johnson.

The war was much on the mind of the Oregon voter, but so, too, was inflation and the tight money curb, which hit hard at the lumber economy — the state's number one industry.

Italy Hikes Gas Tax For Flood Rebuilding

ROME (Reuters)—The Italian cabinet today put a higher tax on gasoline which it said would bring in about $291,000,000 in two years to finance reconstruction of regions stricken in the last week of flooding.

The cabinet also gave approval for the immediate spending of some $74,000,000 to finance relief needed at once in the mud-washed, storm-devastated cites and agricultural provinces hit by the floods which came after 10 days of torrential rain.

Meantime, Florence appealed to the world for funds to restore damage estimated at more than $140,000,000 to its art treasures.

More than 600 paintings, 1,000 manuscripts and books of priceless historical value were damaged by the water, mud and oil which swept through the beautiful renaissance city.

Flood waters were subsiding today in Florence, the Po delta and Venice but the situation was reported still desperate in the southern Dolomites where tens of thousands were marooned or homeless.

ATTEMPT to climb 9,000-foot Mount Kilmanjaro will be made next September as Centennial project by Erik Sheer, eight, and his father, Frank. They display Canadian flag given them Tuesday in Ottawa by Prime Minister Pearson. It will be presented by the Sheers to Tanzanian President Nyerere. (CP Photo.)
